Is Box 3 Empty? Do academics disagree on how decision-making is best supported?

Leonard Smith

CRUISSE Conference, UCL

21-22 September 2017

Abstract

Leonard Smith will lead a discussion on differing views from academics as to how support for real world challenges should be approached. What types of information can be helpfully supplied to meet the types of challenges discussed in the morning? Can everything be reduced to a decision relevant probability? Or are there some questions for which no probabilities can be provided? How then can academic insights contribute to decision making?