

A Note about Graduate Course Choice and Seminar Sign-up on LSE For You

This is important information. Please read it carefully.

Your programme comes with a number of options for course choices. You need to act on these choices soon. You will receive advice, but it is your own responsibility to get things right.

1. You have the first week to decide on your course choices. Please use this week to “shop around” and inform yourself.
2. Over the coming few days, you will be assigned an academic adviser. Please try to see your adviser during the first week of term. Usually your adviser will contact you by email to agree a consultation date. It is vital that you go and see your adviser on that date.
3. During consultation, please discuss your intended course choice with your adviser. Make sure your course choices stay within the bounds of your course programme.
4. All course choices must be made electronically on LSE for You <<https://lfy.lse.ac.uk/>>
Although the Graduate Course Choice facility will be open earlier, please DO NOT select courses until the end of Week 1. This is to allow you to sample as many courses as you like before making your final decision. To log on to LSE for You, you just need your LSE email ID and password.
5. On Monday 2rd October, offers for courses will be sent out. Offers must be accepted within 48 hours. Failure to do so may result in your losing your place on a particular course.
6. Once an offered place has been accepted, you must then sign-up to a seminar using the on-line Seminar Sign-up facility (not to be confused with Moodle class materials). You must attend the seminar signed up for.
Please keep an eye on Timetables for Lent Term half-units as it is your responsibility to ensure that your seminar choices do not clash with other courses that you are planning to take.

STUDENTS TAKING THE MSC POLITICAL ECONOMY OF LATE DEVELOPMENT ONLY:
PLEASE BE AWARE THAT THE DEPARTMENT OF INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT REQUIRES YOU TO SELECT COURSES AT THE VERY BEGINNING OF TERM.

PLEASE ATTEND THEIR INDUCTION MEETINGS FOR FULL INFORMATION.
