Report of the Director of the School

At the top of LSE's agenda for the coming year – and longer-term – is strengthening the education we provide for our students. This is a matter of improved teaching – itself dependent especially on teachers but also on facilities like good teaching rooms of appropriate size. It is also a matter of assessment structures and feedback, on enhancing course offerings with help out-of-class, of making sure that all our leading faculty are making strong contributions to teaching. This is vital to the LSE's core mission – and also to its finances, because student fees are our major revenue source.

As I write, LSE has just been awarded the University of the Year for Graduate Employment by the latest Times and Sunday Times Good University Guide. We maintained our position as second in the world for social sciences and management in the 2014/15 QS World University rankings and were ranked fifth in the UK by the main Times and Sunday Times Good University Guide. This said, rankings are by products not goals. But this is a sign that we are doing much right. At the same time, we saw a drop in LSE's student satisfaction rating in the latest National Student Survey (NSS), released in August 2014. This is obviously disappointing. The School has a duty to students to improve in those areas where we scored poorly, particularly as one of the key priorities identified in the Strategic Review is improving our teaching provision and student satisfaction. We are working now to effect a real step change.

Important for student experience and unambiguous good news is the launch of the Saw Swee Hock Students' Centre. The Centre has won a variety of prizes including RIBA's London Building of the Year 2014. It is a brilliant addition to the campus and it clearly puts student life at the centre of the campus. LSE was named "Client of the Year" in the prestigious Architects' Journal AJ100 awards. The SSHSC architects have received the RIBA Gold Medal, and our building was shortlisted for the Stirling Prize. Most importantly, our students love it.

The School-wide consultation process on changes in the academic year was led by Professor Paul Kelly, Pro-Director for Teaching and Learning. Following this process, Council approved a new structure for the academic year. From 2015-16, Michaelmas and Lent Terms will be extended by one week each to 11 weeks, and will be followed by a seven-week exam period.

In November 2013 we announced the winners of the architectural competition to design the new Centre Buildings. Rogers Stirk Harbour + Partners were chosen because they grasped that this would be a building at once for the university and for the city – an enhancement to public as well as academic space. Next summer we will begin demolition and replacement of the Centre Buildings. The two main future capital developments planned are a redevelopment of the East Building and St Clement's Building, to commence in 2015 subject to planning consent. This is in addition to work on the recently purchased 44 Lincoln's Inn Fields, to commence in 2016 subject to planning consent and internal approvals. These developments mean that we can look forward to a transforming campus.

Another exciting development for the School is the new Institute for Global Affairs (IGA). This will be an umbrella institute bringing together a number of centres and initiatives – such as LSE IDEAS, the Middle East Centre and the forthcoming South Asia and South East Asia Centres.

The IGA will promote LSE research and aim to advance teaching on major issues of global concern, build bridges between LSE and different parts of the world, and enhance the School's role as a global university.

The summer term saw the new LSE media studio get up and running. In addition to helping the academic community make high-quality films, the new studio has connected LSE academics with news outlets in Germany, Spain, the Middle East, France and Canada, using its live TV and radio broadcast facilities.

After a long period of consultation and discussion the Strategic Review is finished and has been approved by Council and Academic Board. The final version was published over the summer. It will now guide us as we work to maintain and enhance the strength of our programmes, our reputation, and our finances. It will help us respond to pressures we face, and also to choose among possible new ways of advancing social science and bringing it to bear on major public issues. Senior working groups have been created and are taking tangible tasks forward.

December 2014 will see the publication of the results of the Research Exercise Framework (REF). Preparing for our submission took countless hours. The School is deeply indebted to the Deputy Director and Provost for his leadership on the REF, and to academic and professional staff across the School (especially in the Research Division) who have worked tirelessly to ensure that LSE's submission is truly reflective of the excellent research undertaken at the School.

Professor Craig Calhoun

Director

Report of the Directors

The following report incorporates a strategic report containing a review of the group's business and a description of the principal risks and uncertainties facing the group.

Strategic plan

The London School of Economics and Political Science has long been among the world's leading institutions of research and higher education. It has led innovation in social science, shaped progressive change in British society, and pioneered understanding and action on global issues. To help LSE maintain its excellence, enhance its impact, and improve its effectiveness the Strategic Review has examined all aspects of LSE operations. The Review asked both how LSE could best address changes and volatility in its environment and operating conditions and how it could best pursue its mission of advancing knowledge through research and sharing it through education and public engagement in order to address major social challenges and shape a better world.

Through considering the aspirations that guide LSE and help set its priorities, the resources and strengths we can mobilise to pursue our aspirations and the challenges, ten key elements of strategy have been identified and will now orient and guide the institution's planning and investment.

1. Raise the overall quality, productivity, and creativity of LSE faculty by promoting excellence equally in scholarship, education and research.
2. Raise the quality, distinctiveness, attractiveness, and recognition of LSE educational programmes.
3. Recruit students with the greatest ability, motivation, and potential to benefit from LSE education and subsequently to contribute to society.
4. Enhance LSE's intellectual distinctiveness as a social science university working to address major public issues.
5. Enhance and build on LSE's distinctiveness as the most global of the world's research-intensive universities.
6. Be prepared to innovate.
7. Secure revenue to support LSE aspirations.
8. Enhance LSE's effectiveness in communications.

9. Develop the LSE estate into a campus that is commensurate with its standing and aspirations, facilitates world-class teaching and research, and enables its faculty and students to be maximally productive.
10. Use empirical data and analysis to improve the quality of LSE's work.

The goal of this strategy is clear: to enable LSE to thrive and to show in the future the brilliance it has exhibited in the past, to achieve the highest intellectual quality, and to contribute to society.

Business review and principal activities

The principal activities of the School in the year under review were higher education, research and related activities. Related activities include consultancy, conferences, public lectures, the provision of catering and accommodation services and the publication of academic journals.

Financial overview

For the financial year ending 31 July 2014 the School achieved a surplus of income over expenditure of £18.1m equivalent to 6.5 per cent of turnover. This was lower than the previous year which saw a surplus of £30.6m (11.6 per cent of turnover) as planned and reflects a strategic investment in recruitment of additional faculty.

The School sets a budget based on assumptions concerning income and expenditure that is designed to ensure a sustainable long term surplus of income over expenditure in the range of three to five per cent of turnover. This target recognises that a surplus is essential to fund loan repayments and to support capital and infrastructure investment. The School's ambition is to be and remain a world leader in research and teaching in the social sciences and the generation of sustainable surplus is essential to provide the flexibility necessary to invest in the new academic initiatives that this ambition requires.

A combination of strong student recruitment, a significant and sustained contribution from ancillary activities and strong financial management have delivered substantial surpluses in recent years and 2013-14 continues this pattern. Over the past five years the School achieved an average annual surplus of 7.0 per cent, generating £121.6m.

This robust financial base has supported many academic initiatives during 2013-14 including Research Quality Investment Fund (RQIF) recruitment, the introduction of a new academic career structure and an incentive scheme to increase the proportion of externally funded research. It has also permitted enhancement of facilities through the opening of the Saw See hock Student Centre and the strategic acquisition of 44 Lincoln's Inn Fields.

Our Council has a strategic aim to create a "world class" estate commensurate with the School's international academic standing and competitive with other world class higher educational institutions. Plans for the redevelopment of the Centre Building site are progressing and decisions over the recently acquired 44 Lincoln's Inn Field site will be made during 2015. These developments will be funded from financial surpluses, fundraising and underpinned by the capital which was raised through the issuance of £125.0m of loan notes in November 2013.

Income

Gross income grew by 6.0 per cent (2012-13, 8.0 per cent). Tuition fee income increased by 9.7 per cent and represented 55 per cent of income compared to 53 per cent in 2012-13. The withdrawal of public funding for home and EU undergraduates between 2012 and 2014 and increased home/EU undergraduate fees will accelerate this trend. From 2014-15 the School will charge its new Home/EU undergraduates the £9,000 fee that has been the norm in the Russell Group of research intensive universities since 2012. This increase, after allowing for the impact of inflation and our plans for increased bursaries will still result in a real terms decline in this element of income.

While this establishes us as a leader in the financial support for students in the UK, it will be a significant multi-year effort to develop philanthropic support to enable us to offer true "needs blind" admission and to close the gap between student loans and grants and living costs for all students.

Report of the Directors

The School is committed to ensuring the best students are able to study at LSE irrespective of financial circumstances, so it is pleasing to report the total awarded in bursaries and other awards rose by 11 per cent in 2013-14 to £16.8m (2012-13 – £15.2m).

The School is recognised by the Economic and Social Research Council as a Doctoral Training Centre. In 2013 the School launched a new flagship studentship scheme that supports outstanding research students by fully funding their postgraduate research at the School. During 2013-14 the School had 129 fully funded studentships, 65 per cent of the total number enrolled at the School in 2013-14. This scheme provides maintenance grants and fees paid from School resources or through external sources such as the Research Councils or philanthropic support.

Funding Council grants

The School receives HEFCE (Higher Education Funding Council of England) grants for teaching, research and capital projects. Grant income fell by 8.2 per cent as support for undergraduate teaching was phased out. For many years the HEFCE (Higher Education Funding Council of England) grant funding has represented a lower proportion of income at LSE than most UK higher education institutions. Since the phasing out of support for teaching undergraduate students in 2012 this position has increased and in 2013-14 only 8.7 per cent of the School's income came from HEFCE grants, mainly to support research and to promote work to increase the impact of research, ie, Higher Education Innovation (HEIF) Funding.

While the School's income for 2013-14 included £24.3m of HEFCE grants, a total of £43.1m including employee NI/PAYE, employer NI and VAT was paid to the government.

Students in 2013-14

The School had 9,392 full-time students in 2013-14 compared with 9,215 in 2012-13. Current plans are for gradual growth in the size of the School over the next few years. The School has some significant decisions to make during 2014-15 about the development of the estate so a careful review of the future size and composition of the student population will be undertaken over the next few months. We are fortunate to be doing this against a background of strong demand for our courses. Most recently, for the 2014 entry we had 11.6 applicants per place at undergraduate level and 4.4 applicants per place at the taught postgraduate level. A further 576 students studied our degree programmes on a part time basis. In recent years the School has developed a substantial portfolio of teaching activities beyond the traditional one to three year full-time course model. These fall into three main areas: Executive Masters Programmes, Summer Schools and programmes run through the University of London International Programme. In total these courses had enrolled more than 27,000 students on LSE programmes of study in 2013-14.

Executive Masters programmes

LSE offers a range of executive master's programmes for mid-career to senior level professionals. The programmes benefit from the School's exceptional links with the outside world, both within the academic community and externally with policy practitioners. The current portfolio covers behavioural science, strategy and diplomacy, management, finance, health economics, law and politics. These programmes attracted 433 students in 2013-14, a figure which we plan to increase substantially over the next few years. Amongst these is now the well-established and internationally recognised TRIUM MBA which is operated in partnership with NYU Stern and HEC Paris. Following the appointment of the first Executive Director of the TRIUM programme based at LSE, the School has taken over responsibility from NYU Stern for the management and administration of the programme.

Summer Schools

The Summer School, which had its 25th anniversary last year, again increased numbers for the two, three week sessions that held each year in July and August. With 5,005 attending this year it remains the largest university summer school in the UK and attracts students from 140 countries around the world. The LSE Summer School means that the campus remains intensively used for a six week period during the summer, with strong demand for rooms in our residences and use of catering facilities. In addition to this a separate Executive School has been running for the past five years in London; this year it attracted 280 students. Two overseas schools also operated, in Beijing and Cape Town with another 430 students attending.

International Programme

Under a collaboration agreement, the School participates in the University of London International Programme, which sees our academic material taught under the University of London badge to some 22,000 students around the globe annually. This study leads to the award of a University of London degree via distance learning. The School plays an active role in the direction and quality assurance processes of the programmes in which it is involved.

Research income

Research income grew by 13.9 per cent (2012-13: 4.4 per cent) to £27.0m. The main area of income growth is from UK Research Councils, reversing the downward trend seen over the last two years. Whilst the number of awards from this sector remain at a steady level, the value of awards held has increased. Notable successes during the year include the renewal of funding for the ESRC Centre for Climate Change Economics and Policy, the start of the ESRC funded "What Works Centre", and a £2.5m award to Personal Social Services Research Unit to improve the lives of people with dementia and their carers. Income from other sectors has also increased, in particular income from European funders (which has seen a steady increase over the last few years – up this year to £7.9m, an increase of 12.5 per cent) and UK Government (an increase of 21.3 per cent to £4.1m).

The School launched a new Research Incentive Scheme in 2013-14 to support faculty time and resources for the process of grant winning. During 2013-14 £1.3m was allocated through the scheme.

The School continues to do well in attracting large-scale funding for research centres, but has scope to improve its record further by winning more standard grants. A more strategic approach to grant-winning will be supported by the Research Division in the coming year and beyond, with greater efforts to raise funding from non-traditional sources.

The School's investment in Research Excellence Framework (REF) 2014 culminated at the end of November 2013 with the submission of staff research outputs and narratives. In total the School submitted around 65 impact case studies for the REF. These impact case studies demonstrate how LSE's excellent research has resulted in changes and benefits to the economy, society, culture, public policy, health, the environment and quality of life beyond academia. The results of the REF will be known in December 2014 and will make an important contribution to the School's standing and reputation. It will also inform the allocation of research block grant funding from 2015-16 onward, but given the bias to funding STEM subjects it cannot be expected to be any better than current funding and carries the risk of being worse.

The School's strategy is to compete successfully for high quality peer reviewed research. Where it is possible and appropriate to our academic aims, we also participate in commercial non-peer reviewed research, but undertaking research of low academic benefit purely for income generation is not a strategic aim.

Other income

The School derives significant value from its academic reputation and resources, via a number of additional activities. These activities are now well established and make a valuable contribution to the financial health of the School. They form a key component of our financial plans and are increasingly seen as an extension to our core activities. Together these activities generated a surplus of £8.4m in 2013-14 (£11.1m – 2012-13, including one off adjustments).

LSE Enterprise Limited

The School is keen to apply the social science expertise of LSE academics to researching and resolving issues across a very wide range of policy, social and business areas, and where appropriate to do this on a commercial basis. These activities are conducted through LSE Enterprise Ltd, a wholly owned subsidiary company of the School established over 20 years ago, and its revenues are reported under Other Income. During the year LSE Enterprise Ltd managed more than 160 consulting projects ranging from highly focused research and advisory assignments to complex interdisciplinary research programmes applying academic methodologies to major policy and commercial questions. LSE Enterprise Ltd has also been increasingly successful in bidding for and leading complex projects to advise on the development or outcomes of European Union policies. These activities connect the School's academics to business, government and the third sector, creating opportunities for their research to deliver insight and impact.

The company's operating surpluses has been paid through Gift Aid to support research and teaching at LSE.

The International Growth Centre

Other Income includes £8.3m (2012-13 – £4.8m) from the International Growth Centre (IGC). The School is now in the fifth year of a partnership with the Department for International Development (DfID) that funds and develops the work of the International Growth Centre. This ground-breaking initiative promotes sustainable growth in developing countries by providing demand-led policy advice based on frontier research. Based at LSE, the second phase started in February 2013 and is a combination of commissioned research projects, in-country research and policy work and an operations hub supporting and coordinating the work. This is a £51m investment by DfID over three years to 2016 working through 14 in-country programmes in 13 countries (Bangladesh, Ethiopia, Ghana, India (Bihar state and Central), Liberia, Mozambique, Pakistan, Rwanda, Sierra Leone, South Sudan, Uganda, Tanzania and Zambia) as well as ten research programmes spanning topics such as trade, agriculture, macroeconomics and human capital.

Residences and catering

With over 4,000 bed spaces in 12 halls of residence and the University of London halls, the School is able to offer a guaranteed place to all first year undergraduate students and, unlike the numerous commercial providers of accommodation in London, we continue to offer 31 week contracts to undergraduate students making our residences more affordable for them. During vacation periods, we operate many of the halls on a commercial basis through a wholly owned trading subsidiary LSE Lets Limited, providing hotel accommodation for a wide range of customers. In 2013-14 this trading activity generated £7.3m of revenue, an increase of £0.2m on the previous year. The surplus from residences' commercial activities is used to support student rents.

There will be a reduction of 135 bed spaces allocated to LSE in University of London halls for 2014-15 during a period of refurbishment. As demand continues to be high the School is keen to increase the number of bedspaces available so it is pleasing to note that a new residence provided in partnership with Urbanest will provide 484 additional beds at Westminster Bridge from September 2015.

The School operates ten catering outlets employing 66 full-time equivalent staff and generating £4.4m income in 2013-14. The new Saw Swee Hock Student Centre has added two new catering outlets and a bar to our offer. Catering Services and the Students' Union have worked in partnership to ensure these new outlets both enhance and complement the campus food offering.

Endowment and investment income

In 2013-14 Endowment and Investment income consisted of three elements, investment income and capital gains generated by endowments, the School's general reserve investment and interest earned on surplus cash which the School holds for working capital and fixed asset investment purposes.

Endowments and the School's general reserve investment funds are held in term deposits, for those funds required over the next few years, and in equity and other long term investments for those that are not committed within this timeframe.

During the year surplus cash was held in term deposits with a range of banks regulated by the FCA or EEA and which have credit ratings of AA- or better. Deposit terms range from one to twelve months and the maximum deposit at any one bank or bank group is normally £20.0m. Rates of interest receivable on cash deposits have remained at low levels throughout the year, so returns have been modest. In October 2014 monies held to fund capital expenditure were moved into a new bond portfolio managed on behalf of the School by J P Morgan. The aim of this portfolio is to protect capital and ensure the School receives a reasonable return. Low rates and the risk that construction costs will continue to rise at above inflation rates present a risk to the School's capital development plans.

During 2013-14 the School received £8.8m (2012-13, £8.0m) in endowments from a combination of new donors and existing pledges.

The Investment Sub-Committee of our Finance Committee oversees the asset allocation and investment strategy of these pools. The School is fortunate to be able to draw on the advice and expertise of a number of very experienced investment professionals who, along with academics and a Students' Union representative, comprise the committee. The committee is supported and advised by an external investment consultancy.

In 2013-14 the overall investment return after fees was 4.6 per cent (2012-13 – 17.4 per cent) for growth portfolio assets, 3.9 per cent (2012-13 – 8.0 per cent) on the FER pool and 0.4 per cent on endowments held in cash. This produced an overall return of 4.0 per cent (2012-13 – 12.7 per cent).

Expenditure

Total expenditure grew by 12.2 per cent (2012-13 – 6.2 per cent) with staff costs increasing by 12.5 per cent and other operating expenses by 9.1 per cent.

	2013-14 £m	2012-13 £m		Change %
Staff costs	147.2	130.9	16.3	12.5%
Other operating expenses	98.5	91.7	6.8	7.4%
Depreciation	8.7	6.8	1.9	28.1%
Interest payable	6.6	3.2	3.4	106.1%
Total expenditure	261.0	232.6	28.4	12.2%

Report of the Directors

The impact of four significant initiatives associated with staff recruitment, retention and reward that were implemented during 2013-14 is evident in the 12.5 per cent increase in staff costs.

- The Research Quality Investment Fund (RQIF), a global search to recruit an additional 20 world class academics resulted in more than 20 additional faculty joining the School.
- A new academic career structure, replacing the four tier lecturer, senior lecturer, reader and professor structure with assistant, associate and full professor nomenclature. In addition to changes in academic titles the new structure introduced higher starting salaries for each level and an even more rigorous standard for interim and major review.
- A scheme to increase the proportion of research funded from external sources by ensuring that the principal investigator funding and a proportion of the contribution to indirect costs is made available to the academic who secured the grant. Some of these funds may be taken as supplementary remuneration.
- The processes associated with the recognition and reward for exceptional performance amongst non-academic staff were revised and devolved.

Other operating expenditure

Other Operating Expenditure increased by 7.4 per cent (2011-12, 8.3 per cent) and this reflects the increase in scholarships, bursaries and general educational expenditure (£1.5m), additional estates costs associated with the expansion in the estate (£1.3m), expansion in the International Growth centres activities following the signing of the phase 2 contract (£1.9m), the costs associated with increased business in our halls of residence (£0.8m), additional Students' Union funding following their move to the Saw See Hock Student Centre (£0.7m) and increased investment in IT (£0.7m).

Interest payable costs increased by 106.1 per cent following the issuance of £125m of unsecured loan notes in November 2014. The completion and opening of the Saw Swee Hock student Centre in September and a full year's depreciation on our new academic facility at 32 Lincoln's Inn Fields account for £1.9m of the increase in the annual depreciation charge.

Balance sheet and liquidity

During 2013-14 the School's net assets grew by 5.7 per cent (2012-13 – 10 per cent), an increase of £24.5m, and as part of that increase, the School's endowments grew by £4.6m (2011-12 – £9.4m).

In August 2013 the School exchanged contracts for the purchase of 44 Lincoln's Inn Fields for £80.0m, the purchase was completed in October 2013, funded from School cash. This acquisition and the School's other capital plans exceeded projected liquidity so in November 2013 the School issued £125.0m of unsecured loan notes paying between 3.73 per cent and 4.15 per cent repayable between 2028 and 2053. The £56.1m secured loan facility with Barclays Bank, of which £26.1m is currently drawn, has been retained.

The Finance Committee continues to review the School's liquidity on a regular basis to ensure it is adequate to accommodate the School's medium term plans.

Capital expenditure

	£m
44 Lincoln's Inn Fields purchase	80.1
Saw Swee Hock Student Centre (Total construction costs £35.8m)	5.5
Library and the Women's Library	2.1
Redevelopment of Centre Buildings	1.9
Connaught House conversion to academic offices	1.4
Other additions	0.7
Equipment	3.3
Total capital expenditure	95.0

The main investments in capital during the year were the acquisition of 44 Lincoln's Inn Fields and completion of the new Saw Swee Hock Student Centre. Both represent significant milestones for the School, the Saw Swee Hock is the School's first newly built facility since the 1970s and is transformational in terms of provision for our students.

44 Lincoln's Inn Fields offers an opportunity no less important for the academic community: to construct a purpose built teaching and research facility in the heart of the campus. In the meantime, 2013-14 has seen good progress with plans to redevelopment three major buildings in the centre of the Houghton Street campus, namely East Building, Clare Market and St Clements East. Following an architectural competition Rogers Stirk Harbour + Partners LLP have been appointed and, subject to planning, it is anticipated that a three-year build programme costing around £119.9m will commence in 2015 subject to planning permission from Westminster Council.

Cash flow

	2013-14 £m
School cash and bank deposits at 1 August	89.4
I & E surplus before transfer to endowment	18.1
Adjustments for non-cash movements included in surplus	6.6
Adjustments for changes in working capital	3.1
Other	3.1
Increase in prepaid fees	1.4
Capital grant receipts	4.0
Net inc. before capital investment & financing	36.3
Additional finance	125.0
Capital expenditure	-95.0
Loan repayments	-1.8
Net School cash movement	64.5
School cash at 31 July	153.9

With strong operating cashflows and the proceeds for the private placement there was a net inflow of £64.6m (2012-13 – £11.8m) in the year leaving the School with a strong cash position of £153.9m at the year end. However, should the School decide to proceed with the redevelopment of the Centre Building and 44 Lincoln's Inn Fields sites, these funds will be consumed, making the need for a significant and successful fundraising operation all the more pressing.

Financial sustainability and going concern

The Council has reviewed the financial situation as at 31 July 2014, the financial forecasts for future years and demand for student places and is satisfied that the School is a going concern.

The Finance Committee has reviewed and reported to Council on the long term five-year forecasts and ten-year projections on a termly basis and the potential financial effects of variations in assumptions used to construct those forecasts. The Finance Committee has reviewed the level of surplus required to fund capital investment and other developments and is satisfied that retrospectively and prospectively the School is operating at the required level. The Audit Committee has reviewed and reported to Council on management's assessment of strategic risks. The Director of the School has reported to each meeting of Council on major developments in higher education and issues facing the School. The Council has received reports on non-financial indicators which are of significance to longer term financial sustainability. On the basis of these assurances, Council is satisfied that the School is operating in a financially sustainable manner.

When the School faces a decision with significant financial implications a detailed and focused review of the options, financial impact and risk is undertaken for and reviewed by Council and the relevant sub-committees of Council. During 2013-14 such exercises were undertaken on two occasions, the first to support and inform Council's decision to acquire 44 Lincoln's Inn Fields as it was clear that the opportunity to acquire the site was likely to attract competing offers from developers seeking planning consent for a residential development. Secondly there is work on-going as these accounts are being finalised to ensure that the decision over the redevelopment of the Centre Building site is financially sustainable and represents an effective use of School resources.

Indicators of financial sustainability

At its away-day in September 2014, Council reviewed a range of financial and non-financial indicators to assure itself about the sustainability of the institution. These "context statistics" included both financial indicators similar to those used by HEFCE in risk evaluation and a wide range of non-financial indicators, including research quality, student demand and student satisfaction data, league table positions, philanthropic donations, staff retention and estates quality measures.

Report of the Directors

The following table summarises some of the School's actual and forecast financial metrics and other non-financial measures and compares them against the sector.

The data clearly indicates that the School is in a strong position on many measures. However the Council is also mindful that the School's principal competition is increasingly from overseas. Although no direct comparators are available, it is clear that – in common with almost all UK higher education institutions – LSE is comparatively disadvantaged on both public funding and philanthropic endowment.

The past successes of the School are undeniably impressive, academically and financially but are no guarantee for the future and there is the risk that either complacency or the chance of failure inhibit innovations to the longer term detriment. To continue and build on past success will require innovation and investment, so a strong financial base and sound financial discipline that supports, while critically challenging and reviewing investment, is a prerequisite. A number of new interdisciplinary initiatives are being developed, some such as the new Institute for Public Affairs are already established, others are following closely behind such as the Institute for Global Affairs and others will be scrutinised over the coming months. All will be seeking philanthropic and research partners to ensure that the School's initial investment creates a sustainable, interdisciplinary body that pushes the School forward in a new and innovative manner.

Principal risks

There are other risks to financial sustainability that the School is addressing as it develops its strategic thinking for the future.

- More than most institutions LSE operates in an international context and so many of our concerns are outward looking. We remain concerned that issues relating to the UK Border Agency and student visas and the reporting of statements made by politicians may deter some students from applying to study in the UK. Likewise we face employment visa issues and these add to the difficulties of recruiting and retaining staff from overseas.
- We are also becoming aware of increasingly strong overseas competition, especially in Australia, and the emergence of private providers as issues which we need to watch carefully in the coming years.
- In the months in the run up to the 2014 REF census date, competition for staff was strong. Although this particular trigger for competition has passed we continue to face serious competition to recruit and retain our best faculty so the challenge remains to ensure that an effective reward policy is developed to attract new talent and retain existing faculty while ensuring long-term affordability.
- The School derives its income from four main sources: student fees, government grants, contracts for research and other work done for clients, and philanthropy. 2014-15 is the first year where we receive no direct government funding for teaching the incoming cohort of undergraduates. The value of government funding for research continues to decline in real terms and the success in the REF that the School has invested in achieving may not guarantee even current levels of support for research. To begin to address this risk the School is reviewing its operating model to ensure a proper alignment of revenues and investments in a financial environment where there is no longer significant recurrent public funding.

- While the School has been successful to some extent in philanthropic development in recent years, it does not enjoy the same level of endowment or income as US comparators, Oxford, Cambridge or some other UK universities. During 2014 the School has been reviewing its investment in development of philanthropic funding and concluded that there was a strategic imperative to make a significant investment in this area. The new director of Advancement, Chris Yates, has been recruited to lead the development of Advancement in seeking support for scholarships/bursaries, research, internationally competitive reward for academic staff and redevelopment of the estate at levels commensurate with the School's global reputation and influence.
- Finally, while some steps have been taken by their trustees to improve the long-term sustainability of the pension schemes – USS and SAUL – that the School's employees participate in, Council remains concerned about the long term sustainability of defined benefit schemes in an era of sustained low investment returns.

Financial instruments

The School's operations expose it to a variety of financial risks including the effects of changes in interest rates on debt, foreign currency exchange rates, credit risk and liquidity risk. During 2013-14 the School's principal financial instruments comprised investments, cash and bank deposits, gilts and bank loans, interest rate swaps to protect against rate changes and trade debtors and trade creditors that arise directly from its operations. The credit risk on bank deposits was limited because the counterparties are banks with high credit-ratings assigned by international credit rating agencies. The School has a limit of £20.0m that can normally be placed with any one bank group. During the year the School issued £125.0m of unsecured loan notes that will provide liquidity during the period of planned capital development with borrowing costs fixed at between 3.73 and 4.15 per cent. The School's other borrowings and borrowing facilities at fixed rates are delivered through an interest rate swaps agreement associated with the School's Barclays loan facility.

In October 2014 most of the cash held to fund planned developments was transferred into a diversified corporate bond investment fund management which JP Morgan are now managing on the School's behalf. The aim of the fund is to protect the capital sum and minimise the impact of inflation by generating a reasonable rate of interest.

Public benefit

We have reviewed the activities of the School for the year 2013-14 with regard to obligations under section four of the Charities Act 2011 and the Charity Commission's guidance on public benefit.

In this section, we set out some of the many ways in which the School delivers public benefit. The objectives of the School are set out in our Memorandum and Articles of Association. The public benefit objectives include education and research, but the School's ambitions go significantly beyond the intrinsic benefits of those activities. Since its foundation, LSE has sought to apply teaching and research to improve society, and that goal remains unchanged today, except that the School's global reach is greater than ever.

Our beneficiaries

The benefits and beneficiaries of LSE activities include students who benefit from their education at LSE, academia as a whole which benefits from research, and broader society which benefits from both, with well-educated graduates contributing to academia, the professions, public service, commerce and industry, and society in many fields, and our research influencing public policy for the good of society.

Report of the Directors

Widening participation and raising aspiration

At LSE we believe that all school students should have the opportunity to go on to higher education regardless of their background, and that it is our social responsibility to encourage and support them in exploring their options and making decisions about their future. We have always sought to recruit the best students, irrespective of socio-economic background, though we recognise that limited endowment funding constrains our ability to offer “needs blind” admission to overseas students.

LSE works with schools and colleges in the UK and offers a range of activities aimed at pupils, their teachers / advisors, and adult learners. These programmes are free for schools and colleges, being fully funded by LSE and through the generous support of private donors. These initiatives include the following:

Visits to schools and colleges – LSE works with schools and colleges in order to provide bespoke sessions to raise awareness of higher education, to raise aspirations and motivate students. Popular topics include: thinking about and choosing your university; the UCAS application process; student finance and budgeting; student life; applying to and studying at LSE; and personal statement workshops.

Moving On – Aims to ease pupils’ transition to secondary school by showing that change happens throughout life and can be a positive experience. It also serves as an opportunity to familiarise young people with higher education. It includes activities to promote independence and resilience, takes in a campus tour and culminates in a “graduation ceremony”.

Student tutoring – LSE students work in schools, under the supervision of teachers, to help pupils with their academic work. Tutoring usually involves LSE students tutoring for approximately an hour per week at a school or college for a nine-week period, working with pupils on a one-to-one or small group basis. The scheme benefits both the school children (in Years 6 to 12) and our undergraduate and postgraduate students who gain important work experience and take part in a valuable community programme.

Other examples of our outreach work with schools and colleges include:

- The LSE Mentoring Scheme which aims inter alia to help mentees to improve their performance in key stage assessments and at GCSE and A Level.
- Introduction to Social Sciences for those considering their GCSE choices.
- Promoting Potential Spring School – the Spring School provides opportunities for African-Caribbean boys from state secondary schools to learn about the range of subjects available to them at university. The programme also allows participants to develop key skills including research, networking and debating.
- The Black Achievement Conference – highlighting some of the positive achievements in the black community and inspiring children to “aim high”.
- Aiming for a College Education (ACE) and ACE High Days – preparing for university life.
- Year 11 Summer School – a social sciences Summer School providing students with the opportunity to experience some of the subjects available at LSE including Economics, History, Sociology, Government and Law.
- Pathways to Law (London), delivered in partnership with University College London, The Legal Education Foundation (formerly The College of Law) and The Sutton Trust.
- Alison Wetherfield Law Programme – a brand new law programme for 2014-15 comprising specialist law master classes and a national conference for students in Years 12 and 13.
- The Politics Conference.
- BSc Management Taster Day.
- LSE Choice – tools for successful application to LSE and other Russell Group universities.
- Student shadowing.
- Open days.
- Public lectures.
- Advising the Advisors Conference (information and guidance for teachers).

Report of the Directors

- Routes into Languages.
- LSE.FOCUS – a newsletter for schools and colleges; and
- Email an Alum – first-hand advice from graduates on what to expect at LSE and where an LSE education might lead.

Financial support

LSE is committed to ensuring that students from all social and economic backgrounds continue to apply to the School and that no-one is deterred from doing so because of financial considerations. Tuition fees are top-sliced to provide a generous scholarships budget with schemes in place to fund undergraduates and postgraduates.

The School's new Access Agreement for 2014 builds on past success, committing half of the additional fee income created by the introduction of variable fees (for UK and other EU undergraduates) in 2006, to be used for undergraduate bursaries, outreach and on-course support. The bursaries are available for all students in receipt of a full or partial maintenance grant and do not have to be repaid.

Overseas undergraduates and taught postgraduates from all backgrounds are able to access additional School schemes, which provide awards with a range of values assessed on need. There is a separate extensive scheme for PhD students.

In addition, the School has a range of scholarships funded by external donors and foundations, which again support study at all levels.

On-course financial help is available, in the form of the School's Student Support Fund. 2013-14 was the final year of the Government's Access to Learning Fund, but LSE will continue to support students who would previously have been eligible.

Public Events

The School's location in central London and our close links with Westminster, Whitehall and the City help to maintain our reputation as the place where the world comes to debate. Everyone is welcome to attend LSE's public events, where some of the most influential figures in the social sciences can be heard. Notable speakers at the School in the past year included LSE alumna Cherie Blair, the leading lawyer and women's rights campaigner; George Soros, Chairman of Soros Fund Management and the founder of Open Society Foundations (also an alumnus); Gail Kelly, Chief Executive Officer of the Westpac Group; Helen Clark, Administrator of the United Nations Development Programme and former Prime Minister of New Zealand; José Manuel Barroso, President of the European Commission; and Boris Johnson, Mayor of London.

LSE's Public Events programme includes lectures, debates, discussions and concerts. In order to maximise the opportunity for those outside of London and overseas to benefit from the programme, many were also made available online by video or podcast, with debate being sustained through social networking and syndication via sites such as Twitter, Facebook, RSS, Atom, iTunesU, Soundcloud, YouTube, etc. In 2013-14, there were over 9.6 million views of the School's rich media offerings via video and audio podcasts.

Arts

The School provides a range of art and entertainment programmes which are free of charge and open to all. These include exhibitions, music concerts, online photographic galleries, and our popular annual "Space for Thought" Literary Festival which this year attracted speakers including award-winning authors AS Byatt, Tracy Chevalier and Melvyn Bragg as well as BBC Today Programme's Evan Davies and the celebrated academic Margaret Macmillan.

LSE has an "open" campus in the heart of London, generously furnished with an interesting range of sculptures and installations for all to enjoy. We want to do what we can to continue to make London a beautiful space for residents and visitors alike and, to that end, continue to do all we can to transform the "public realm".

Volunteering

The School has a strong tradition of social awareness and engaging with the wider community. LSE supports such efforts through its dedicated Volunteer Centre. In

Report of the Directors

2013-14, the Centre saw a huge amount of interest from students who wanted to get involved in volunteering. LSE students completed a range of roles including mentoring, campaigning, fundraising, marketing and research. The School has been able to fund student-led projects, run a photography competition, invite over 30 charities on to campus for the annual Volunteering Fair and host an event to celebrate the commitment of LSE students to volunteering and fundraising. LSE and our students work with a range of charitable organisations with a broad reach – from action tutoring in inner-city London schools, to helping poor rural families in India, Nepal, Malawi and Zimbabwe. We are proud to be making a difference.

Library

LSE Library is one of the largest social sciences libraries in Europe, with designated status from Arts Council England, and unusually amongst university libraries, it is open to members of the public who need to use its collections. Over the past year, the Library has opened The Women's Library Reading Room, a 40-seat research facility providing access to the Library's extensive Archives and Special Collections, and has loaned items to the Tate Gallery for their exhibitions programme. The full catalogue of the Women's Library, Europe's foremost collection on the history and campaigns of women, is available online. The Library has launched several digital exhibitions, including World War One @ LSE, and The Papers of Lionel Robbins; all of the Library's digital exhibitions are freely accessible from the Library's website. Supporting LSE's Widening Participation programmes and working directly with schools, the Library also hosted visits, tours, and training for hundreds of school-aged students interested in pursuing higher education. A new Training and Outreach Room has been completed which will support this work.

Research

The School prides itself on a policy of engagement and the provision of research which seeks to address the burning issues of the day and influence public policy. The work of many of our research centres and academic departments has direct relevance to our charitable aims and the delivery of public benefit. A few examples include the following: The prevention and relief of poverty: the International Growth Centre, Asia Research Centre, Centre for the Analysis of Social Exclusion; Centre for Economic Performance; and Department of International Development.

The advancement of health or the saving of lives: LSE Health and Social Care, and the Centre for Human Rights.

The advancement of citizenship or community development: Cities, Spatial Economics Research Centre, Centre for the Analysis of Social Exclusion.

The advancement of human rights, conflict resolution or reconciliation or the promotion of religious or racial harmony or equality and diversity: Centre for Human Rights, Diplomacy and Strategy (IDEAS), International Relations; Government; Gender Institute, the Crisis States Research Network; and the Middle East Research Centre.

The advancement of environmental protection or improvement: Grantham Research Centre, Centre for Climate Change Economics and Policy, Department of Geography and the Environment.

The relief of those in need, by reason of youth, age, ill health, disability, financial hardship or other disadvantage: Centre for the Analysis of Social Exclusion, LSE Health and Social Care, Department of International Development, International Growth Centre, Centre for Economic Performance, and the Suntory and Toyota International Centre for Economics and Related Disciplines.

Research that has hit the headlines in the past year includes:

- a study led by Professor Martin Knapp, Director of the Personal Social Services Research Unit (PSSRU), found autism to be the most costly medical condition in the UK, at £36 billion per year. A separate study co-authored by Professor Knapp found the cost of dementia to be £26 billion per year to the UK economy.
- an earlier report from the PSSRU found half a million older and disabled people had lost their care since start of the recession;

Report of the Directors

- a research paper co-authored by Dr Michael Shiner, Associate Professor in LSE's Department of Social Policy, demonstrated that university applicants from black and ethnic minority backgrounds are less likely to receive conditional offers than comparable white British applicants;
- the EU Kids Online report, led by Professor Sonia Livingstone from LSE's Department of Media and Communications, found that more children now face bullying online than in the playground;
- the LSE IDEAS report from the LSE Expert Group on the Economics of Drug policy calling for an end to the war on drugs;
- a study co-authored by LSE's Gabriel Ahfeld found a significant link between house prices and internet speeds, with home buyers in London willing to pay up to 8 per cent above the market price for properties in areas offering very fast internet speeds;
- in his inaugural lecture as the first Regius Professor of Economics, Nobel Laureate Professor Christopher Pissarides called either for the Euro to be dismantled or for leading EU members to do what is necessary to make it growth-friendly.

A unique two-year project, Constitution UK, was launched in October 2013 by the Institute of Public Affairs which is giving the public a direct say in writing a proposed new UK Constitution. The project seeks input from ordinary English, Scottish, Welsh and Northern Ireland residents on how their country should be governed. The first year saw a mix of web-based and direct participatory activities which resulted in the identification of a series of common values and principles that should underlie a modern British constitution, culminating in a Constitutional Carnival in Summer 2014. The second year will be focused on working out the detail of the constitution via web-based mass participation.

Thank you

We would like to thank the many generous donors and sponsors, without whom LSE's public benefit activities would not be sustainable at their current scale. The School is indebted to the enthusiasm and engagement of members of the LSE Council, who receive no remuneration for their services as charity trustees.

Employment

The School promotes equality of opportunity for staff from all social, cultural and economic backgrounds and ensures freedom from discrimination on the basis of disability, gender, race, age, religion or belief, and sexual orientation, or personal circumstances. Equality and diversity are integral to the School priorities and objectives. The School will support inter-faith and inter-cultural dialogue and understanding and engage all students in playing a full and active role in wider engagement with society. The School's policy of employment with regard to disabled persons is to consider positively any registered disabled person who may apply for a post and provide similar opportunities for training, career development and promotion as for other members of staff.
