Report of the Director for 2007-08

For the last three years we have been working towards a total number of students in the School of around 9,000 by 2012. That remains the objective.

As new facilities become available, and some old space is taken out of use for refurbishment, the School's capacity will fluctuate a little in the next few years around that number. We expect most of the growth to come on the graduate side of the School, although we have bid for some additional undergraduate numbers from the funding council. Our aim is to keep the undergraduate programme at around 50 per cent domestic students, so if we were allocated additional domestic students we would be likely to recruit a small number of additional overseas students at the same time. Undergraduate demand on both the domestic and the overseas side is very strong, at 12 to 15 applications per place.

Nonetheless, in spite of this high demand we have some concerns about the School's teaching. Our rankings in the National Student Survey, which measures satisfaction with courses and teachers, are not as high as we would like. In order to understand better the reasons for these low rankings we established, in 2007/8, a teaching task force under Pro Director Professor Janet Hartley, which carried out a major review of teaching in the School. The conclusions of that review were presented to the Academic Board in the summer term and agreed by them. There are many detailed recommendations, but perhaps the most important is that we will invest to reduce class sizes, especially in Masters programmes. We will also take a number of steps to increase the status of teaching in the School and will take teaching performance in to account more comprehensively in promotion decisions. We will be monitoring the results of this exercise closely and hope to see some reflection in the form of improved student satisfaction figures in the next three to five years.

On the research side of the School we have been pleased to attract important new sources of funding, both public and private. During the year we were successful with two bids to the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) for new research centres. The first, on spatial economics, will be led by staff from the Department of Geography and Environment and will bring together leading researchers from the Universities of Oxford, Glasgow, Newcastle, Strathclyde and Swansea. The second, in a partnership venture with Leeds University, is for a centre focusing on the economics of climate change, chaired by Professor Lord Stern, an important new direction for the School. The ESRC investment of around £5m over the next five years is significant in itself. But we were also delighted to receive a commitment of over twice that amount from Mr Jeremy Grantham to set up a Grantham Research Institute in the School. Mr Grantham has generously donated a similar sum to Imperial College, which will work on the science of climate change, and we look forward to a productive collaboration between the two universities in the future. Our ambition is to become the most important centre for climate change research in Europe.

It would be beyond the scope of this report to describe all the new academic initiatives in teaching or research under way in the School. But we have drawn attention before to a major initiative to expand our management teaching by creating a new department of management, merging four smaller departments into one. That initiative has made considerable progress during the year with new degrees coming on stream, including a two year MSc in Management. These new degrees have attracted a large number of high quality applicants and have not reduced the attractiveness of the continuing programmes.

The Grantham donation was one of a number of significant new commitments to the School of a philanthropic kind. It was another very successful year for fund raising, with some £24m pledged during the year from a variety of sources. This almost maintained the record inflow in the previous year. The sums we are raising are now some three to four times what they were five years ago, though it is fair to say that it may be difficult to maintain this performance in more challenging economic circumstances which we seem likely to face in the next couple of years.

Among the other significant donations we have received was a large commitment from the Kuwait Foundation for the Advancement of Science to fund a research programme focusing on economic, political and social development in the Gulf. We also received a large donation from the Emirates Foundation in Abu Dhabi, to name the principal lecture theatre in our New Academic Building after the former ruler of the United Arab Emirates, Sheikh Zayed. We are most grateful to all these donors.

The New Academic Building on Lincoln's Inn Fields is the most important development in the School's estate since the opening of the new library in 2000. The total cost of the project, which delivers 125,000 sq ft of high quality space, is around £70m. The final completion occurred after the end of the year under review, and was on budget and in time for the new academic year. The teaching facilities in the new building will set a new standard for the School. The building also provides excellent new space for both the Management and the Law departments, including a purpose built moot court. It is too early to judge the success of the new building in operation, but we are confident it will work well.

It is not, however, by any means the end of our campus redevelopment. We see the need for at least two more major phases of development, as well as work to upgrade those existing facilities which will remain structurally unchanged. Our estate strategy needs to be flexible to take account of opportunities for development in the immediate environment of the School which may emerge. But the likelihood is that the next phase will be the redevelopment of the St Philip's hospital blocks to accommodate a large new building which would contain all the student-facing services in the School. The Students' Union would be re-housed in that building, together with the Careers Service, and the other School services which students use, such as the Language Centre. That should bring about a significant improvement in the student experience here.

Beyond that, there will be a need to redevelop the two 1960s towers at the centre of the campus, whose useful life is drawing to a close. But we do not think we can sensibly redevelop them, a project which would create significant disruption at the centre of the campus, until we have provided new accommodation for student services and related activities. We are broadly confident that these two projects, which would both be large, can be financed. But to do so will require us to maintain a healthy operating surplus, albeit not necessarily as large as those we have reported in the last two years. We will also require continued success in fund raising and some Government capital support. We have the capacity to raise additional debt, if we need to do so, secured on our existing estate, but we will be cautious in managing our debt profile. A few years ago, LSE was amongst the most highly indebted universities in the country. Our debt levels have come down significantly in recent years. However, in an environment in which we depend heavily on recruitment of international students we do not think it prudent to run a highly geared operation.

In addition to being a high quality building in terms of the standard of its fixtures and fittings, the New Academic Building is also, by a distance, the most environmentally effective building in our estate. We have planned to reach the highest 'excellent' ranking in the BREAAAM scale and succeeded in doing so. During the year we also established a new environment group to focus on ways of reducing the School's carbon emissions, and otherwise to minimise our impact on the environment and promote sustainability. That group is chaired by the Director and includes student representatives. Many constructive ideas for improvement have emerged from within the student body and we aim to capitalise further on their imagination and enthusiasm. We also hope there will be some read across from our climate change programme into the School itself. It would clearly be appropriate for us to be early adopters of ideas which emerge in the research context.

We have reported before on the School's international strategy. The partnerships we have developed with key schools elsewhere have continued to move ahead well, and all the new partnership degree programmes we have established are successful. During the year we continued with our programme of Asia forums, with a high profile event in Singapore, opened by the Singaporean Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong.

During the year we have also begun to focus attention on the School's engagement in Africa. We have long had links with African countries, and many African leaders were educated at LSE, but the connections need to be refreshed. The number of African students at the School has not fallen, though the percentage coming from Africa has dropped as the School has grown. We believe we could do more to strengthen existing links and develop new ones. One new initiative during the year was a conference on climate change which we ran in Kagali in collaboration with the Rwandan government, which brought in people from around East Africa to discuss ways in which the region will need to adapt their patterns of development to take account of the impact of climate change, and particularly of altered distribution of rainfall, on their populations. We hope to take that initiative further in the future.

Overall, the School seems to be well placed to continue its mission of providing high quality research and teaching of a broad range of social science in a global setting. We are financially sound and the strength of demand for our courses suggests we are offering programmes which are attractive to young people all around the world. The profile for our research is high, and our faculty's engagement with policy in the public, private and third sectors is strong. The mission of the School's management is to provide a sound platform on which our teaching and research can continue to develop and prosper.

Financial overview

For the financial year ending 31 July 2008 the School achieved a surplus before exceptional items of £26.5m which is equivalent to 13.9 per cent of gross income and compares to a surplus of £21.1m for 2006/07 (12.5 per cent of gross income).

The School's Finance and General Purposes Committee adopted a target surplus range of three per cent to four per cent of income in 2003, recognising that a sustainable surplus is required to fund loan repayments, to support capital and infrastructure investment and to provide the School with the flexibility to invest in new academic initiatives.

The School has achieved surpluses in excess of this level in recent years through a combination of excellent achievement in student recruitment, substantial contributions generated from activities that have been developed to achieve full utilisation of the School's physical and intellectual assets, and sound budgeting and financial management processes. These surpluses will fund substantial investment in infrastructure over the next few years and allow the School to continue to attract the best faculty and students even in the current difficult economic circumstances.

Income – total

Income grew by 12.6% in total. Tuition fees increased by 13.6% and now represent 48.1% of income compared to 47.7% in 2006/07. Success in fundraising saw endowment and investment income grow by £2.6m (45.6%) and the School's permanent endowment reached £56.9m at year end. Funding Council grants grew only 5.1% and represented 15.6% of total income.

2007/08 income

Students

The total number of full-time students at the School in 2007/08 was 8,535, an increase of 5.7 per cent, slightly ahead of the School's planned expansion to 9,000 by 2012.

Full-time student numbers 2003/04 – 2007/08

Overseas students (those from outside the United Kingdom or other European Union countries) account for roughly half the School's student population and for over two-thirds of tuition fee income, reflecting both the international flavour of the School's student body and our world-wide reputation.

Full-time students 2007/08

Income – Funding Council grants

Although the School has a relatively low proportion of HEFCE (Higher Education Funding Council for England) grant funding compared with most UK higher education institutions, the £29.0m received from HEFCE together with the £0.7m from JISC (the Joint Information and Infrastructure Systems Committee) is an essential contribution to the financial viability of the School, as is the SRIF (Science Research Investment Fund) research capital funding. The continuing disparity between the amount we are paid to teach home and EU undergraduates (the Government set tuition fee plus the HEFCE teaching grant) and the cost of delivering teaching remains a concern for the School. Nevertheless, although there is speculation from time to time that some universities might 'go private' to have freedom in setting undergraduate fees, there are no such plans at LSE.

Report of the Director for 2007-08

The School also benefitted from £2m capital grants to support improvement in research infrastructure.

Residences

The School operates approximately 3,500 bed spaces in 11 halls of residence and guarantees all first year taught masters and undergraduates a place. During vacation periods the halls operate on a commercial basis providing hotel accommodation for a wide range of customers, ranging from our own summer school students to casual visitors to London. The £6m per annum revenue generated from this activity is entirely used to subsidise student rents and enables us to continue to offer many rooms on a 31 week basis, in contrast to the commercial providers who have a growing presence in London and require students to contract for 40 weeks or longer.

Residences operates on a 'self financing' budgetary basis, with room rents set at a level which, after the subsidy from vacation business, is sufficient to cover operating costs, rents and capital charges.

Enterprise LSE Limited and Duke CE Limited

Enterprise LSE turnover and operating profit

Enterprise LSE Ltd (ELSE) is the wholly owned subsidiary of the School that exists to develop the potential for consultancy, executive education and related activities that the School's world-class faculty offers. 2007/08 has been a very successful year for the company with turnover up by 32 per cent and the operating surplus, which is remitted to the School through Gift Aid, up by 45 per cent to £1.9m. The Gift Aid paid to the School supports teaching and research activities. The company also provides an important opportunity for faculty to supplement their personal income, a useful mechanism for attracting and retaining key staff, valued at £1.4m in 2007/08.

Following the acquisition of a 30 per cent equity share in Duke CE Limited in July 2007 ELSE has continued to work very successfully with Duke in developing and delivering customised corporate education to a wide variety of multinational clients. Duke CE is ranked number one in customised corporate education in FT Customised Executive Education league table.

Research income

2007/08 research funding source

Income generated from research grants and endowments continues to grow, increasing by 10.5 per cent to £17.7m in 2007/08 as the School continues to benefit from the effects of full economic costing (fEC) from some of its key sponsors of research. Despite previous concerns that the implementation of fEC would result in a decrease in the overall volume of research grants funded, this has so far proved not to be the case. Indeed, income from contracts starting in 2007-08 was 16 per cent of total research income for the year. The overall number of research grants funded over the period rose by six per cent from 523 in 2006/07 to 555 in 2007/08. The Research Councils, primarily the ESRC, remain the largest funder of research, accounting for 37 per cent of the School's overall research income.

The School remains competitive in obtaining external funding for high quality peer reviewed research, where growth is a strategic goal. Where it is possible and appropriate to our academic aims, we also participate in commercial non peer reviewed research, though growth of research purely for income generation is not a strategic aim.

Expenditure

Total expenditure grew by 10.7%, with pay costs increasing by 10.9%, of which 3.8% was attributable to the pay awards in August 2007 and May 2008, 3.3% resulted from promotion and increments, and 3.8% from a net increase of 66 staff. Other operating expenditure grew in total by 12.8%, reflecting the growth in research activity, the investment in an offsite IT facility, expanded trading activities and estates refurbishment projects.

Partly through reinvestment of income and partly through successful fundraising, the School was able to increase the value of awards, bursaries and scholarships substantially. This year it rose by 14 per cent to £11.5m and it is now at a level which is amongst the highest in the UK.

Balance sheet and liquidity

During 2007/08 the School's net assets grew by 14.5 per cent. It is worth reflecting that they have more than doubled over the last five years, that net debt has fallen from £52m in 2004 to a position where cash deposits exceed debt, and £94m has been invested in fixed assets.

The School put in place a 25-year £75m amortising debt facility in December 2003, with £65m swapped into fixed rates. During the year, the Finance and General Purposes Committee has reviewed the adequacy of borrowing facilities, and concluded that while they are sufficient to meet capital commitments beyond the completion of the New Academic Building, it is appropriate to explore longer term options in anticipation of future estates developments, and that work has commenced.

Endowments and fundraising

The Campaign for LSE reached a successful conclusion in December 2007 having raised over £105m in gifts and pledges.

Endowments have been restated to exclude a physical property in accordance with the new Higher Education Statement of Recommended Practice and stood at £56.9m at the end of the financial year, an increase of 6.2 per cent on the year and a 46 per cent increase over the past five years.

Capital expenditure

During the year £0.7m was spent refurbishing academic space, and £1.4m on projects to improve access and facilities in the Library. In September 2008 the £70m development of the New Academic Building at 54 Lincoln's Inn Fields and a £2m project to refurbish the main refectory were completed. Once again, strong financial performance has allowed us to fund this work without recourse to additional drawdown of our borrowing facility.

Principal risks and uncertainties

The School's Strategic Plan addresses the key risks threatening the achievement of the School's strategic objectives over the next five years.

With a high proportion of income from student fees, the global economic situation and issues relating to student visas and immigration represent risks faced by the School. They are mitigated by the geographic diversity of the School's student intake, the current high number of applications per place, provision for potential under recruitment in our financial planning, and a low debt gearing.

Report of the Director for 2007-08

As discussed above, actions are being put in place to address the risk that arises from student satisfaction with teaching not being at the desired level. A process of five year planning and detailed annual monitoring operates to ensure the teaching programmes are relevant and world class in academic content. This also ensures that courses with lower student demand are reviewed and updated or replaced.

The School has developed and participates in a range of programmes to attract students from underrepresented groups. The high value of bursaries and scholarships is designed to encourage very able students to study at the School who do not otherwise have financial means to do so.

The quality of teaching is primarily determined by the quality of the faculty and the School continues to seek out and attract world class academics with competitive salaries, promotion prospects and sabbatical leave entitlement.

The School undertakes its financial planning is undertaken over a five and ten years' time horizon to reflect the long term nature of both staff development and capital investment planning. The School's Finance and General Purposes Committee reviews these plans and risks at least three times a year so that appropriate actions can be taken to address deviations from financial objectives.

The staff survey carried out in 2006 indicated high levels of satisfaction with the School as a place to work. Since then the central administration, the Library and IT Services have all retained Investors In People accreditation, and a Staff Consultative Council has been established to build on the existing sound base of good staff relations and improve employee engagement. It is planned to repeat the staff survey in 2009 as part of a process of monitoring risk in this area.

The risk that the School's infrastructure could fail to meet the increasing demands and expectations of staff and students is being addressed through an emerging Estates strategy for the redevelopment of the campus and a financial strategy to achieve financial surpluses sufficient to fund these investments.

The risk that the School's emergency planning and business continuity arrangements may be inadequate to respond to unforeseen events is being addressed by the recently appointed Director of Business Continuity. He is working, under the guidance of the School's senior officers, to develop and embed comprehensive plans to respond to a variety of major events. In addition, the School has recently entered in to a significant long term contract to provide state of the art off-site data storage, backup and recovery facilities, one of the first such arrangements in higher education.

Protecting and developing the School's reputation is key to its future. The maintenance of the highest standards for recruitment of both staff and students remains central to the School.

Health and safety

The School continues to have a good track record in health and safety management. The School's arrangements for managing significant risks such as asbestos and legionella have been examined and endorsed by the Health and Safety Executive, following a recent inspection of the School. The School continues to review and update its health and safety policy to ensure that we are equipped to manage emerging risks such as workplace health and work related stress. The School's health and safety committee monitors the operation of the School health and safety arrangements on behalf of Council.

The future

There have been significant declines in stock markets since the academic year end, some major financial institutions have failed, others have been taken over or restructured and governments worldwide have acted to restore liquidity and confidence. We face global credit market problems, and the prospect of recession or slower growth for some years to come.

The School, and students at the School, will not be protected from these developments. It will affect graduate career choices and it will increase the demands on student financial support for those individuals who are most affected. Taken together with demographic trends in the UK and increasing competition from overseas Universities, the Higher Education sector as a whole cannot assume continuation of growth in demand and funding experienced in the past five years.

In this environment, it is right to focus less on growth over the next five years, to maintain quality where it is already excellent, in areas such as research, academic teaching standards, library services and careers and to improve quality in other areas, such as students' experience and the estate. And understanding the causes of these unprecedented economic challenges and contributing policy advice to their resolution remains the heart of what we do at the School.
