Report of the Director for 2009-2010

Twelve months ago, in this space, I noted that the UK economy remained in recession and that the prospect for public expenditure support for Higher Education was rather poor. Since then, the UK has emerged from recession, albeit rather hesitantly and weakly. By contrast the public expenditure prospect has deteriorated. The new coalition government elected in May has resolved to cut the budget deficit more quickly and sharply than was planned by the outgoing Labour administration.

There are lively debates among economists both in LSE and elsewhere about the wisdom of this hair-shirt approach, but from the perspective of managing an institution in receipt of public funds the prospect is clear: government grants both for teaching and research are going to fall, and perhaps quite a long way. The details will not be known until some time after the Comprehensive Spending Review in the autumn, but there is a widespread expectation that the higher education budget will be cut by between a quarter and a third, and for individual institutions the outcome could be even worse.

Against that background the financial result reported here for the year 2009-10 is particularly welcome. Even though grant funding has already been cut in some areas the School remains in healthy surplus. That is only partly because government funding as a share of our total income, at 14 per cent, is somewhat smaller than the sector average. In fact the surplus is largely attributable to the success of what one might call 'noncore' activities. Over the last few years the surpluses which arise on these activities have grown healthily. Especially important contributors are the Summer School, now with well over 4,000 students, LSE Enterprise, which markets consultancy and executive education services around the globe, the University of London International Programmes, and income from room hire and from letting our residence rooms outside the university terms. The income from these activities essentially subsidises the core functions of teaching degree programmes and research.

It is very important for the School that these activities should remain healthy. If they do, then we will be somewhat cushioned from the impact of government grant cuts, but cuts on the scale we fear will not be absorbed without some changes to the way in which we work. So we have established a group looking for economies and for increased revenue generation opportunities, to help us manage our way through. Initial results from that exercise are reasonably promising.

Overall, our firm intention is to maintain the quality of both teaching and research as far as possible, while living within a somewhat reduced financial envelope. That is a challenge which I believe we can meet.

At the same time, we can and must maintain progress towards our other long-term objectives, even though that progress might not be as rapid as we would ideally wish. Over the year we have continued to improve the quality of our estate. There is nothing quite as dramatic as the opening of the New Academic Building in November 2008 to report. Nonetheless, we have continued to invest in enhancing the quality of our existing building stock and faculty, administrative staff and students have, I believe, all noticed beneficial changes. The main entrance to the School has recently been reopened in a significantly enhanced form, for example. During the year we also completed the acquisition of Sardinia House, opposite the New Academic Building, which will provide much needed elbow room as we redevelop the centre of the campus over the next few years. Planning permission was granted for the New Student Centre at the end of September 2010 and agreement to purchase the Land Registry Building on 32 Lincolns' Inn Fields was reached in October 2010, after the year end.

Report of the Director for 2009-2010

On the research front, we have announced a new Middle East Centre, with significant funding from the Emirates Foundation in Abu Dhabi, which will open for business in the 2010-11 academic year. We have also secured funding from a generous alumnus to endow a new chair in private equity in the Finance Department. Significant additional funding has been attracted into the global governance centre and we welcomed our new Chair in African Development, a key building block in our Africa initiative, initially supported by alumni through the Annual Fund. At the same time we have signed an institutional partnership agreement with the University of Capetown.

In spite of the continued difficult economic and financial background, our fundraising has moved ahead reasonably well. For the long term it is particularly good to note that the Annual Fund, which assembles small donations from alumni, has continued to grow year on year. The government's matched funding scheme has certainly helped. We remain a very long way from the performance of American universities who have been actively fundraising for much longer than have we have, but the trends are all moving in the right direction. That is fortunate, as we will need a little help from our friends even more in the next few years than the last.

The most significant development on the teaching front this year has been the launch of a new course – LSE100: Understanding the Causes of Things. One conclusion from the Teaching Taskforce report two years ago was that some of our degree courses are quite narrow in their focus. That carries some significant advantages, in that LSE graduates in economics, or politics, have typically studied at greater depth than their equivalents with an economics major from a top US university. But it is arguable that they miss out on some of the intellectual broadening which universities should seek to offer. The new course attempts to fill that gap, and also to give our students the opportunity for more team working and class presentation.

The format of the course, which we have been piloting over the last year, is modular with segments on some of the big issues of the day, such as climate change (how do we know it is happening and what do we do about it) or financial crises (why do they happen and how should governments respond). The lectures are given by our most senior faculty, with class discussions to supplement the big lectures. From 2011-12 Academic Year all LSE undergraduates will be required to take LSE 100 on top of the workload in their chosen degree programme. We hope this will act as a unifying experience for LSE students in the future, and ensure that all of our graduates have good understanding of some of the biggest political, economic and social issues of the day.

Sustainability

Although immediate focus of the sector has shifted somewhat to financial sustainability, the School remains committed leadership in environmental sustainability, both academically and in our own practice. This commitment has been recognised with 'LSE100' achieving the prestigious Green Gown Award for exceptional sustainability initiative in the 'Courses' category, and numerous other awards reported on elsewhere in these accounts.

Financial overview

For the financial year ending 31st July 2010 the School achieved a surplus for reinvestment of £19.2m (2008-09 £17.6m) equivalent to 8.8 per cent of turnover (2008-09 8.7 per cent). This surplus includes £1.2m from the recovery of pre 1996 VAT and £1.0m of funding from the 'Matched Funding Scheme' for voluntary giving. Excluding these items the operating surplus for 2009-10 was £17.0m, 7.7 per cent of turnover.

Report of the Director for 2009-2010

In 2003 the School adopted a target surplus range of 3 per cent to 4 per cent of turnover. This target recognised that a sustainable surplus is required to fund loan repayments, to support capital and infrastructure investment and to provide the School with the flexibility to invest in new academic initiatives. Strong student recruitment, growth in contribution from 'non core' activities and effective financial management have enabled consistently strong surpluses. In view of the prospective economic climate, we are fortunate to begin from such a sound base and I am pleased to report that we are planning to maintain the increased investment in teaching initiated by our Teaching Task Force review in 2008, and an ambitious capital investment plan. This is all aimed at ensuring the School can continue to attract the best faculty and students and provide them with an excellent environment in which to study and research. During 2011 our Finance Committee will review the School's financial strategy to assess whether the current 3 per cent to 4 per cent target remains sound in the changed economic environment we now face.

Income – Total

Gross income grew in total by 8.3 per cent (2008-09, 6.8 per cent). Tuition fees increased by 10.2 per cent, and represent just under 50 per cent of our income. There was strong growth in research grants and contracts income (up by 17.7 per cent) and income from other sources grew by 9.3 per cent.

Endowment and investment income consists of two elements: income generated by endowments to meet expenditure on bursaries, research and other academic activities, and interest earned on School cash and term deposits. The latter fell sharply during 2009-10 despite higher cash balances throughout the year, because of significantly lower rates of interest.

Income: Funding Council Grants

At only 13.9 per cent of total income the School has a relatively low proportion of HEFCE (Higher Education Funding Council of England) grant funding compared with most UK higher education institutions. Nevertheless the £30.4m grant together with £0.2m from JISC (the Joint Information and Infrastructure Systems Committee) is an essential contribution to the financial viability of the School, as have been the various rounds of capital funding and HEIF.

Although Funding Council grants increased by 3.7 per cent compared to 2008-09, this includes funds received from the 'Matched Funding Scheme' for voluntary giving. The core block grant for teaching and research actually fell by 2 per cent in cash terms. This is particularly troubling in a year where pay, determined largely by a national settlement, and other costs rose substantially.

Full-time students 2009-10

On the research side, the 2009-10 grant was the first to be allocated based on the 2008 Research Assessment Exercise (RAE). It is therefore very disappointing that despite the School's very strong performance which matched the 2001 RAE, the underlying QR allocation fell substantially and has only been supported temporarily for 2009-10 by £1.5m of non-recurrent moderation and transitional funding. LSE was, in overall terms, the second highest ranked multi-faculty university, yet saw its funding fall, while the national allocation rose.

On teaching grant, the continuing disparity between the amount we are paid to teach home and EU undergraduates (the government capped tuition fee plus the HEFCE teaching grant) and the cost of delivering the teaching remains a concern for the School. The School is awaiting with interest the outcome of the university funding reviews in the hope that representations highlighting the importance of adequate funding for the Social Sciences as well as the so-called STEM subjects are heeded.

Students

The School had 8,977 full time students in 2009-10, an increase of 350 over the previous year. This is slightly ahead of the plan for expansion of the School to 9,000 full time students by 2012 and is a contributing factor to achieving a surplus above the 3-4 per cent of turnover target. Overseas students (those from outside the United Kingdom or other European Union countries) account for roughly half the School's student population reflecting both the international flavour of the School's student body and our world-wide reputation.

Report of the Director for 2009-2010

Financial support for students

It is especially pleasing to report that over the past five years, through a combination of reinvestment of income and successful fundraising, the School has significantly increased the funds awarded in bursaries, scholarships and awards.

Income – Halls of Residence

The School operates 3,765 bed spaces across 11 halls of residence and University of London halls and we are able to offer the guarantee of a place to all first year undergraduate students. During vacation periods the halls operate partly on a commercial basis through a trading subsidiary, LSE Lets Limited, providing hotel accommodation for a wide range of customers. In 2009-10 this trading activity generated £5.4m of revenue. The surplus from this is used to subsidise student rents and to contribute to the School's overall surplus. Residences operate on a 'self financing' basis, with room rents set at a level which, after the subsidy from vacation business, is sufficient to cover operating costs, rents, capital charges and fund new investments.

LSE Enterprise Limited and DUKE CE Limited

LSE Enterprise Ltd is the wholly owned subsidiary of the School that exists to develop the potential for consultancy, executive education and related activities that the School's faculty offers.

The company delivers its activities mainly through its two trading operations, LSE Executive Education and LSE Consulting, as well as through a joint venture with Duke Corporate Education Limited. Projects range from training civil servants from overseas countries with structured executive teaching, through to complex interdisciplinary commercial research projects applying academic methodologies to major policy and commercial questions. These activities connect the School's academics to senior industry figures by creating opportunities for their research to deliver insight and impact on government and industry alike.

In the face of a very challenging business environment during 2009-10 the company continued to deliver good revenue and profitability. Turnover was £7.8m, down 4.0 per cent on the previous year, with 21.5 per cent profitability returning a gift aid payment to the School of £1.7m. The Gift Aid paid to the School supports teaching and research activities and the company also provides an important opportunity for faculty to supplement their income, a useful mechanism for attracting and retaining key staff. In 2009-10 this contributed £2.2m (2008/09 £1.8m) to LSE academics' income.

Research Income

Income generated from research contracts, grants and endowments continues to grow, increasing 17.7 per cent to £23.9m in 2009-10. The UK Research Councils remain the largest funders of research, accounting for a third of the School's overall research income. Income from this source remains stable, with a marginal increase as the financial impact of full economic costing support by the Research Councils has now matured. During 2009-10 the DFID funded International Growth Centre (IGC) accelerated work on its research programme, accounting for a substantial increase of income from Government funding of 42.0 per cent. The start of several major European Union contracts under the Seventh Framework Programme, and the change in EC funding methodology to enable institutions to recover directly allocated costs, contributed significantly to the 50 per cent increase from this sponsor category. The trend seen over the last two years of gradual reduction in income from UK charitable organisations has continued this year with a further drop of 26.0 per cent. Evidence suggests that fewer bids are being submitted to the sector than hitherto, although the reason for this trend is as yet unclear. Research funded by other external sources continued to grow, with an increase of 15 per cent. Notable funding during the year came from the Alfred Herrhausen Society's support for the LSE Cities programme, Munich Re and the Reserve Bank of India. The School's strategy remains to compete successfully for high quality peer reviewed research. Where it is possible and appropriate to our academic aims, we also participate in commercial non-peer reviewed research, though undertaking research of low academic benefit purely for income generation is not a strategic aim.

Expenditure – Total

Total expenditure grew by 8.9 per cent (2008-09, 13.3per cent) with pay costs increasing by 9.4 per cent, of which 1.2 per cent was attributable to the pay award from August 2009 and the full year effect of the October 2008 award, 2.0 per cent to the increase in employer contributions to USS, 2.4 per cent to promotions, increments, honoraria and additional work and 5.3 per cent to an overall increase of 168 full time equivalent staff and changes to graduate teaching assistant contracts. These increases were partly offset by a 0.5 per cent saving from 'Pensions Plus', a salary sacrifice based pension contribution scheme that was introduced in July 2009. Other operating expenditure grew by 7.4 per cent (2008-09, 12.4 per cent).

Report of the Director for 2009-2010

Balance sheet and liquidity

During 2009-10 the School's net assets grew by 13.8 per cent (2008-09, 9.4 per cent) to £336.9m.

Cash at bank and term deposits rose to £93.0m during 2009-10 increasing the School's net cash position (cash plus cash on deposit less borrowings) to £59.7m. The School has ambitious capital investment plans and holds a £75.0m amortising loan facility of which £33.3m is currently drawn. The School's Finance Committee reviews borrowing capacity on a regular basis and considers it adequate to accommodate our current medium term plans.

Endowments and fundraising

During 2009-10 the School received £15.1m (2008-09, £8.1m) in endowments from a combination of new donations and receipts from existing pledges. Despite the increasingly uncertain economic outlook, fundraising has been particularly successful with gifts to create a Middle East Centre and to establish a chair in Private Equity totaling £7.5m, and a further 8 gifts in excess of £200,000. As a consequence the endowment grew by 26.6 per cent to £72.6m, accelerating a trend established in recent years. As already mentioned, the School received £1.0m from the HEFCE Matched Funding Scheme which is accounted for on a receivables basis in the Income and Expenditure account and transferred to Endowments. Under this scheme the School is eligible to receive a maximum of £2.8m over three years and £1.0m paid in the first year at a rate of £1 for every £3 raised. The School expects to receive the balance of the £2.8m allocation in 2010-11 and 2011-12.

Capital Expenditure

Over the last five years the School has invested £84.5m in fixed asset additions. Just before the start of 2009-10 the £8.9m acquisition of Sardinia House was agreed and £10.0m was spent during 2009/10 on capital projects. The largest elements of this were investment to refurbish and enhance existing School buildings and the design work for the New Student Centre planned for the St Philips site.

A scheme to improve environmental sustainability and upgrade the windows at Rosebery Hall was completed and the three additional flats, suitable for relocating or visiting academics are being created in the heart of the Houghton Street campus. This scheme brings the total number of flats available for academics to 47.

The New Students' Centre, to be built on the current St Philips site, will house the Students'

Union, including a major venue space, catering outlets, exercise and fitness facilities, space for student societies and a media centre, along with School services such as residences, multi-faith centre and the LSE Careers Service. Planning consent was granted in September 2010 for the project that is planned to cost £38.0m and open in 2013. Unfortunately, the forthcoming VAT increase to 20 per cent has added £0.7m to the development cost. In October 2010 the School agreed to purchase the former Land Registry Building at 32 Lincolns' Inn Fields for £37.5m. This building is ideally located close to the existing campus and will provide over 80,000 square feet of teaching and academic space. As it is in excellent condition it should be largely ready for occupancy in Michaelmas Term 2011. Our strong financial performance in recent years has allowed us to fund this purchase without additional borrowing.

Principal Risks and Uncertainties

The School's Strategic Plan addresses the key risks threatening the achievement of its strategic objectives over the next five years. Protecting and developing the School's reputation is vital. The maintenance of the highest standards for recruitment of both staff and students remains central. With a high proportion of income from student fees, the global economic situation and issues relating to student visas and immigration are significant risks. They are mitigated by the geographic diversity of the School's student intake, the current high number of applications per place, provision for potential under recruitment in our financial planning, and a low debt gearing. The School has responded successfully to the uncertainties associated with Home Office visa procedures and will continue to monitor developments in this area very closely. Students from the United States represent a significant minority of our overseas students and so I am pleased to say that the School was able to play a sector wide role in expediting changes in US government backed student loan arrangements. These changes have seen a transition to the direct payment to institutions of the loans critical for supporting US students study at the School.

Staff at the school are also recruited from amongst the best in the world, and improving student satisfaction is central to the School's five year strategic plan and actions are in place to address the risk that arises from low student satisfaction with teaching. A process of five year planning and detailed annual monitoring operates to ensure that teaching programmes are relevant and sophisticated. This also ensures that courses with lower student demand are reviewed and updated or replaced. The quality of teaching is primarily determined by the quality of the faculty and the School continues to seek out and attract world class academics with competitive salaries, promotion prospects and sabbatical leave entitlement. It is not yet clear how the government's implementation of immigration controls and increasing tax rates will affect international recruitment and retention in the future.

Financial planning is undertaken over a ten year time horizon to reflect the long term nature of both staff development and capital investment planning. The School's Finance Committee reviews these plans and risks at least three times a year so that appropriate actions can be taken to address risks to financial objectives. This process is supported by an annual governing body awayday that focuses on strategic issues and a small working group of Finance Committee that meets each term to consider in more detail particular themes identified by Finance Committee.

The staff survey carried out in 2009 indicated a high level of satisfaction with the School as a place to work. A Staff Consultative Council is operating and building on the existing sound base of good staff relations and improving employee engagement. The School has developed an integrated and comprehensive approach to the planning for and coordination of responses to major adverse or unforeseen events. Work in this area has seen the successful implementation of an outsourced off-site data storage, backup and recovery facility, removal of single points of failure from our on-site data network, comprehensive plans to deal with the implications of pandemics and the establishment of an offsite emergency management centre. In addition, all major administrative and service areas have developed contingency plans consistent with HEFCE guidance.

Conclusion

Against the financial background I have described, I would be surprised if any university head in the UK will be inclined this year to end his or her annual report on an upbeat note. Managing universities in a cold climate will be difficult. It would be foolhardy to suggest that that LSE could be insulated from these financial pressures. But, as I said last year, I am confident that we can manage our way through as long as the School and all its supporters pull together.
