Welcome from the new Director: Professor Craig Calhoun

The London School of Economics and Political Science is an extraordinary institution. I am delighted to have been appointed Director from September 2012

Professor Judith Rees

First, I must pay tribute to Judith Rees for her exceptional contribution during her term as Director from May 2011 to August 2012. While overseeing the work to implement the recommendations of the Woolf Report, she has also led the School in another very successful year's teaching, research and public engagement activities. And its tenth consecutive year of above target financial contribution. I am personally indebted for her warm welcome and commitment to an effective handover and I look forward to working with her as she resumes her post as Director of the Grantham Research Institute on Climate Change and the Environment.

Our goals

My primary long-term goals are to sustain and, where possible, to enhance LSE's many existing strengths and to focus its identity and sense of purpose. Today's staff and governors are stewards of the world's foremost social science university and a school that is special in many other ways, including its public presence in Britain, its traditions of critical, creative, and cross-disciplinary study, and its remarkable global character. I want the School to be outstanding in research, dedicated to offering students an exceptional education, and engaged with public issues – partly through teaching and research and also through a range of other connections to policy and debate in London, Britain, Europe and the world. I hope these goals are shared by the whole LSE community, as meeting them will be a collective task. We also need to enable individual staff to thrive in their academic pursuits and, with colleagues in administration, I will try to ensure that LSE is a good and productive place to work.

Strategic choices

With these goals in mind, I look forward to working together with all at LSE, and our colleagues, friends, alumni and partners in our wider networks across the world. One part of this work will be consideration of some big questions for LSE. While I know some of the questions, I'm counting on the LSE community to raise others and to work together to develop the answers. These issues include how we respond to changes in university and student financing in the UK, upheavals in Europe, and increased global competition. Higher education and research face a very turbulent environment. But strategic choice is not only about how we respond to external pressures (and opportunities). It is also about what we want to achieve and how we pursue our goals proactively. It is about assessing what we do well and what we can do better. Decisions about development of philanthropic income and continuing redevelopment of the estate need to be taken in relation to others: will we enrol the same number of students, what will they will study, and how may teaching itself change? Our commitment to excellence in research is not simply generic, but requires us to set priorities for investments ranging from space for research centres, to IT, to new faculty positions to keep us at the forefront of the intellectual fields to which we are committed. Even preserving features we don't want to change demands a strategy to secure the necessary resources and the participation of the whole LSE community in that effort.

London

The Olympics and Paralympics have shown that London is an exciting, vibrant, cosmopolitan and surprisingly human place where people from all around the world want to come. We benefit a great deal from the School's location at the heart of London, but it also presents challenges. Hopefully, the government will sort out the issues relating to immigration that are discouraging some students from considering it as a place to study, and that add to the difficulties of non EU citizens who wish to work here or to visit and to make their contribution to the UK's rich academic environment. More challenging, while there are unparalleled opportunities for residents of London to enjoy cultural, social and academic activities, including LSE public events, at little or no cost to themselves, London is becoming a very expensive place to make home. We will need to develop creative solutions to ensure that we can continue to attract and retain world class faculty from around the world.

Financial position

LSE is fortunate to be in a strong financial position – in the short term. We are grateful that our accounts show a healthy surplus. This excess of revenue over immediate expenses provides our ability to meet longer term costs including capital improvements – like new buildings and remodelling that improves our campus. Our wonderful New Student Centre is made possible by a combination of such surplus and a gift from Professor Saw for whom it is named. Such philanthropy is also vital to the future of the School.

The day to day work of the School does not stop for the next year or so while we contemplate strategy. It is the final year of work up to the 2014 Research Excellence Framework, and all departments and research centres are working hard to ensure that the result reflects the outstanding quality and impact of research of which the LSE academic community is capable. It is also the first year of the £9,000 cap for UK/EU undergraduate students, albeit that LSE, being different, charges only £8,500. All students should benefit from the work that the Teaching Task Force under Professor Janet Hartley's leadership has done to improve teaching quality at the School in recent years, though there is still more to do.

A new term

Just as I started my term of office, around 9,000 students also started a new term – for the majority, their first term – at the School. It is an exciting time, and an exciting place, full of challenges and full of opportunities. I am sure we will all work hard, learn much, enjoy it and, in our different ways, develop as people and make our contribution to LSE and the wider world. It is a privilege to be here.

Craig Calhoun

Director (from September 2012)

Report of the Director of the School for 2011-2012:

Professor Judith Rees

My two main priorities when taking over as Director in May 2011 were to ensure that the School learned the lessons from the Woolf Report and to get our focus back on teaching excellence, research of international quality and effective public engagement. The work has been very much a team effort. I want to express my heartfelt thanks for the exceptional support of staff, students, Council members, other governors and all of the School community during my short period of service as Director.

Students

First, on student admissions I can report that applications for 2012-13 entry remain strong, with 13 applicants per place for Home/EU undergraduate students and 16 per place for other overseas students. There has been some reduction in applications where A*, A, A, is now specified for some courses.

Many of our fears over the challenges of moving to the new fees regime do not appear to have materialised. There is no direct evidence so far that the introduction of fees has resulted in reduced applications to the School, nor does there appear to have been a marked move away from disciplines which are not obviously linked to employment. However, there will be a need to monitor the situation closely, as there is now much competition for students with good "A" level grades and we need to ensure that our bursary scheme allows high quality students from disadvantaged backgrounds to come to LSE.

Under the HEFCE's student number allocation arrangements that are due to come into place for 2013, the School will no longer have any effective cap on the home/EU students it can take. Next year we should be able to take all the students we wish who achieve ABB or better in the "A" level exams. In practice we rarely admit students with "A" level grades below ABB so we will no longer come under numbers control. A number of Universities have already announced that they will increase their student intake, most notably Bristol and University College London. This makes it an opportune time to take forward the debate on the size and shape of the School, which is one of Craig Calhoun's key strategic priorities.

Although postgraduate taught applications to the School are down only very slightly, there is some potential concern about the level of applications from some areas in comparison with 2011-12.

I am delighted that under Professor Janet Hartley's leadership the actions of the Teaching Task Force have resulted in further improvement in student satisfaction in the National Students' Survey, but there is more to do to ensure we are in line with the best in all subjects. Also, at present the National Student Survey covers only undergraduate programmes. The government wants to run it, or something equivalent to it, at taught Masters level. We have run a pilot internal postgraduate survey during the year, and will be looking to ensure excellent student satisfaction at all levels in the coming years.

Financial situation

The School's financial position remains strong. For the tenth consecutive year there is a relatively high surplus, the School's cash deposits are greater than its debt and it is forecast that sufficient surpluses will be generated to finance continued estate improvement for the foreseeable future. I am pleased to report that the long term investment fund to support endowment funds, the proposal for which the Council ratified earlier in the year, has now been set up with initial funding of £10m. It will clearly be many years before the fund will allow us a significant cushion against adverse events or provide us with the flexibility we will need to remain competitive, but a start has now been made.

Fundraising in the year did see a dip, but I remain encouraged by the commitment to LSE of both our 100,000 plus alumni and other friends and supporters. I see the development of philanthropic income playing an increasingly important role in maintaining our financial health. However for the foreseeable future our ability to fund our academic activities will depend on how well we can respond to the challenges of remaining at the forefront of social science research, able to recruit the best staff and students, while developing management and governance systems which are cost effective and responsive to change and encourage innovation.

Report of the Director of the School for 2011-2012:

Professor Judith Rees

Research

Most people at the School accept that we are now operating in a more competitive environment where the quality and performance of the research and teaching staff will be critical in maintaining the School's reputation and attracting funding.

Increasing research funding from non-HEFCE sources is now even more important given the cessation of funding for research rated in the RAE/REF as being of 2* quality or below. Work has begun to improve support and encouragement to staff to bid for research grants and contracts, but we maintain a position of not seeking funding for work that does not lead to high quality research or research impact.

Staff

We are seeking to add to our staff through investment designed to attract the social science research leaders of the future. During the year Finance Committee approved an additional £3m per annum for a Research Quality Investment Fund. This will allow us to hire about 20 outstanding academics ahead of the 2014 Research Excellence Framework assessment.

Over 25 per cent of the academic staff aged between 25 and 49 are now from outside the EU and we anticipate that this percentage is unlikely to fall if we are successful in recruiting the highest calibre of staff. We are also very concerned that, as with students, new immigration and visa requirements may become a significant barrier to recruitment of the best staff.

Management Changes

There have been significant changes in the senior management team in the year. Two colleagues have retired after outstanding service: Adrian Hall, Secretary and Director of Administration and Jean Sykes, Chief Information Officer. Professor Janet Hartley has returned to academic work on Russian history after her very successful term as Pro Director (Teaching and Learning) and has been succeeded by Professor Paul Kelly, former Head of Department of Government. Simeon Underwood has been promoted to Director of Academic Services and Academic Registrar and Andy Farrell, while continuing as Director of Finance and Facilities has gained additional responsibilities for IT services. We have three outstanding new recruits: Susan Scholefield as School Secretary, Nick Deyes as Director of Information Management and Technology, and, last but not least, Professor Craig Calhoun, as Director from 1 September 2012. To provide continuity the School is fortunate that Professor George Gaskell agrees to remain as a Pro-Director.

Intense research culture wins LSE trust, admiration and funding

The demand for universities to produce high quality research is stronger than ever. In 2014, the Research Excellence Framework will assess the published research for all UK universities and the outcome will shape the allocation of public funding of research for years to come.

LSE is working hard on its submission – but there are already other measures which suggest the quality of its academic work.

For example, the sheer number of grants made to LSE researchers shows how their proposed projects capture the imagination and set the agenda. Over the last five years, the number of active grants funding research at LSE has ranged from 432 to 479 annually.

And the large majority of these feature LSE academics as the leader, or co-leader, of the research project in question – from 309 five years ago to 349 in the latest financial year.

Since there are the equivalent of 963 full-time academic staff at LSE, this means that well over a third of them are leading live research projects.

This level of immersion in high quality research was one of the reasons why LSE did so well in the last national assessment of research quality (the 2008 RAE). We had the highest percentage of world-leading research of any university in the country and were rated best in economics, law, social policy and European studies.

LSE's ambition for 2014 is to do better still, to show that the reason scarce research funds are so often trusted to LSE is a confidence that the results will continue to light up the world.

The Woolf report

It was inevitable that much time and effort have been put during the year into dealing with the implementation of the recommendations from the Woolf Report. All 15 recommendations have been, or are in the process of being implemented. For some actions, it will take two or three more years to embed them fully and to measure their effectiveness.

The ethical proposals in Woolf – the overarching Ethics Code, the Ethics Policy Committee, and the Ethics (Grants and Donations) Panel – have been put in place but it will take time to ensure that they work well in practice.

All of the recommendations in the (post Woolf) Hunter Review on research governance have been accepted. They will have important implications for the way research is assessed and managed at LSE. The aim is to have governance structures which ensure formal and regular academic scrutiny of all named research initiatives within the School.

Finally, the implementation of the recommendations of the Lapping Review of Council effectiveness will need to be monitored and an assessment made of how far they, along with other measures, address the concerns over School governance raised by Woolf.

Conclusion

2011-12 has been a challenging year for the School, but we have pulled together and had a successful year in almost all important areas. My sense is that the School is now in pretty good heart and staff and student morale is generally high. My job as Director is done. It was hard work and a privilege, and I return to my research. People are feeling very positive about the future for the School under Craig Calhoun's leadership and I wish him and the whole School all success.

Professor Judith Rees

Director (until 31 August 2012)

Report of the Directors

Business review and principal activities

The principal activities of the School in the year under review were Higher Education, Research and related additional activities. These additional activities include consultancy, conferences, public lectures, the provision of catering and accommodation services and the publication of academic journals.

Financial overview

For the financial year ending 31 July 2012 the School achieved a surplus of income over expenditure of £24.7m, equivalent to 10.1 per cent of turnover, compared to £21.2m for 2010-11 (9.1 per cent of turnover). This surplus included £0.5m (2010-10 – £1.2m) received from the HEFCE “Matched Funding Scheme” for voluntary giving. The 2010-11 surplus included an exceptional surplus of £2.3m from the sale of two small residential properties.

The School sets a budget based on assumptions concerning income and expenditure that is designed to ensure a sustainable long term surplus of income over expenditure in the range of three to five per cent of turnover. This target recognises that a sustainable surplus of at least that amount is essential to fund loan repayments, to support capital and infrastructure investment and to provide the School with the flexibility to invest in new academic initiatives. A combination of strong student recruitment, an increase in the contribution from ancillary activities and strong financial management have delivered consistent surpluses in recent years and 2011-12 is no exception. Over the past five years the School has achieved an average surplus of 11 per cent, generating £109.4m which has allowed the School to pay down debt, achieve a significant net cash position and to make great progress in improving and expanding the campus. The Council is concerned about the prospect of significant reductions in public funding of higher education in the coming years. To ensure the School is in a position to continue to support excellence in research and teaching it has decided – subject to capital expenditure requirements – to transfer each year those elements of the surplus that relate to the net impact of above target student recruitment, scholarships awarded but not taken up, and other one-off receipts to a new general reserve. For 2011-12 the sum of £10.0m has been transferred to this reserve.

Income – total	2011-12	2010-11	% Change
	£m	£m
Funding Council grants	28.0	29.7	-5.7%
Tuition fees	126.7	114.7	10.5%
Research grants and contracts	22.7	24.1	-5.8%
Other income	60.3	56.9	6.0%
Endowment and investment income	6.0	6.0	0.0%
Surplus on sale of residences	–	2.3	-100.0%
Total income	243.7	233.7	+4.3%

Report of the Directors

Gross income grew by 4.3 per cent (2010-11, 5.8 per cent). Tuition fee income increased by 10.5 per cent and represented 52.0 per cent of income compared to 49.1 per cent in 2010-11. For the first time tuition fee income has exceeded half of all income. The withdrawal of public funding for home and EU undergraduates between 2012 and 2014 and increased home EU fees undergraduate fees will accelerate this trend. The School has set its home and EU undergraduate fee at £8,500 per annum for 2012, a level that will allow the School to offer bursaries averaging £2,600 per student and to compensate for the loss of teaching grant. The School was unique amongst the Russell Group of research intensive universities in setting its fee below the maximum permitted level.

The School remains concerned about the possible impact of this switch from grant funding to student fees on UK students' finances, and on student recruitment at both undergraduate and postgraduate level, although there is no indication of its having a significant effect on applications to study at LSE so far.

Funding Council grants

At 11.5 per cent of total income the School has a relatively low proportion of HEFCE (Higher Education Funding Council of England) grant funding compared with most UK higher education institutions. This proportion is falling and will continue to do so as public funding for teaching is withdrawn between 2012 and 2014.

Students

The School had 9,108 full time students in 2011-12 which was a little ahead of the target of 9,000 full time students and is a contributing factor to achievement of a sound surplus. Under the leadership of the new Director, Professor Craig Calhoun, the School has started an internal conversation about whether to grow in size over the next few years and if so in what ways.

The School provides financial support for students through a comprehensive range of bursaries and support packages. In 2011-12 £10.7m was spent, funded by philanthropic, endowment and other income.

Report of the Directors

Research income

In total, income from research grants and contracts fell by 5.7 per cent compared with 2010-11. Although UK Research Councils remain amongst the largest funders of research, accounting for 21.9 per cent of the School's overall research income, total income from this sector has fallen by 15.9 per cent since 2010-11, largely due to the drop in the number of new awards being funded. On a more positive note the School was pleased to receive news of success in securing funding for two new ESRC research centres, the Centre for Systemic Risk and the Institute for Macro Economics. Both will start in early 2013, heralding recovery in this income source.

There has also been some significant success in securing grants from the EU Commission and other EU based funders with an increase of income from this sector of 9.3 per cent. In particular funding under the EU Framework Programme continues to grow.

Income from UK Government has fallen since 2010-11. This category includes funding of the International Growth Centre's (IGC) £6 million research programme. Uncertainties earlier on in the year over the possibility of an extension of contract with the funder and changes to operations contributed to a slow-down of activity during the latter part of 2011-12.

The Grantham Institute on Climate Change and the Environment has received funding of just under £1.4 million from the Global Green Growth Institute to research the link between environmental protection, growth and development.

The School's preparations for the Research Excellence Framework (REF 2014) continue apace, coordinated by the REF Strategy Committee. Departments and Centres are reviewing the research outputs of colleagues, with the assistance of external assessors in the majority of Departments. Colleagues are also preparing impact case studies for the REF, to demonstrate how LSE's excellent research has resulted in changes and benefits to the economy, society, culture, public policy, health, the environment or quality of life beyond academia.

The School's strategy remains to compete successfully for high quality peer reviewed research. Where it is possible and appropriate to our academic aims, we also participate in commercial non-peer reviewed research, though undertaking research of low academic benefit purely for income generation is not a strategic aim. Steps are continuing to be taken in the context of a research policy to introduce measures to improve the School's performance in winning grants.

Endowment and investment income

Endowment and investment income consists of two elements, income generated by endowments to meet expenditure on bursaries and research and interest earned on the School's cash deposits and gilts. Surplus cash is held in term deposits with a range of banks regulated by the FSA or EEA which have credit ratings of AA- or better. Deposit terms range from one to 12 months and the maximum deposit at any one bank or bank group is normally £20m.

Halls of residence

With over 4,000 bed spaces in 12 halls of residence and University of London halls the School is able to offer a guaranteed place to all first year undergraduate students and, unlike the numerous commercial providers of student accommodation in London, we are able to offer 31 week contracts to undergraduate students making our residences more affordable for them. During vacation periods, some of the halls operate on a commercial basis through a wholly owned trading subsidiary LSE Lets Limited, providing hotel accommodation for a wide range of customers. In 2011-12 this trading activity generated £6.1m of revenue, the surplus from which was used to support student rents.

Income from catering delivered on the Houghton Street site increased by £0.5m. The introduction of direct payment of fee discounts to the School's cashless payment card, "sQuid", has assisted this growth and has started the process of reducing cash transactions on campus.

LSE Enterprise Limited and DUKE CE Limited

LSE Enterprise Ltd is the wholly owned subsidiary company of the School that exists to develop and apply the social science expertise of LSE into commercial situations in order to help answer questions, resolve issues and develop managerial skills. Projects range from the training of overseas civil servants with structured executive teaching, through to complex interdisciplinary commercial research projects applying academic methodologies to major policy and commercial questions. These activities connect the School's academics to senior industry figures, creating opportunities for their research to deliver insight and impact on government and industry alike.

The company delivers its activities through its two trading operations – LSE Executive Education and LSE Consulting – and an office in Spain concentrating on the Spanish market place. In addition, the company has a long standing commercial relationship with Duke Corporate Education in the field of customised corporate executive education.

Expenditure – total

Total expenditure grew by 2.0 per cent (2010-11, 6.5 per cent) with pay costs increasing by 3.6 per cent, of which 0.3 percentage points were attributable to the pay award in August 2011, 1.1 percentage points resulted from promotions, increments, honoraria and similar, 1.2 percentage points were a one-off cost associated with a voluntary leavers scheme and the balance was attributable to the net increase in full time equivalent staff headcount and variations in the overall cost of hourly paid staff.

	2011-12 £m	2010-11 £m	% Change
Staff costs	125.7	121.3	+3.6%
Other operating expenses	84.7	84.7	0.0%
Depreciation	5.5	5.6	-1.8%
Interest payable	3.1	3.2	-3.1%
Total income	219.0	214.8	+2.0%

During 2011-12 the School operated a voluntary leavers scheme which offered career counselling and financial assistance to staff wishing to leave the School. This scheme was designed to ensure that the School had the right skills in the right places to address the challenges it will face in the coming years. The criteria for eligibility was that of mutual benefit and the School expects to cover the scheme's cost from recurrent savings, in addition to generating a range of non-financial benefits. The scheme closed for applications in December 2011 and in total 71 staff were offered and accepted a package.

Other operating expenditure

Other Operating Expenditure was unchanged (2010-11, increased by 12.6 per cent) while the School's interest payable costs remained stable as interest rates did not change between the two years. Depreciation charged on fixed assets fell by 1.8 per cent, attributable to a lower charge on equipment.

Other Operating Expenditure reflects a combination of one off costs in 2010-11 including a major refurbishment of the hot water system in the Old Building, some delays in planned spending in 2011-12 and the downward pressure on expenditure exerted through the work of the Special Economies and Revenue Group in 2010.

Balance sheet and liquidity

During 2011-12 the School's net assets grew by 7.3 per cent (2010-11, 8.6 per cent) to £392.2m, boosted by the receipt of additional endowments of £6.8m. The School's cash deposits grew to £77.6m during 2011-12. The School has ambitious capital investment plans and holds a £59.7m loan facility of which £29.7m is currently drawn. The Finance Committee reviews borrowing capacity on a regular basis and currently considers it adequate to accommodate medium term plans.

Report of the Directors

Endowments and fundraising

During 2011-12 the School received £6.8m (2010-11, £10.8m) in endowments from a combination of new donors, receipts from existing pledges and £0.5m of HEFCE Matched Funding for voluntary giving.

The School's endowment funds are invested in three separate pools. Pool A is managed on a total return basis, Pool B is invested to preserve capital value and to generate an income from yield, and the FER Pool which supports the Foundation for Economic Research is also managed to generate income. The Investment Sub-Committee of Finance Committee oversees the asset allocation and investment strategy of these pools. The committee comprises a number of very experienced investment professionals, academics, a representative of the Students' Union and is advised by an external consultancy. The overall investment return after fees was 3.6 per cent for the year ended 31 July 2012 (2010-11, 9.6 per cent).

Capital expenditure

	2010-11 £m	2011-12 £m
32 Lincoln's Inn Fields refurbishment/purchase	4.7	37.6

Long leasehold property	3.1	–
Other additions	0.1	0.7
Equipment	0.7	0.8
20 Kingsway freehold acquisition	–	4.7
Total capital expenditure	18.7	47.0

Capital investment during 2011-12 has focused on two main projects, the refurbishment and enlargement of 32 Lincoln's Inn Fields, the former Land Registry building, to a bespoke academic specification for use as a core teaching and research facility and the redevelopment of the St Phillips site as a student facility. Both are proceeding according to budget. At the end of this financial year Council approved the purchase of a long leasehold property on behalf of the endowment trust that provides accommodation for the Director. The existing property will be sold later in the current financial year and the long leasehold property transferred to the trust.

Financial sustainability and going concern

Going Concern and Financial Sustainability

The Council has reviewed the financial situation as at 31 July 2012, the financial forecasts for future years and the demand for student places at the School and is satisfied that the School is a going concern.

Report of the Directors

The Finance Committee has reviewed and reported to Council on the long term (10 year) financial forecasts on a termly basis and the potential financial effects of variations in assumptions used to construct those forecasts. The Finance Committee has reviewed the level of surplus required to fund capital investment and other developments and is satisfied that – retrospectively and prospectively – the School is operating at the required level. The Audit Committee has reviewed and reported to Council on the management’s assessment of strategic risks. The Director of the School has reported to each meeting of Council on major developments in higher education and issues facing the School. The Council has received reports on non-financial indicators which are of significance to longer term financial sustainability. On the basis of these assurances, Council is satisfied that the School is operating in a financially sustainable manner.

Indicators of financial sustainability

At its away-day in September 2012 Council, the School’s governing body, reviewed a range of financial and non-financial indicators to assure itself about the sustainability of the institution. These “context statistics” included both financial indicators similar to those used by HEFCE in risk evaluation and a wide range of non-financial indicators, including research quality, student demand and student satisfaction data, league table positions, philanthropic donations, staff retention and estates quality measures.

The table on page 14 summarises the School’s actual and forecast financial metrics and compares them against the sector average and upper quartile.

The data clearly indicates that the School is in an enviably strong financial position, with 2011-12 results better than the comparators on every measure. However, the Council is also mindful that the School’s principal competition is increasingly from overseas. Although no direct comparators are available, it is clear that – in common with almost all UK higher education institutions – LSE is comparatively disadvantaged on both public funding and philanthropic endowment.

There are longer term risks to financial sustainability that the School is addressing as it develops its strategic thinking for the future.

First, issues relating to the UK Border Agency and student visas, including the withdrawal of Highly Trusted Sponsor Status from London Metropolitan University in September 2012, may deter some students from applying to study in the UK. Other visa issues add to the difficulty of recruiting staff from overseas.

Secondly, ahead of the 2013 REF census date, competition for staff is particularly acute. While controlling costs, the School needs to ensure that its reward policies, in a UK higher education environment where below inflation pay increases and tax and pension changes have had a negative effect on international competitiveness, are appropriate and attractive in the global labour market for leading academic staff. We will also need to develop innovative solutions to enable staff to live with the high cost of London housing.

Thirdly, the School derives its income from four main sources: government grants, student fees, contracts for research and other work done for clients, and philanthropy. 2012-13 is the first year in which the School receives no direct government funding for teaching the incoming cohort of undergraduates. The value of government funding for research is also in decline.

Fourth, while the School has been successful to some extent in philanthropic development in recent years, it does not enjoy the same level of endowment or income as US comparators, Oxford, Cambridge or some other UK universities. It is therefore appropriate that during 2012-13 the School reviews its investment in development of philanthropic funding to support scholarships/bursaries, research, internationally competitive reward for academic staff and the continuing redevelopment of the estate.

Finally, while some steps have been taken by their trustees to improve the long-term sustainability of the pension schemes – USS and SAUL – that the School’s employees participate in, Council remains concerned about the long run sustainability of defined benefit schemes in an era of sustained low investment returns.

Financial instruments

The School's operations expose it to a variety of financial risks including the effects of changes in interest rates on debt, foreign currency exchange rates, credit risk and liquidity risk. The School's principal financial instruments comprise investments, cash and bank deposits, gilts and bank loans, together with trade debtors and trade creditors that arise directly from its operations. The credit risk on bank deposits is limited because the counterparties are banks with high credit-ratings assigned by international credit rating agencies. The School has a limit of £20m that can normally be placed with any one bank group.

The School's current practice is to maintain the majority of borrowings at fixed rates to fix the amount of future interest payments.

Public benefit

We have reviewed the activities of the School for the year 2011-12 with regard to obligations under section four of the Charities Act 2011 and the Charity Commission's guidance on public benefit. In this section, we set out some of the many ways in which the School delivers public benefit.

Council members receive no remuneration for their services as charity trustees.

The objectives of the School are set out in our Memorandum and Articles of Association. The public benefit objectives include education and research, but the School's ambitions go significantly beyond the intrinsic benefits of those activities. Since its foundation, LSE has sought to apply teaching and research to improve society, and that goal remains unchanged today, except that the School's global reach is greater than ever.

Our beneficiaries

The benefits and beneficiaries of LSE activities include students who benefit from their education at LSE, academia as a whole benefits from research, and broader society that benefits from both; with well-educated graduates contributing to academia, the professions, public service, commerce and industry, and society in many fields, and our research influencing public policy for the good of society.

Widening participation and raising aspiration

At LSE we believe that all school students should have the opportunity to go on to higher education regardless of their background, and that it is our social responsibility to encourage and support them in exploring their options and making decisions about their future. We have always sought to recruit the best students, irrespective of socio-economic background, though we recognise that limited endowment funding constrains our ability to offer “needs blind” admission to overseas students.

LSE works with schools and colleges in the UK and offers a range of activities aimed at pupils, their teachers/advisors, and adult learners. These programmes are free for schools and colleges, being fully funded by LSE and through the generous support of private donors. Initiatives include:

LSE Connect – working with state schools in London to raise awareness of higher education generally; to raise aspirations and motivate students; and to help raise attainment.

Moving On – A collaborative effort by LSE staff and students aimed at easing pupils’ transition to secondary school by showing that change happens throughout life and can be a positive experience. It includes activities to promote independence and resilience, includes a campus tour and culminates in a “graduation ceremony”.

Student tutoring – LSE students work in schools, under the supervision of teachers, to help pupils with their academic work. The scheme has been running since 1988, and in 2011-12 over 130 LSE students volunteered in 23 local primary and secondary schools across nine London boroughs. Tutoring usually involves students spending two to three hours per week at a school or college for a 10 week period, working with pupils on a one-to-one or small group basis. The scheme benefits both the school children (in Years 6, 8, 10 and 12) and our undergraduate and postgraduate students who gain important work experience and take part in a valuable community programme.

Other examples of our outreach work with schools and colleges include:

- The LSE Mentoring Scheme
- Introduction to Social Sciences for those considering their GCSE choices
- LSE/Generating Genius Summer Schools to promote potential amongst African-Caribbean boys from state secondary schools in London, which includes teaching on Financial Mathematics, Stock Exchange Systems and Leadership

- The Black Achievement Conference
- Aiming for a College Education (ACE) and ACE High Days – preparing for university life
- Social Sciences Workshops
- Summer Schools in Business and Finance, Law and Society, Mathematics and Psychology
- Pathways to Law (London), delivered in partnership with University College London, The College of Law and The Sutton Trust
- The Politics Conference
- The London Taster Course Programme
- LSE Choice – tools for successful application to LSE and other Russell Group universities
- Student shadowing
- Campus tours and visits to schools and colleges
- Open days
- Public lectures
- Advising the Advisors Conference (information and guidance for teachers)
- Routes into Languages
- LSE FOCUS newsletter for schools and colleges and
- Email a Student/Alum – first-hand advice from current students and graduates on what to expect at LSE and where an LSE education might lead.

Financial support

In 2012-13 LSE offered over £15m in financial support for its students via a range of scholarships, bursaries and award schemes. Since the introduction of variable fees in 2006, around one-third of LSE’s additional fee income has been invested in widening participation and student bursaries. In 2012, with undergraduate fees for Home/EU students rising to £8,500 per annum, 50 per cent of this new income will be spent on undergraduates.

In addition to scholarships and bursaries for undergraduate students, the School was pleased recently to announce the launch of a new flagship studentship scheme that will support outstanding research students by fully funding their postgraduate research at the School. These will be awarded on the basis of outstanding academic achievement and research potential and will be open to all nationalities and subject areas in the social sciences. The scheme includes fees and a maintenance award of £18,000 a year for four years. The investment in these studentships doubles the number of full awards for postgraduate research students, and together with ESRC and AHRC funding, over 100 fully funded awards will be available for 2013 entrants.

Public Events

The School's location in central London and our close links with Westminster, Whitehall and the City help to maintain our reputation as the place where the world comes to debate. Notable speakers at the School in the past year included former US President Bill Clinton, Burmese democracy campaigner and Nobel Peace Prize winner Aung San Suu Kyi, fellow Nobel Laureate Muhammad Yunus "banker to the poorest of the poor", and former cricketer and politician Imran Khan.

The LSE's 2011-12 Public Events programmes included 315 events – a mixture of lectures, debates, discussions and concerts, which were attended by 75,613 people. In order to maximise the opportunity for those outside of London and overseas to benefit from the programme, many were also made available online by video or podcast, with debate being sustained through social networking and syndication via sites such as Twitter, Facebook, RSS, Atom, iTunesU, Soundcloud, YouTube, etc. In 2011-12, there were over 26 million hits of the School's rich media offerings via video and audio podcasts.

In the interests of accessibility, we also provide many public lectures in the form of written transcripts. Examples from the past year include:

- Labour Party Leader Ed Miliband and Home Secretary Theresa May on "Reading the Riots"
- President of the European Council, Herman Van Rompuy on "Lessons for the Future of the Eurozone"
- Rajiv Shah, Administrator of the US Agency for International Development on "Why Human Rights and Democracy are Critical to Overcome Poverty" and
- The Archbishop of Westminster, Vincent Nichols, on "Good Life in Hard Times".

Arts

The School provides a range of art and entertainment programmes which are free of charge and open to all. These include exhibitions, music concerts, online photographic galleries, and our popular annual Literary Festival which this year attracted speakers such as AS Byatt, Jeanette Winterson, Roger Scruton, Jonathan Powell, Michael Rosen and many more.

The LSE has an "open" campus in the heart of London, generously furnished with an interesting range of sculptures and installations for all to enjoy. We want to do what we can to continue to make London a beautiful space for residents and visitors alike and, to that end, have done much in the past year to transform the "public realm". The School's greening programme, improved signage and way-finding scheme, coupled with additional provision for pedestrians and cyclists were recognised by the Royal Institute of British Architects and the Higher Education Design Quality Forum and judges of the "small budget, big impact" scheme.

Volunteering

The School has a strong tradition of social awareness and engaging with the wider community. LSE supports such efforts through its dedicated Volunteer Centre. In 2011-12, thousands of hours were donated and many thousands of pounds were raised for UK registered charities.

Library

The School hosts the largest social sciences library in Europe. In 2011-12, the LSE Council supported a successful bid to acquire the Women's Library – the oldest and most extensive collection of women's history in Europe, and a key part of the UK's national heritage. The collection will become the Women's Library @ LSE, with its own dedicated reading room connected to an exhibition space to ensure its unique identity is maintained. LSE's Library is unusual amongst university libraries in being open to the public and the School looks forward to welcoming visitors to the new Women's Library @ LSE in 2013.

Research

The School prides itself on a policy of engagement and the provision of research which seeks to address the burning issues of the day and influence public policy. The work of many of our research centres and academic departments has direct relevance to our charitable aims and the delivery of public benefit.

A few examples include:

- The prevention and relief of poverty: the International

Report of the Directors

Growth Centre, Asia Research Centre, Centre for the Analysis of Social Exclusion; Centre for Economic Performance; and Department of International Development.

- The advancement of health or the saving of lives: LSE Health and Social Care, and the Centre for Human Rights.
- The advancement of citizenship or community development: Cities, Spatial Economics Research Centre, Centre for the Analysis of Social Exclusion.
- The advancement of human rights, conflict resolution or reconciliation or the promotion of religious or racial harmony or equality and diversity: Centre for Human Rights, Diplomacy and Strategy (IDEAS), International Relations; Government; Gender Institute, the Crisis States Research Network; and the Middle East Research Centre.
- The advancement of environmental protection or improvement: Grantham Research Centre, Centre for Climate Change Economics and Policy, Department of Geography and the Environment.
- The relief of those in need, by reason of youth, age, ill health, disability, financial hardship or other disadvantage: Centre for the Analysis of Social Exclusion, LSE Health and Social Care, Department of International Development, International Growth Centre, Centre for Economic Performance, and the Suntory and Toyota International Centre for Economics and Related Disciplines.

Keeping up the good work

At its awayday in September 2011, the Council approved in principle the establishment of a new long term investment fund to support bursaries and research, and also the establishment of new long term investment of short term “windfall” surpluses and earnings from non-core activities to assure the sustainability of LSE to deliver its charitable objectives with much less reliance on government funding in the future, and these accounts report on the first £10m assigned to the new reserve for long term investment to supplement endowment funds.

Finally, we would like to thank the many generous donors and sponsors, without whom LSE’s public benefit activities would not be sustainable at their current scale.

Progress against the environment policy Environmental management within the School

The School’s Environmental Sustainability Policy and progress against its delivery is overseen by the Environmental Leadership Group (formerly known as the Environmental Management Review Group) which meets annually to advise the Director on policy and practice in relation to environmental sustainability.

Activities to deliver progress are directed by the Environmental Management Team which meets each term.

Actual delivery against the policy is achieved through a number of Environmental Management Working Groups incorporating staff and students.

Environmental Management System/ISO 14001

The School has developed an Environmental Management System (EMS) to facilitate the delivery of the Environmental Sustainability Policy.

The School was recommended for ISO 14001 (the International Environmental Standard) and Eco Campus Platinum in July 2012.

Staff engagement, a critical element of the EMS, is delivered through the “Green Impact” programme. In 2011-12, 46 teams participated, a 10 per cent increase from 2010-11 with over 120 staff and students involved including 11 volunteer auditors receiving training. Achievements of the Green Impact teams were celebrated at an annual sustainability event.

Energy and carbon

Performance review – the CRC Energy Efficiency Scheme is a mandatory carbon tax that came into force in April 2010. To comply with the scheme, the LSE must report and pay for each tonne of CO₂ it emits. The projected annual CRC emissions were 13,814 tCO₂ and cost the School £165,768.

The Carbon Management Plan states that total emissions for the baseline 2005-06 academic year were 14,484 tCO₂e. Our predicted emissions for 2011-12 represent a 4 per cent decrease against last year’s carbon footprint and would be below our 2005-06 baseline.

Report of the Directors

Emissions increased between 2005 to 2010 which can be attributed to an increase in students numbers and new buildings coming online (such as the New Academic Building in 2008). The adoption of the Carbon Management Plan in 2011 and the subsequent capital investments in energy efficiency projects planned for this financial year should lead to a reduction in carbon emissions of approximately 400 tCO₂e.

Enhancement projects – the programme of works started this year will decrease emissions. The reduction target is 54 per cent by 2020, compared to the 2005-06 baseline.

Eight solar PV systems have been successfully installed across the LSE estate (NAB, Carr Saunders, High Holborn and Sports Ground, St Clement's and the Library). The PVs installed should save approximately 41 tCO₂e per annum.

A 15 kW Combined Heat and Power (CHP) engine was installed in Old Building in April 2012, in parallel with voltage optimisation technology. These two systems are expected to improve the quality and reliability of the electricity supply to the building, whilst saving approximately 40 tCO₂e per annum.

The Estates Division is currently tendering for the upgrade of inefficient and poor light fittings in a number of academic buildings, where the payback period does not exceed 15 years. This project is expected to provide a 212 tCO₂e annual reduction and energy cost savings.

A survey has been conducted across all residences to identify where solar thermal water-heating systems would be viable and is currently under review by the Director of Capital Development.

Student engagement – "Go Green Week" took place from 6-10 February 2012 with 14 events taking place. As part of the "Student Switch-Off" behaviour-change campaign, 608 student energy champions ("Eco-Power Rangers") were recruited in halls, saving 6 per cent of electricity usage from a 2005-08 baseline which equates to a £15,499 saving.

Waste

The School diverted 93 per cent of its waste from landfill in 2011-12.

71 per cent of campus waste was recycled in 2011-12, a significant improvement over 54 per cent in 2010-11.

38 per cent of residences waste was recycled in 2010-11 compared to 32 per cent in 2010-11. This will improve as communal recycling stations have been installed across residences in summer 2012.

The campus furniture reuse scheme facilitated the reuse of 366 items from across the School making an approximate saving of £31,000 in 2011-12.

Students halls reuse events ("ReLove") facilitated the reuse of over 6 tonnes of items at the end of Lent Term 2012.

1,000 light fittings and other key items including heaters were saved from the refurbishment of 32 Lincoln's Inn Fields and are currently being deployed across campus, saving approximately £100,000.

Water

We are currently working with Thames Water to develop a robust baseline from which to work and achieve reductions. The School has a number of water saving measures in place, ranging from waterless urinals and auto switch off taps to controlled flow showers.

Construction and refurbishment

The New Students' Centre achieved the BREEAM "Outstanding" rating (the highest possible) for its low-impact design. It is only the 17th building worldwide, and the first higher education building in London, to receive the award.

Site Waste Management Plans are used by all contractors to divert construction waste from landfill. This facilitated 993 tonnes of waste being recycled from the demolition of the St Philips Building.

Procurement

An LSE Sustainable Procurement Policy has been

Report of the Directors

drafted by the Head of Procurement, and a sustainable procurement strategy is currently being developed.

A sustainable procurement pilot for 1,800 chairs has been piloted this year and we will be working to extend this practice to other large procurement activities.

A "Selling to LSE" guide has been produced to support all staff across the School to make more sustainable procurement decisions.

Emissions and discharges

A baseline audit of all the School's emissions and discharges is currently being conducted. This does not refer to greenhouse gas emissions, but air pollution from solvents and escaped refrigerant gas, and discharges into drains of cleaning fluids and chemicals used to disinfect water tanks.

Biodiversity and urban landscape

A preparatory habitat survey has been conducted at the Sports Ground. This has been used to incorporate biodiversity projects carried out by Sports Ground staff into School sustainability strategy. The next step is to conduct a full biodiversity survey of the School, which will identify potential areas for development.

A green wall has been created on the side of the Old Building and a green roof has been installed on top of the Plaza Cafe as part of the "Campus Greening Programme".

A bee hive was installed on the roof of Connaught House, and 15 additional planters have been supplied to the roof top gardens.

41 members of staff have signed up to volunteer on the rooftop gardens, which were initially funded by Capital Growth, a Mayor of London initiative. 648 people follow "@LSE_Roof_Gardens" on Twitter at the most recent count – over a 100 per cent increase on last year.

Transport

A School-wide travel survey is conducted every three years. The last was published in February 2010. The next survey will begin in November 2012 with results to be published in March 2013. The School is almost unique in having no staff parking places and a negligible proportion of employees using cars as their main method of home to work travel.

Education for sustainable development

Catering have held numerous sustainable food awareness campaigns under the banner of "Feel Good Food Days", and increased the amount of sustainable foods served. LSE is a signatory of "Sustainable Fish City", which promotes sustainable fish consumption.

All staff and students have received the termly "Green News" email bulletin, which updates them on sustainability issues at the School.

Sustainability behaviours are being incorporated into the School's Knowledge Skills and Behaviour (KSB) Framework to support staff in delivering the environmental policy.

HR have launched an online People Management Toolkit to all staff on Grade 7 and above, which includes a range of Sustainability toolkits and hints. This will support managers to implement the Sustainability Policy, by providing them with relevant information through their training and personal development.

All new staff have received sustainability training as part of the "Flying Start" induction course.

A programme of training is being rolled out to appropriate staff in the proper use of the School's waste disposal system.

Community involvement

The Sustainability Project Fund, created by taxing bottled water on campus funded the student led Plaza café green roof and a behaviour change project which we will see delivered in the coming year. The fund currently stands at £14,382. This scheme was highly commended in the 2012 Green Gown Awards.

The School is working as part of Club 200, a collaborative approach to help Southwark's largest emitters reduce their CO2 levels and improve environmental performance.

Employment

The School promotes equality of opportunity for staff from all social, cultural and economic backgrounds and has policies and procedures in place to ensure freedom from discrimination on the basis of disability, gender, race, age, religion or belief, and sexual orientation, or personal circumstances. Equality and diversity are integral to the School's priorities and objectives. The School supports inter-faith and inter-cultural dialogue and understanding and engages all students in playing a full and active role in wider engagement with society.

The School's policy of employment with regard to disabled persons is to consider positively any registered disabled person who may apply for a post and provide similar opportunities for training, career development and promotion as for other members of staff.
