Students come to LSE with a wide range of backgrounds and experience, from those at the start of their career looking for internships and graduate positions, to those who have a number of years' work experience and are looking for experienced hire opportunities.

LSE Careers services, including our vacancy board CareerHub, are also available to graduates up to five years after their programme ends.

CareerHub is used by students and alumni to book onto careers and employment events, search and apply for jobs and opportunities, access resources, research and follow organisations, and book one-to-one careers appointments.
