

Katia Segers (Free University, Brussels)

Katia Segers is Professor at the Media Studies Department of the Vrije Universiteit Brussels, where she teaches courses in Communication Sciences, Political Economy of the Cultural Industries, Corporate Communications and Sociology of Music. Since 2002 she has been the director of CEMESO, the Centre for Studies on Media and Culture. Her current research projects focus on commercialisation of childhood and the political economy of the creative industries. She is president of the Advisory Board for the Arts of the Flemish Government and president of the Flemish Regulator for the Media