

Is Self-Regulation of International Arbitration an Illusion?

Sundaresh Menon and Jan Paulsson

Moderator: Toby Landau QC

In his 2012 ICCA keynote address in Singapore, Sundaresh Menon reflected on the rise of the golden age of arbitration – but addressed also some important critical aspects that which raise questions of legitimacy and thus sustainability of the future practice of the industry. The “age of innocence” having come to an end, one of the key issues is whether the international arbitration community is capable of establishing convincing mechanisms of self-regulation.

In the 4th LSE Arbitration Debate, Jan Paulsson and Sundaresh Menon will oppose their views on the roles and responsibilities of arbitral institutions, arbitrators and counsel for making sure that international arbitration remains on track and in tune with the new challenges.

Thursday, 9 May 2013, 6:30pm – 8:30pm
LSE Old Theatre, Houghton Street, London WC2A 2AE

To register please click here
or email to Law.TL.Project@lse.ac.uk

The Debate will be followed by a joint LSE / Young ICCA drinks reception

Sundaresh Menon is the Chief Justice of Singapore and former Attorney-General.

Jan Paulsson is LSE Visiting Professor and President of ICCA.

Toby Landau QC is a member of Essex Court Chambers.

This event is

For more information on the events of the Transnational Law Project see:

<http://www.lse.ac.uk/collections/law/projects/tlp/events.htm>

Join the global debate at LSE