

Challenges & Opportunities for Comparative Migration Research

Thursday, 10 June 2010

LSE, New Academic Building, NAB LG09, 54 Lincoln's Inn Fields, WC2A, 3LJ

- |               |   |
|---------------|---|
| 14:00 – 15:15 | Data Needs in Migration ResearchWhat are the most prominent immigration datasets? What are their strengths and limitations? What lessons can be learnt from data development projects in related fields? |
| 15:15 – 15:45 | Coffee  |
| 15:45 – 17:00 | Towards New Migration DatabasesWhat migration data projects are currently being done? How do they differ in their objectives and methodologies? What are their complementarities?                        |
| 17:00 – 17:15 | Coffee  |
| 17:15 – 18:30 | Methodological Challenges and New Research OpportunitiesWhat are the methodological challenges of current migration data projects? How can they be addressed?  |
| 19:30         | Dinner  |

This event will take place in the context of the IMPALA project, an international research collaboration between LSE and the universities of Harvard, Sydney, Amsterdam and Luxembourg, which is developing a cross-national database on immigration laws and policies.

The workshop has been made possible by the support of LSE's Department of Government.