

LSE-Sciences Po Seminar in Contemporary International History

Call for Papers

We invite proposals for the Michaelmas Term session of this year's LSE-Sciences Po Seminar in Contemporary International History (HY510). The seminar welcomes presentations from faculty and PhD students at any institution on any aspect of contemporary international history, with a particular focus on the global Cold War, broadly defined. The seminar is an ideal environment to share work in progress such as PhD chapters, journal articles, or sections of monographs or books and provides a forum for the discussion of new research by PhD students, postdoctoral researchers, and faculty members from across the world. Seminars will be usually held in London, at LSE, on Wednesdays, 4-6pm and in Paris, at Sciences Po, on Wednesdays, 5-7pm, between October and December 2019.

Presenters will be asked to submit a 20/25-page paper ten days before their presentation, to be circulated to participants beforehand. Presentations are typically 30-45 minutes and are followed by a Q&A discussion.

Applicants should submit a provisional title, a brief (one-page maximum) abstract and a CV by Friday 21 June. Those interested in presenting in London are invited to complete this form, or email Molly Avery at m.avery@lse.ac.uk. Those interested in presenting in Paris should submit these materials to Joshua Leung at joshua.leung@sciencespo.fr. Applicants interested in presenting at either institution should submit their application materials to both.

For further information consult the webpages: <http://www.lse.ac.uk/ideas/projects/cold-war-studies/hy510> (London) <http://chsp.sciences-po.fr/groupe-de-recherche/2-seminaire-specialise-lse-sciences-po-seminar-contemporary-international-histor> (Paris)