

LSE’s new PhD Academy is for doctoral students across the School. Located in a bespoke space on the 4th floor of the Library, it offers a training and seminar space, social facilities and access to PhD student services. The Academy’s aim is to enhance departmental provision for doctoral students in a central location, creating a services hub and a new home for interdisciplinary research communities.

Please encourage your students to make use of the space, attend the many events we run – including professional development workshops and advanced methodology training – and come and meet the Academy staff. We look forward to welcoming PhD supervisors and doctoral programme directors, many of whom have actively supported the development of the Academy, at the launch events we will be holding throughout 2015/16.
