

Welcome and Welcome Back!

Welcome back to your favourite environmental programme for the 2013-14 year. If you are new to Green Impact, welcome! If you're feeling overwhelmed, rest assured, we have many months before the workbook is due. The first workshop, titled 'Getting Started' will be November 27th 2-4 PM, TW2.3.04. Until then, you can get a leg up by taking a look at these online resources:

Call for Full Participation

Are you considering whether or not to participate this year? LSE Chief Financial Officer Andy Farrell has signed on to encourage the entire School to participate in Green Impact this year, and has done so in an interesting frame. Mr. Farrell makes the case that participation in the Green Impact Programme will help your office do its part to reduce the overall carbon footprint of the School. Nearly all tasks in the Workbook can be related to reduced Carbon emissions, but pay special attention to those on electricity and travel! If you are on the line about participating, please take a look at Mr. Farrell's open letter in the Staff News here.

If your team has achieved Gold two years in a row, you are invited to submit a proposal for an Excellence Project.

Hello ...

Greetings All,

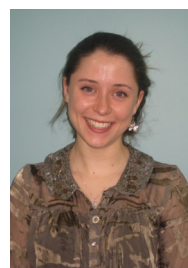

I'm Robin (pictured at left), your temporary Green Impact Programme Coordinator. I have recently completed an MSc in Environmental Policy and Regulation here at LSE, and am helping out to coordinate Green Impact until the end of January. I will then hand over my duties to Ms. Vyvyan Evans (pictured at right) who will be working with you throughout the rest of the academic year. Look out for Vyvyan and I as we are looking forward to getting to know you! ~Robin

And Goodbye

Goodbye Green teams!

After finishing my masters over summer, I decided it was time for a new start back home in Kent.

Just wanted to say goodbye to you all, to thank you all for being so brilliant to work with, and to welcome Robin to her new role in Green Impact - rest assured the project is in safe hands! Good luck with Green Impact this year, I'll be thinking of you all come audit time! ~Louise
