

Recycled headed paper into notebooks

Department - LSE Advancement

Project Area - Waste, Sustainable Procurement, Staff engagement

Summary - LSE Advancement's creative Green Impact team turned old headed paper of staff that had relocated, changed tile or left and turned them into artistic masterpieces! They set up lunch time 'notebook making sessions', with the aid of scissors and staplers they made brilliant notebooks that are now used in the department rather than buying new paper pads. Not only do these sessions offer colleagues the chance to think about and put into practice waste re-use strategies, they are a great way to enthuse colleagues who do not form part of the Green Impact team. They also act as a great informal and fun way to meet new faces in the department.