Student Finance 2016
a guide for UK/EU undergraduates
If you are thinking about going to university in 2016 you may be wondering about the cost of tuition and the availability of grants, loans and bursaries. This booklet sets out the financial support which is on offer for new undergraduates at LSE and also what is available from the UK Government. You should read this information carefully to make sure that you don’t miss out on money that you are entitled to receive. There are also many other resources which provide information on student finance and a list of useful websites can be found at the back of this booklet.

The information in this booklet is correct at the time of going to print in March 2015. Please do check online materials for the most up-to-date information.

LSE tuition fees

Undergraduate tuition fees for UK and EU students

For 2016 entry, the fees will be set later in the year. However, as a guideline for 2015 entry the LSE tuition fee for new UK and European Union (EU) undergraduates is £9,000 for the first year, but may rise in line with inflation in subsequent years.

Tuition fee loans

Students from England and the EU

Students living in England and the EU do not have to pay the tuition fee upfront. The UK Government provides students with a tuition fee loan to cover the full cost of the fee for the duration of your undergraduate programme. You do not have to start repaying the loan until you have graduated from your course and you are earning over £21,000 per year (see page 6).

The tuition fee loan is administered by the Student Loans Company (SLC), the company which also handles maintenance grants and loans for students. You should apply for the tuition fee loan at the same time that you apply for your grant and maintenance loan, which is usually in the spring before you start university.

Once the tuition fee loan is arranged, it is paid by the SLC directly to LSE after you have registered. The tuition fee loan is not paid to the student.

Students can apply for a loan for £9,000 or for any amount below £9,000 (if you or your family want to pay some of the fee up front). Interest charged on the tuition fee loan and the repayment terms are the same as those applied to the maintenance loan (see page 4).

Non-UK EU students are generally eligible to take out a tuition fee loan.

Students from Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland

Students living in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, including those who study in England, receive their financial support from their “home” devolved administration. It is a matter for the devolved administrations to decide how they wish to support their students.

In 2015, students from Scotland and Northern Ireland received tuition fee loans to cover the full cost of the fee for the duration of the undergraduate programme.

Students from Wales received a non-means-tested grant (payable to the University) for part of the tuition fee, together with a loan of £3,810.

Students should check out the relevant website below for the latest information on fees and financial support available for 2016 entry from their administration:

MONTH TO FINALISE
LSE financial support

Undergraduate students from the UK who are eligible for a full or partial grant (see UK Government financial support on page 4) and EU students from the equivalent household income brackets are eligible for an LSE Bursary. For new students starting in 2016, the maximum Bursary available is £4,000 per year for those students with the lowest residual incomes. The Bursary value tapers to £750 for those students on a partial grant.

The LSE Bursary does not have to be repaid. EU students are eligible for an LSE Bursary based on the same income assessment as used for UK students. Application is by completion of a form, which can be downloaded from lse.ac.uk/financialSupport.

These Bursary values are provisional pending confirmation by the Office for Fair Access in Summer 2015.

Eligibility for the LSE Bursary is assessed annually (in line with annual assessments for maintenance grants and loans). There is no limit to the number of LSE Bursaries available. All UK students who are eligible for an LSE Bursary will receive one.

You will be notified during the summer before the start of your degree programme of your Bursary award. The Bursary will then be paid into your bank account in three termly instalments. The first instalment will be paid in the October of the first term once you have registered. Eligibility for the LSE Bursary is assessed annually (in line with annual assessments for maintenance grants and loans).

You should apply using the application form on the Financial Support website lse.ac.uk/financialSupport. The form should be returned to the Financial Support Office by 19 August 2016.

Awards for asylum seekers

LSE is offering two awards made up of a partial fee waiver and financial support for:

- Asylum seekers (or children of asylum seekers) holding an offer of a place on an LSE undergraduate programme; and

Offer holders who have been granted limited leave as a result of an asylum application.

These awards support those unable to access a tuition fee or maintenance loan from Student Finance, who are assessed at the overseas fee rate. The partial fee waiver reduces the fee to the UK/EU fee level, and the fee and maintenance award is worth up to £20,000 a year depending on financial need. This is made up of £9,000 to cover the payment of the tuition fee and up to £11,000 for maintenance.

Eligible applicants should apply using the application form on the Financial Support website lse.ac.uk/financialSupport.

LSE scholarships

In addition to the LSE Bursary, the School also makes available a range of scholarships for its new undergraduates from the UK, EU and overseas. These scholarships are donated by external organisations or alumni of the School.

Eligibility is often limited, for example, place of residence or programme of study. However, all scholarships are awarded on the basis of financial need.

In 2015 the following scholarships were available for students from the UK and EU:

It is too early to say which of these awards will be available in 2016 but you should check the Financial Support Office website lse.ac.uk/financialSupport in autumn 2015 to see what is available for students starting in 2016. You are advised to apply once you have accepted your offer. The final deadline for applications will be 1 June 2016.

LSE has provided me with a wealth of opportunities and I have really benefited from the range of intellectual thought that makes this institution as special as it is. The Lord Benson Scholarship has helped me in my studies and has enabled me to attend external lectures, buy learning materials, and continue playing my favourite sport, badminton. I am looking forward to completing my degree at LSE, and hope to study for a master’s degree. There is no doubt that I wouldn’t be in this position if it had not been for my scholarship.
Government financial support

The following information sets out what was available for the academic year 2015-16. At the time of going to print 2016 figures were not available. Please check the gov.uk/ studentfinance website for the most up-to-date information.

Maintenance grant

In 2015 students ordinarily living in England with household incomes of up to £25,000 a year were entitled to a maintenance grant (to help with living costs) of £3,387 to a maintenance grant (to help with up to £25,000 a year were entitled to a partial maintenance grant of between £3,387 and £50). The grant is paid into your bank account at the beginning of each term once you have registered on your course. The grant does not have to be repaid.

Maintenance loan

All eligible students from England are able to take out a maintenance loan to help with living costs. The maximum loan available for students studying in London (ie, at LSE) and living away from home was £8,009. If you study outside London or if you live at home while you study, the maximum loan value is lower.

There are two elements to the maintenance loan: a guaranteed loan and an income assessed loan.

Guaranteed loan: Up to 65 per cent of the maintenance loan is available to everyone in 2015 regardless of their parental income.

The Income Assessed loan: 35 per cent of the amount you can borrow is means-tested (ie, it depends on your or your parents’ household income).

The maintenance loan does not have to be repaid.

Applying for grants and loans

You should apply for all of your grants and loans (maintenance and tuition fee) in the spring before you start university. The Student Loans Company (SLC) usually announces a date in January/February when applications open and a deadline in May by which you should submit your application. You should check out the SLC and SLC websites for further details.

You and your family will need to complete a P1 form which asks for a range of financial information about you and the household in which you live. It is this financial information which the SLC uses to assess your eligibility for a grant and part of the maintenance loan.

The information submitted on the application form allows the SLC to calculate the “household residual income” (see section below). You can also allow your chosen university to access this financial information so that they can assess your eligibility for your own bursaries and scholarships.

In the case of LSE, this means that you will not have to apply separately for our Bursaries (see LSE financial support section on page 2).

Household residual income

This is effectively the household income BEFORE tax and AFTER any pension contributions or allowances for dependent children.

For all these dependent students (ie, not independent) the income assessment is based on your combined parents’ income – though if you have substantial savings/investments of your own generating income they will be taken into account.

If your parents are divorced or separated then the SLC will assess the income of the parent you live with most of the time. If that parent remarries or has a co-habiting partner, their joint income will then be assessed.

Students from Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland and the EU

In 2015 there were grants and loans for living costs available for students from the UK devolved administrations. Please see their websites for information on 2016 support.

EU students are not normally eligible for support for living costs. The gov.uk/ student-finance has full details of eligibility criteria for funding.

Other support

Disabled Students’ Allowance (DSA)

Disabled students from the UK can access DSA which are grants to help with extra costs you might face as a result of a disability, long-term health condition, mental health condition or specific learning difficulty like dyslexia. DSA don’t need to be paid back and can help pay for specialist equipment, non-medical helpers, additional travel costs and other costs like photocopying.

Childcare Grant (CCG)

You can apply for a Childcare Grant if you’re a full-time undergraduate student living and studying in England and you:

• have at least one dependent child who is under 15 and in registered or approved childcare; or
• have at least one dependent child who is under 17, is registered as having special educational needs, and in registered or approved childcare.

Parents’ Learning Allowance (PLA)

You can apply for a Parents’ Learning Allowance if you’re a full-time undergraduate student with dependent children. This helps with the extra costs associated with being a parent and a student. You don’t need to be paying for childcare to be eligible.

Adult Dependants’ Grant (ADG)

You can apply for the Adult Dependants’ Grant if you’re a full-time undergraduate student and you have an adult who depends on you financially. The adult can be a partner or another adult who depends on you financially, but you can’t count grown-up children as adult dependents.

LLB

New Future’s Funds Scholarship

I have always been interested in studying law. The funding I received has allowed me to take up my place to study law at LSE. I chose LSE because of its impressive debate agenda, public events schedule, and ideal location in central London; it’s a great place to study law.

My programme is both enjoyable and challenging. I feel like my opinion really counts; in classes I am able to engage with my peers and engage with and debate the material from lectures. The support from my teachers and peers at LSE and the skills I’ve gained have also helped me to advance my equal access campaign.

I study not only to gain knowledge but to decide how I will use this knowledge to change injustices within and around my community. I am now a Pathways to Law mentor here at LSE and this opportunity is invaluable; it is a pleasure to guide my mentees by offering support as they complete their A levels.

LSE New Future’s Fund Scholarship

I chose a programme at LSE because it is a world-leading institution dedicated to social sciences and is ranked among the top universities in the world. There are 18 Nobel prize winners at LSE who have shaped our society with their research and theories. Furthermore, LSE is a very international university with more than 120 nationalities represented.

The best thing about studying in LSE is the academic and social side of the university. You are mixed in with the brightest people and you are taught by famous professors. Also, in London, there are so many activities you can take part in.

Receiving the LSE New Future’s Fund scholarship has eased my financial difficulties and has given me the opportunity to concentrate on my studies and hobbies. I joined the Football Society (LSE SU FC) and I could never imagine having so much fun.

The biggest opportunity I think is that you have global firms coming to campus and giving you presentations. You get a real insight into these firms and the chance to get to know their employees.

When I graduate, I would like to do my master’s degree at LSE. In three years time I will have a better understanding of what I would study, but I can already imagine myself studying another management degree.
