EU Kids Online seeks to enhance knowledge of European children's use, risk and safety online

New for safer internet day

Mobile Opportunities Exploring positive mobile media opportunities for European children

- What benefits are children gaining from the internet? See our new report on Mobile Opportunities, and read Sonia Livingstone's blog post on the highlights.
- The report invites us to think differently about how to create a better internet for children, recognising the emerging roles children are playing with their peers – as advisors, as problem solvers, as explorers and as sharers.

Where next?

Children's Rights in the Digital Age

- This week, we are meeting with UNICEF and experts around the world to consider how to extend this evidence base internationally.
- This takes us into the fascinating question of children's rights in the digital age, as Sonia Livingstone discusses in this week's public lecture (watch livestream on 11/2/15).
- Last month, the EU Kids Online network met in Brussels to hear from cutting edge researchers and policy makers about the emerging evidence priorities in a fast-changing world of social and technological possibilities.

Children's online risks and opportunities: comparative findings from EU Kids Online and Net Children Go Mobile

- This report highlights the latest findings on children's online access and use; activities; social networking; digital skills; risks and harm; parental mediation and recommendations.

Young Children \(0-8\) and digital technology: A qualitative exploratory study across seven countries

- Very young children love the tablet and can often access YouTube and simple games by themselves, but their parents are not always aware either of their skills or their struggles.
- EU Kids Online researchers collaborated with others to interview and observe 70 families for this report, funded by the EC's JRC.
