

The International Handbook of Children, Media and Culture

Edited by Kirsten Drotner University of Southern Denmark and Sonia Livingstone London School of Economics and Political Science

This essential volume brings together the work of internationally renowned researchers, each expert in their field, in order to capture the diversity of children and young people's media cultures around the world.

The contributors present detailed empirical case studies to uncover how children weave together diverse forms and technologies. They explore how children use different media to create a rich symbolic tapestry which, in turn, shapes their social relationships. At the same time, many concerns - even public panics - arise regarding children's engagement with media, leading the contributors also to inquire into the risky or problematic aspects of today's highly mediated world.

The Handbook will enable academics and students to analyze comparatively how children interact with and explore the various media forms in different cultures. It will enhance research, study and understanding in the field.
