

Contents page

1. Editors' introduction (Livingstone, S. and Haddon, L.)

Section I: Researching European children online

2. What we know, what we do not know (Donoso, V., Ólafsson, K and Broddason, T.)
3. Research with children (Lobe, B., Simoes, J-A. and Zaman, B.)
4. Comparing countries (Hasebrink, U., Ólafsson, K. and Štětka, V.)
5. Cultures of research and policy in Europe (Haddon, G. and Stald, G.)

Section II: Going online - new opportunities?

- 6 Opportunities and benefits online (Kalmus, V. , Runnel, P., and Siibak, A.)
7. Social networking and new forms of sociality (Peter, J., Valkenburg, P. and Fluckiger, C.)
8. Young People Online: Gender and Age Influences (McQuillan, H. and d'Haenens, L.)
9. Digital divides (Tsatsou, P., and Pruulmann-Vengerfeldt, P., Murru, M-F)

Section III: Going online – new risks?

10. Risky contacts (Lüders, M-H., Brandtzæg P-B. and Dunkels, E.)
11. Inappropriate content (Wold, T., Aristodemou, E., Dunkels, E. and Laouris, Y.)
12. Problematic conduct: Juvenile delinquency on the Internet (Staksrud, E.)
13. Reporting Young People and Internet: Agency, Voices and Agendas (Ponte, C., Bauwens, J. and Mascheroni, G.)
14. 'Mother knows best'? The role of parental mediation in explaining cross-national variation in the experience of children's online risk (Lobe, B., Segers, K. and Tsaliki, L.)

Section IV: Policy implications

15. Maximising opportunities and minimising risks for children online (de Haan, J.)
16. Parental mediation (Kirwil, L., Garmendia, M., Garitonandia, C. and Martinez, G-M.)
17. ICTs in Schools – Challenges for learning contexts (Paus-Hasebrink, I., Duerager, A., Wijnen and Ugur, K.)
18. Media literacy (O'Neill, B. and Hagen, I.)
19. Conclusion (Livingstone, S. and Haddon, L.)