

THE THIRD WORLD'S WAR

London School of Economics
November 24, 2010

45. The Third World's War: soldiers training in Guatemala to fight the Guerrilla Army of the Poor. Although notionally a war between capitalists and Communists, on close inspection the Guatemalan civil war was as much an ethnic conflict between Ladinos and Mayans.

A 'Long Peace'?

- '... it is the case that the post-World War II system of international relations, which nobody designed or even thought could last for very long, which was based not upon the dictates of morality and justice but rather upon an arbitrary and strikingly artificial division of the world into spheres of influence, and which incorporated within it some of the most bitter and persistent antagonisms short of war in modern history ... survived twice as long as the far more carefully designed World War I settlement.' – John Gaddis (1986)

Why no Third World War?

- Cold War as a 'self-regulating system'
 1. Bipolarity: Reflects power realities, simple
 2. Dependence not interdependence: Less contact, less friction
 3. Domestic restraints: Non-violent 'Open Door' / 'corporatist' model of American policy, Soviet sense of weakness
 4. Deterrence: 'paranoia and prudence can co-exist' in a nuclear world
 5. 'Reconnaissance revolution': Greater certainty
 6. Ideological moderation: No unconditional surrender
 7. Rules of the game: Respect spheres of influence, avoid direct confrontation, avoid use of nuclear weapons, accept anomalies, do not undermine other side's leadership

15 crises without wars

- Korean airliner incident, 1983

Or the 'Third World's War'?

- 'The Cold War was a continuation of colonialism through slightly different means. ... Superpower interventions ... helped put a number of Third World countries in a state of semipermanent civil war ... against the peasantry.' – Westad, Global Cold War (2005)
- 'The real and bloody Third World War was in fact fought ... in the Third World itself ... where the strategic stakes (though not the human costs) were lower.' – Ferguson, War of the World (2009)

Guatemala, 1966-1984

Civil war between capitalists and communists but between Ladino latifundista and Mayan peasant tribes like the Ixil and Kekchi': When the civil war was finally brought to an end, the total death toll had reached around 200,000.

East Pakistan, 1971

Mohammad Ayub Khan waged an authentically genocidal campaign against the people of East Pakistan in a vain attempt to prevent their secession by 'reducing this majority into a minority'

Cambodia, 1975-1979

Estimated number of victims of Khmer Rouge c. 1.5-2.0 million.

Angola, 1975-1991

September 1987: Battle of Cuito Cuanavale, nr Namibian border: Angolan government forces were equipped with Soviet-made T-55 tanks and MiG fighters, but the tank crews and pilots were mainly Cuban. 8,000 UNITA troops were supported by around 3,000 South Africans including 61st Mechanized Battalion Group.

Kurdistan, 1988

Saddam Hussein launched the so-called Anfal (Spoils) campaign against the Kurds, using (among other weapons) poison gas to wipe out whole villages.

So how peaceful was the Cold War?

Would violence have happened anyway?

- How far were the Cold War conflicts post-colonial civil wars that would have happened anyway?
- How big a contribution did the superpowers actually make to fomenting and prolonging wars?

The Soviet contribution

- April 1950: Stalin authorized the North Korean leader Kim Il Sung to invade the Republic of Korea ...
- Soviets assist Cubans, and seek to deploy nuclear weapons there
- Soviets assist North Vietnamese
- Also Cubans in Angola and Mozambique
- Also: The appearance of Soviet moves
- Guatemala 1952 (Arbenz)
- Chile 1970 (Allende)
- 'The world was going our way.'

The American response

- U.S. had treaties of alliance with no fewer than 48 different countries
- 168 instances of American armed intervention overseas between 1946 and 1965
- Only around 2 out of 32 major interventions delivered growth and democratization (South Korea, Taiwan) – Westad
- But why so unsuccessful? Too much or too little intervention? – Ferguson (2004)

The problem

[Pyle] was talking about the old colonial powers—England and France, and how you couldn't expect to win the confidence of Asiatics. That was where American came in now with clean hands.

'Hawaii, Puerto Rico,' I said. 'New Mexico.'

... He said ... there was always a Third Force to be found free from Communism and the taint of colonialism—national democracy he called it; you only had to find a leader and keep him safe from the old colonial powers ...

Graham Greene, The Quiet American (1955)

The problem

‘I’ve been in India, Pyle, and I know the harm liberals do. We haven’t a liberal party any more – liberalism’s infected all the other parties. We are all either liberal conservatives or liberal socialists: we all have a good conscience. ... We go and invade the country: the local tribes support us: we are victorious: but ... [in Burma] we made peace ... and left our allies to be crucified and sawn in two. They were innocent. They thought we’d stay. But we were liberals and we didn’t want a bad conscience.’

A conclusion

- The Cold War may have increased the amount and duration of conflict in some parts of the world (Africa and Latin America)
- But it is not clear that it can be blamed for violence in Asia and the Middle East
