International Study Visit for EGAP

Graduates from Mexico hone their skills at LSE

LSE Enterprise has developed a five-day programme for students from the Graduate School of Public Administration and Public Policy (EGAP) at the Instituto Tecnológico y de Estudios Superiores de Monterrey.

Over the course of the week, participants were asked to critically engage with topics such as global economic trends, strategic management in public services, public accounting and finance, public policy, and technological change - all aimed at expanding their understanding of policy implementation in an evolving global landscape.

The customised programme, which is administered by prominent LSE academics and government officials, placed a special emphasis on interactive learning, supplementing lectures and discussions with interactive exercises designed to demonstrate the challenges of negotiating with multiple stakeholders.

Student feedback

'The professors are really interesting. I would like to study further here and do a Master's degree.'

Luciano Quadri

'The topics are very well organised and the lecturers are very good. I'm really happy about the course.'

The course has given me new knowledge but has also helped my own development as an academic - it has enabled me to be more in touch and updated on many issues.'
