Congratulations on your offer of a place at LSE

I am delighted to enclose your official offer letter and very much look forward to welcoming you to LSE for the start of your studies.

Please find enclosed a guide which will help you to understand your offer and prepare for your arrival at LSE. The following pages explain what you need to do next and whom to contact should you have any further queries. Please ensure that you read all of the information in this booklet and your offer letter.

As one of the world’s leading centres for the study of social sciences LSE attracts students from over 160 countries and offers you a unique blend of leading academic teaching, research and first-hand experience.

Our identity and character are closely linked with our location in central London, an exciting and lively place to live and study. This benefits the School in many ways, not least through the School’s close relationships with national and international government institutions and ministries, whose headquarters are based here. The School is also actively engaged with cultural affairs and social issues and with the financial institutions of the City of London. We provide a unique forum for public debate with heads of state, top global officials, corporate leaders, Nobel laureates and social activists visiting every week as part of LSE’s Public Events programme.

While you are here you will be part of a vibrant and stimulating community, with societies representing hundreds of different interests and national groups available for you to join, making your student experience as diverse and exciting as you want it to be. We are continually improving and developing the teaching and social spaces, and you will soon discover the state-of-the-art Saw Swee Hock Student Centre which is the hub of student life on campus.

LSE graduates are leaders in their chosen fields, succeeding in their individual careers and in making a difference to the world around them. Our graduates go on to work for international organisations, such as the UN and World Bank, national governments, development institutes, business, finance and media outlets – and some remain active in academic life.

I am delighted you will be joining us and encourage you to make the most of the opportunities LSE has to offer.

Yours sincerely,

Professor Julia Black

Other things to consider after you arrive

- Get a UK mobile phone (or SIM card) if you need one (see page 48).
- Make financial arrangements, including opening a student bank account (see page 28).
- Get a Student Oyster Card (discount travel card) (see page 46).
- Activate your LSE sQuid cash card (see page 48).
- Get to know your department (see page 50).
- Join societies – or set up your own! See lsesu.com
- Take a tour of the Library (see page 29).
- Explore the campus – you can use our self guided tour: lse.ac.uk/study/meetLSE/pdf/LSE-Explorer-web-June2015.pdf

For those of you who are new to the capital, get to know London! Buses are an excellent way to explore how the city fits together, or why not explore on foot? Walkit.com is a great resource for planning walking routes.

Finally, make the most of your time at university! A packed year at LSE goes quickly, and there are lots of opportunities coming your way – to make friends from across the globe, to attend exciting events with world leaders in their fields, to contribute to classes in subjects that you are enthusiastic about and to shape your future career. You have a challenging and amazing year ahead.
LSE OFFER HOLDERS’ DAY

April 2017

Applicants who have received an offer for entry in September 2017 or deferred for 2018 are invited to an LSE Offer Holders’ Day on 5 April 2017.

The LSE Offer Holders’ Day gives you a unique taster of the programme you have been accepted to study. It also gives you the opportunity to meet with academic staff and current students and find out more about student life at LSE.

Most importantly, the Offer Holders’ Day is a chance for you to visit the LSE campus before making your final decision about which university is right for you.

Booking is essential. For further information and an online booking facility, please visit our website at: lse.ac.uk/offerholdersday

If you are unable to attend the Offer Holders’ Day there are other opportunities to visit LSE, including monthly campus tours and the LSE Open Days. If you live outside the UK, you may wish to attend a Destination LSE event in your home country. These are organised by LSE alumni groups and usually held in August. See lse.ac.uk/predepartureevents for more information.

CONTACTING THE UNDERGRADUATE ADMISSIONS OFFICE

Now that you have received your offer you may have queries or need to contact the Undergraduate Admissions Office.

Before you do so, we recommend that you look at our Frequently Asked Questions database where you may be able to find the answers to your queries: lse.ac.uk/admissionsEnquiries. You will also find useful guidance on the Information for Offer Holders section of our website at lse.ac.uk/undergraduate

Office hours

Your calls will be answered between 9am and 4pm (UK time), Monday to Friday.

Alternatively you can contact us by email on ug.offerholder@lse.ac.uk. We will ensure that your query is directed to the appropriate person and answered promptly. If you have any queries about your application or offer, you may visit the Undergraduate Admissions Office by appointment. This can be arranged either by phoning us at +44 (0)20 7955 6500, or via email.

School holiday closures

The Undergraduate Admissions Office will be closed for all UK bank holidays, as well as extended Christmas and Easter breaks. The office is particularly busy after long breaks, so please be patient when contacting us; we will respond to your query as quickly as possible once the School re-opens.

Christmas closure:
Thursday 22 December 2016 – Monday 2 January 2017 (inclusive)

Easter closure:
Thursday 13 April 2017 – Wednesday 19 April 2017 (inclusive)

Security questions

For security purposes, you will need to provide the following information in all of your correspondence to the Undergraduate Admissions Office, and when you telephone the office:

• UCAS Personal ID number or LSE Student Number
• Name
• Date of birth
• Programme for which you applied.

Data Protection Act 1998

You should note that LSE, like all UK universities, collects information on its students and staff for various essential administrative, academic and health and safety reasons, in order to pursue its legitimate interests as an institution of higher education.

These interests include registration, allocation to teaching, monitoring and assessment of academic progress, entry to examinations, management of health and safety, planning, maintenance of order and contacting next of kin in emergencies. This information is treated in the strictest confidence, and is covered by the provisions of the Data Protection Act 1998.

Under the Data Protection Act, we are unable to disclose or discuss any part of your application with a third party, unless you have nominated this individual (eg parent/guardian/teacher) via your UCAS application form.

YOUR OFFER EXPLAINED

You should by now have received official confirmation of your offer from LSE via UCAS. The guidance and frequently asked questions provided below should help you to better understand the terms of your offer.

The terms of your offer

Your offer of admission to the School is based on the information you provided on your UCAS application form. It is your responsibility to provide official evidence of your qualifications (if we require it – please see your offer letter). If you are unable to provide such evidence, we reserve the right to withdraw your offer of admission.

Below you will find further information about the offers we make, as well as answers to frequently asked questions. Please read through the following pages carefully. Should you have any further queries, the Undergraduate Admissions Office is here to help. Contact details can be found on page 5 of this guide.

Why have some of the subjects I have studied been excluded?

The Admissions Selector takes into account all of the information that is presented on your UCAS form when he assesses your application. Your offer is based on the range of subjects which are most relevant to your degree. As stated in the undergraduate prospectus, there are subjects that are generally excluded from any offer made, eg, if you are taking General Studies or Critical Thinking at A level, your grade in this subject will not be counted towards the requirements of any conditional offer. Similarly, an A level or equivalent in a language learning subject that you have had significant prior exposure to may not be counted.

The Admissions Selector may also choose to exclude other subjects, for example: “Obtain grades AAA excluding Art, plus a pass in a fourth A level.” In this case your Art qualification cannot be used to meet your offer condition.

I have decided to drop one of my subjects, is this OK?

Your offer has been made based on the subjects listed on your UCAS application form, so it is important that you email the Undergraduate Admissions Office before you drop any subject – even if this subject does not form part of your offer. Failure to notify us of a change to your qualifications may result in the withdrawal of your offer. An Admissions Selector will consider your request and we aim to provide you with a final decision within two weeks.

Is it possible to lower or change the conditions of my offer?

No. The School will not enter into negotiations with offer holders over the terms of their offer. Each offer has been made taking into consideration all the information included on your UCAS form and the Admissions Selector’s decision is final.

Is it possible to change my programme of study?

Unfortunately it is not possible to change your programme after you have been made an offer.

Conditional offers explained

Why does my offer ask me to achieve AAA at A level rather than 360 UCAS tariff points?

LSE does not use the UCAS tariff. You are required to obtain the grades and any subjects specified in order to meet the terms of your offer.

What does “Obtain grades A*A*A with an A* in Maths plus a pass in Further Mathematics” mean?

This offer means that you need to obtain two A grades at A level and an A* in Maths with an additional pass in Further Mathematics as a fourth subject. Your Further Mathematics grade will only count once. Therefore, even if you obtain an A grade in this subject, it will not count towards the first part of your offer.

I have been asked to obtain 38 points and 7,6,6 at Higher Level in the International Baccalaureate. Do bonus points count towards meeting this condition?

Yes. Bonus points will count towards your overall total points score.

I stated on my UCAS form that I had completed my Mathematics A level. As I am also taking Further Mathematics A level, I haven’t officially “cashed in” my Mathematics A level grade yet. What should I do?

Even if you have completed the requirements for the full Mathematics A level, if you have not “cashed it in” then you should have included it as “pending” on your UCAS form. You should therefore notify the Undergraduate Admissions Office immediately, as your offer will need to be amended to reflect the status of your qualifications.

Important note: Your offer may state that you must obtain Mathematics as part of your offer for 2017 when you have already completed the qualification in the previous year. This is because your Maths A level from 2016 may not be “cashed in” until 2017. If this situation applies to you and you require clarification, you should contact the Undergraduate Admissions team for assistance.

Accepting, declining or deferring your offer

What notifications can I expect from LSE once I have accepted my offer via UCAS Track?

You will receive regular newsletters via email, from the Undergraduate Admissions Office, which are sent out from January. From early June firm offer holders will receive instructions on how to complete the Student Verification Form (SVF) and Financial Undertaking Form (FU). These are compulsory and must be completed before you arrive for Registration (see page 13). If you are an overseas student and require a visa, you will need to complete your FU before LSE can issue your CAS number (which you will need to apply for your visa; see page 26 for more information on student visas). Overseas students (non-EU/EEA nationals) will also receive an email asking them to confirm their passport details (including name and passport number); this will also require a response before a CAS number is issued.

Providing your offer is unconditional you will also receive our Welcome Pack, which will be emailed to you before the end of August. This pack will contain your Statement of Confirmation and an Undergraduate Welcome Guide. The Statement of Confirmation includes your full name, contact address, date of birth, and programme name and duration.

I have now met the conditions of my offer and hold an unconditional place at LSE. Will you send me a new paper offer letter?

No. If your offer was initially conditional and you now hold an unconditional place, you will receive an email from UCAS notifying you of your change in offer status. Confirmation of your unconditional place comes from LSE in the form of your Statement of Confirmation (see above).

What should I do if I want to decline my offer?

You should decline your place on the UCAS Track online system.

Due to extenuating circumstances, I will be unable to sit my exams this year. Can you defer my conditional offer to next year?

No. Unfortunately UCAS guidelines state that a conditional offer cannot be “cashed over” to the next academic year. Therefore we would have to withdraw our offer and you would need to reapply in the next UCAS cycle. In this case, we cannot guarantee that you would be given another offer the following year.

Therefore we would have to withdraw our offer and you would need to reapply in the next UCAS cycle. In this case, we cannot guarantee that you would be given another offer the following year.
What should I do if, after accepting my offer, I find I cannot take up my place?

Your first option is to request a one year deferral of your place. You will need to submit a written request (an email will suffice) to the Undergraduate Admissions Office. This email should state the reasons for your deferral request and what you plan to do on your gap year. The Admissions Selector will then consider your request and you will be contacted once a decision has been made. If your request is accepted, your UCAS record will be changed to reflect your change of year. If your offer is conditional, you will still be expected to meet the conditions of your offer by August 2017. LSE does not offer the option of a two year deferral.

Important note: The deadline for one year deferral requests for all applicants is Friday 14 July 2017.

If my request for deferral is refused, is my offer still valid for 2017?

Yes. However, if your deferral request has been refused and you do not wish to take up your place for 2017, you will need to withdraw from the programme. In this case you should contact UCAS who will guide you through the withdrawal process.

Meeting the conditions of your offer

If you are sitting overseas qualifications such as the German Abitur, French Baccalaureate, American Advanced Placements, Hong Kong H2 subjects, etc

You will need to send us officially certified copies of your results as soon as possible and no later than Tuesday 1 August 2017. For important information on how to do this, please see “Providing verification of your qualifications” on page 12. It is important that you familiarise yourself with our guidelines as we will not be able to accept documentation that is not correctly certified.

Once we receive your certified copies, your results will be checked by the Undergraduate Admissions Office. If you meet all of the conditions of your offer, your place at the School will be confirmed through UCAS. If you do not meet the conditions of your offer, we may not be able to confirm your place.

If you are sitting the International Baccalaureate, A levels, Cambridge Pre-U, Scottish Advanced Highers, the Welsh Baccalaureate, or the Irish Leaving Certificate in 2017

The Undergraduate Admissions Office is usually able to verify your results directly via UCAS without the need for you to provide copies of your qualifications. If you sat your IB or A level exams prior to 2017, we will request copies of these qualifications if we are unable to verify them through UCAS. Any requested qualifications will need to be sent to the UG Admissions Office as soon as possible and no later than Tuesday 1 August 2017.

If you meet all of the conditions of your offer, your place at the School will be confirmed through UCAS. If you do not meet the conditions of your offer, we may not be able to confirm your place.

Your offer may also state that we require copies of your previous qualifications or, in some instances, proof of English language qualifications. You will need to send us officially certified copies of these results as soon as possible and no later than Tuesday 1 August 2017. Otherwise, your application will be considered incomplete and we will be unable to confirm your place. For important information on this, please see “Providing verification of your qualifications” on page 12. It is important that you familiarise yourself with our guidelines as we will not be able to accept documentation that is not correctly certified.

What happens if I experience difficulties at examination time?

We understand that circumstances can arise that have a detrimental impact on exam performance. If you marginally miss the conditions of your offer, the School will consider severe extenuating circumstances in mid-August. Unfortunately, there is no guarantee that we will be able to confirm your place.

If you feel that your exam performance has been affected you should contact us in writing by 1 August 2017 (IB applicants should contact us by 30 June 2017). You must include corroborating evidence such as a letter or email from your school, and a doctor’s note (if applicable) or other official documentation. We cannot guarantee that we will be able to consider extenuating circumstances after the deadline.

We also strongly encourage you to request that your school notifies the examination boards of any such extenuating circumstances at the time of their occurrence, along with any relevant medical notes, so they can then be taken into consideration when your scripts are being marked.

What happens if I fail to meet the conditions of my offer?

If you marginally fail to meet the conditions of your offer (which usually means you have missed your required conditions by one grade), your application is automatically referred back to the Admissions Selector in mid-August for reconsideration. Your application is then assessed in competition with all other applicants who have marginally failed to meet the conditions of their offer. Unfortunately, there is no guarantee that your place will be confirmed by the School.

A level example: You are asked to obtain AAA at A level and you achieve A*AB.

Unfortunately, achieving a higher grade in one subject will not compensate for a lower grade in a different subject. This means that you will have marginally failed to meet the conditions of your offer.

International Baccalaureate example: You are asked to obtain 38 points and 6,6,6 at Higher Level in the International Baccalaureate and you achieve 42 points and 7,6,5 at Higher Level.

Like the A level example above, achieving a higher grade in one subject will not compensate for a lower grade in a different subject and you will be deemed to have marginally failed to meet the conditions of your offer.

What happens if I request a re-mark?

If you ask for a re-mark of any of your subjects, then you should inform the Undergraduate Admissions Office by email immediately. To expedite the process, you should ask for a “priority” re-mark from the relevant exam board(s).

The Admissions Office must receive official confirmation of the results of your re-mark no later than 5pm (UK Summer time) on Friday 1 September 2017. Provided your re-mark grades meet the original grade conditions of your offer, we will overturn the unsuccessful decision and your offer will be reinstated.

LSE understands that applicants studying Scottish Advanced Highers under the SQA board may not be able to provide us with the results of their re-mark by the 1 September deadline. Any applicant who studies under the SQA board and requests a re-mark should inform the Undergraduate Admissions Office as soon as possible. We will consider the results of a re-mark on a case-by-case basis, but there is no guarantee that we will be able to confirm your place at the School.

General frequently asked questions

The name on my offer letter is incorrect. What should I do?

Please notify UCAS and the Undergraduate Admissions Office of your name change immediately. This is vital because the name that you register under is the name that will appear on your award certificate. If you are an overseas offer holder and require a visa, it is particularly important that the name we have on file matches the name on your passport as your visa application will be rejected if there is a discrepancy.

I have changed my postal and/or email address. What should I do?

Please change your address on UCAS track and notify the Undergraduate Admissions Office of your new address in writing (an email will suffice) as soon as possible. If you have indicated your term-time address in the correspondence address section of the UCAS application form, you should not assume that all correspondence will be sent automatically to your home address once term finishes. You should notify UCAS and the Undergraduate Admissions Office as soon as you leave your term-time address so that all correspondence can be sent to the correct address. Increasingly, we send important information via email, so please ensure that we have an up-to-date email address for you. You should also ensure that you update and regularly check your spam folders to avoid important emails from us being accidentally deleted.

I have accepted LSE as my insurance choice. What do I need to do?

As long as you hold an offer with LSE, the Admissions Office will continue to send you newsletters. You will not, however, receive a CAS statement (see page 26) or the Pre-Arrival Instructions email (see page 13) unless you hold a firm offer with the School.

Can someone make enquiries on my behalf if I'm taking a gap year or am unavailable during the application process?

If you are planning on travelling during a gap year, or being away for any length of time, you should ensure that you have designated a named third party to speak on your behalf. You can do this by listing them as the nominated contact on your UCAS application. Due to Data Protection legislation, LSE cannot speak to third parties who are not the named contact on an applicant’s UCAS file.

When/how can I register?

Full details about registration dates and times are published on the “Your first weeks” web pages in late-July at:lse.ac.uk/yourfirstweeks but registration is likely to be the week of the 18 September. You will also receive detailed information about Welcome Week and registration in the Undergraduate Admissions Welcome Guide, which will be emailed to you as part of your Welcome Pack before the end of August. You will need to ensure that you are in London to register on the date specified for your programme.

How many hours a week will I study?

As all programmes are different, there is no exact number of contact/study hours for all students. However a typical undergraduate timetable may involve nine to fifteen hours of teaching per week. We would expect that in addition to this formal contact time, LSE students spend at least twenty eight hours pursuing their own research and studies to make up a full working week. More information about contact hours, timetables and first year programmes can be found on the departmental websites, listed on page 50.

Where can I find more information about my programme?

The best place to find more information about your programme is on your department’s web pages. See page 50 at the back of this book for a list of departmental contact information.

Where can I access preliminary reading lists?

Many departmental websites (see question above) provide preliminary reading lists.

What can I expect after I graduate from LSE?

LSE graduates enjoy some of the highest starting salaries of students graduating from UK universities. Detailed information about the destination of LSE graduates is collected by the LSE Careers Office six months and three years after graduation. This information, broken down by subject of study, can be found online at:lse.ac.uk/graduateDestinations

After graduating from the School you will also have access to the LSE Alumni Association, which works to provide events and online networking to engage alumni globally. The association comprises over 133,000 members from almost 200 countries. More information about LSE Advancement can be found online at:lse.ac.uk/alumni

What careers support does LSE provide after I graduate?

LSE Careers provides ongoing careers support after graduation. As an LSE graduate, you will be eligible to continue using LSE Careers for five years after your graduation ceremony. For more information on the services provided by LSE Careers, visit:lse.ac.uk/careers
General requirements

All students are required to be sufficiently proficient in the English language to benefit from their studies at the School. Overseas students must also satisfy Home Office requirements in order to receive a Tier 4 (Student) visa (see page 26). An English language requirement in your offer is as important as the academic conditions.

If there is an English proficiency condition in your offer, it will be stated in your offer conditions as shown on UCAS Track and on your offer letter.

English Language Requirements

For example:

“Obtain grades AAA at A level, with an A in Maths. Plus obtain the required grade in one of the recognised English Language qualifications, as listed in the LSE 2017 guide for undergraduate offer holders, and send to the School by 1 August 2017.”

Like the above example, if your offer text states that you will need to take an English language test, you must meet the required grade before your offer can be confirmed. We will need to see certified evidence of this qualification no later than Tuesday 1 August 2017. For important information on how to provide correctly certified verification of your qualification, see page 12.

We can now verify the following English language qualifications online:

Booking an IELTS test

If you are planning to take an IELTS test we strongly urge you to plan for this early and in time to meet our 1 August deadline.

Test dates in the summer are often full and waiting to book a test could mean that you fail to meet the conditions of your offer. We cannot defer an offer on the basis of a missed English language test. More information about booking these tests can be found at ielts.org

1 IELTS, TOEFL and Trinity test scores must be achieved from one sitting. We will not accept individual component scores from multiple tests. They are also only valid for two years. Applicants entering in 2017 should offer results dated on or after 1 September 2015. For deferred applicants entering in 2018, tests must be dated on or after 1 September 2016.
Providing Verification of Your Qualifications

We will often request officially certified copies of your qualifications, either as part of your offer or to verify previous study which you have stated on your UCAS application form. If you are sitting an overseas or European qualification in late 2016 or in 2017, you will also need to provide us with certified copies of your results when they are released.

If we require proof of any previous qualifications, this will be stated on your offer letter, eg, “You are required to submit certified verification of the following qualification(s), which must be received by 1 August 2017: A levels, taken in 2016”.

If we require proof of any previous qualifications, this will be stated on your offer letter, eg, “You are required to submit certified verification of the following qualification(s), which must be received by 1 August 2016: A levels, taken in 2015”.

It is vital that you provide correctly certified copies of your qualifications. Failure to do so can result in a delay in making your offer unconditional. Alternatively, you can show us your original documentation (see below for details on this).

Ensuring copies of your documents are correctly certified

We require photocopies to be validated by a teacher at your school or by a British Council official. Photocopies of your certificates/results slips must meet the following four conditions:

1. Each page must contain the handwritten signature of a teacher from your school or by a British Council official. Scanned or stamped signatures will not be accepted.
2. The individual must also print their name.
3. The individual must also include their job title.
4. Each page must also contain the school or British Council stamp.

Unfortunately, we are unable to accept certified copies that do not feature all four of the above requirements on each page.

You should also note that not all British Councils will verify your certificates.

An example of a correctly certified document can be found at lse.ac.uk/certifiedVerification

We have enclosed with your Offer Guide a “Proof of Qualification” form, which you can include with your verified documents, but it is not compulsory. This will help ensure that we process your qualifications promptly. Additional copies of this form can be found on our website at lse.ac.uk/ugOfferHolder

When and how to submit your certified documents

You should submit any certified official documents we have requested as soon as possible. These must be received by post no later than Tuesday 1 August 2017; documents sent by email will not be accepted.

If you are an international student you should send in your documents as soon as possible as we cannot issue your CAS statement until you hold an unconditional offer.

Documents should be posted to us at:

Undergraduate Admissions
The London School of Economics and Political Science
Houghton Street
London WC2A 2AE
United Kingdom

Please allow ten working days from the date we receive your items before contacting us, to give us time to process them.

Frequently Asked Questions

Will you accept a scanned copy of my results?

No. We need to see a certified copy for official purposes and for you to be able to register. A scanned copy is therefore insufficient. All documents must be sent by post.

Will you accept laminated copies of my results?

No. We need to be able to verify that documents have not been tampered with in any way. Laminated documents make this difficult to do.

Can I submit my original documents?

Yes, if your original documents have not been altered in any way. You may submit these to us by post and we will return them to you via regular second class mail.

Important note: We do not return documents via DHL or registered post, and cannot take any responsibility for documents that are lost in the mail.

Alternatively, if you are in the UK you can bring your original documents to the Undergraduate Admissions office (please phone before to book an appointment) and we will take a photocopy of your document(s) and return the originals to you immediately.

What happens if I cannot provide evidence of my qualifications by the 1 August deadline?

If you cannot provide certified evidence of your requested qualification(s), you will not be able to register with the School. If your offer is conditional, we will not be able to confirm your place and your application will be deemed unsuccessful.

If the School finds that the examinations/qualifications you have declared on your UCAS form are inaccurate or you are unable to verify them, the School reserves the right to withdraw the offer or cancel your application.

What should I do if my results are not in English?

Documents must be in English or officially translated into English. Translated documents must be correctly certified by an official translator and provided alongside a certified photocopy of the document in the original language.

This service can usually be provided by your local university, embassy or translation service. Alternatively, the LSE Language Centre offers a translation service; see page 39 for more details. Please note that it is the responsibility of the applicant to arrange for a translation of his/her documents.

CLARISSA CHINGN

KLANG, MALAYSIA

BSC ACCOUNTING AND FINANCE

LSE is an excellent platform for every individual to get the most of what they want out of university. Besides receiving high quality education from a leading institution, I had the pleasure of organising an LSE Public Lecture under the Finance Society in partnership with LSE Sustainability titled “How Finance is Tackling Sustainability: A roadmap to the future”.

I also volunteered as a student mentor under IntoUniversity and contributed to the student voice as a student blogger and Accounting Department course representative. And who says LSE students can’t have fun; I also started salsa and swing dancing during my time here!

Currently I am working towards completing my ACA professional qualification and I plan to go into the audit (financial services) industry after graduating.
Starting from early June, all offer holders (apart from those with a deferred offer) who have firmly accepted their offer of a place will receive an email with instructions on how to submit two important forms, the Financial Undertaking Form (FUF) and the Student Verification Form (SVF). These forms are submitted via a temporary student IT account known as LSE for You.

The FUF and SVF are compulsory and must be completed and submitted prior to your registration. Completion of the FUF is also mandatory for those overseas students who require a CAS number, which is used to apply for a student visa.

Both forms should be completed and submitted within two weeks of the receipt of the email, and no later than Tuesday 1 August 2017.

Financial Undertaking Form (FUF)
Completion of the FUF is required so that the Fees Office can ascertain who will be paying your tuition fees and how. Here you will have the opportunity to include sponsor details if relevant. Overseas students who require a student visa will not be issued with a CAS number (see page 26) until the FUF has been completed and submitted.

Student Verification Form (SVF)
The SVF is an important pre-registration document that asks you to agree to the terms and conditions of registration and to upload a digital photo, which will then be used as the photo on your student ID card. Your card will be produced and ready to collect when you register with the School in September. In addition, if you have stated that you have a disability, dyslexia or a long-term medical condition on your UCAS form – or if you now wish to declare it – you will need to complete the disability section of the form.

Welcome Week and Registration

Welcome Week events
LSE Welcome Week includes a variety of formal and social activities designed to introduce you to the School, your department and the Students’ Union and to help you settle in to your studies. During this time you are invited (and sometimes required) to attend events run centrally by the School, by your individual department and by the Students’ Union.

Welcome Week takes place in September. Specific dates will be published in the summer in the Undergraduate Welcome Pack and will be made available online before you are due to join us.

Registration
To complete your formal enrolment as a student at LSE you must register in person. Registration is usually a straightforward process which involves you providing proof of your identity and eligibility to study in the UK. You will then be issued with your student card which, in addition to confirming your status as an LSE student, will allow you entry to some LSE restricted-access buildings, such as the Library.

Registration is scheduled for the week commencing 18 September 2017.

Registration times are dependent upon your programme. A preliminary Registration Schedule is listed in the Appendix.

In order to avoid delaying your registration, please ensure that you have returned all required admissions documentation, such as transcripts of results for verification, as soon as possible and no later than Tuesday 1 August 2017 to the Undergraduate Admissions Office.

Please also ensure that you have completed and submitted the online Student Verification Form and Financial Undertaking Form, via your temporary LSE for You account, no later than Tuesday 1 August 2017.

What to bring with you to Registration

For EEA (European Economic Area) – this includes the EU and UK students:
In addition to your offer letter or Statement of Confirmation you should bring photographic identification that verifies your UK or EEA nationality, such as your passport, or national identity card (please note that a driving licence does not verify nationality and, therefore, cannot be accepted). Please note that the School is required to take a copy of your documentation at registration.

For non-EEA students entering the UK with a visa:
In addition to your offer letter or Statement of Confirmation you should bring your passport and if you have one, your biometric residence permit showing evidence of your entitlement to study at LSE and the period for which you have permission to remain in the UK. Please note that the School is required to take a copy of your documentation at registration.
FEES

Every student is charged a fee for each year of his or her programme. Fees cover all registration and examination fees payable to the School and to the University of London for lectures, classes and individual supervision, lectures given at other colleges under intercollegiate arrangements and membership of the Students’ Union. It does not cover living costs, travel or fieldwork or repeat fees. Fees are fixed in March for the following session only.

See lse.ac.uk/tableOfFees for a complete list of fees.

Your offer letter will specify how much you will be charged for your tuition fees. The School does not require you to pay a fee deposit when you accept our offer of admission, though if you wish you may make a payment as soon as you have an offer. However, before you register at the School you must complete a Financial Undertaking Form (FUF) confirming that, if admitted, you have adequate funds available to meet the School’s fees and your living costs for the full period of your proposed programme of study at the School. Applicants who firmly accept their offer from LSE your proposed programme of study at the School.

Important note: The School cannot accept responsibility for students arriving to start a degree programme without sufficient funds and without having already explored all possible options of financial assistance from the School and other organisations.

2017/18 fees

UK/EU fees

The LSE tuition fee for new UK/EU undergraduates beginning their studies in 2017 be £9,250 for the first year, but may increase in line with inflation in subsequent years.

Important note: the fee level listed for Home/EU undergraduates is provisional; the fee level is set by the UK Government and will be confirmed once a formal change to the fee has been agreed by Parliament and announced by the Government. LSE can confirm that the fee for EU undergraduate who apply to start with us in 2017 will be charged the stated applicable Home/EU fee provided this is permitted by UK law.

Home UK and EU students do not have to pay their full tuition fees upfront. The UK Government provides students with a tuition fee loan to cover the full cost of the fee for the duration of the undergraduate programme.

Important note: EU students applying for a place at an English university or further education institution in the 2017 to 2018 academic year will continue to be eligible for the tuition fee loan for the duration of their course. This means that students applying to study from 2017 to 2018 will not only be eligible for the same funding as they are now, but that their eligibility will continue throughout their course, even if the UK exits the European Union during that period.

You do not start repaying the loan until you have graduated from your programme and you are earning over £21,000 per year.

The tuition fee loan is administered by Student Finance England (SFE). To apply, please visit the Directgov website at gov.uk/student-finance. You should visit this website so that you understand the help that is available, and begin the application process as soon as possible.

Students can opt, if they prefer, to pay the tuition fee upfront or throughout the course.

Students from Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland wanting to find out more information should refer to the following websites:

Welsh Assembly
wales.gov.uk/topics/educationandskills

Student Awards Agency Scotland
saas.gov.uk

Department for Employment and Learning in Northern Ireland

Overseas fees

For all non-UK/EU (overseas) students, universities charge fees to cover the full cost of tuition.

The LSE fee for overseas undergraduate students beginning their studies in 2017 will be £18,408 for the first year. Fees for overseas students will rise each year by at least the level of inflation.

The School does all it can to keep costs under control, but you should allow for an increase of around four per cent each year.

Channel Islands and Isle of Man students

If you are classified as a student from the Channel Islands or Isle of Man for the purpose of fees, you or your family will have to make a contribution towards tuition fees. Island students enrolling on undergraduate first degree programmes of study in 2017 will be charged a tuition fee of £9,250, the same fee as English students. Students from the Channel Islands or Isle of Man should contact their local Education Department for further information regarding financing their studies:

Deferred offer holders from 2016

Applicants who submitted an application in the 2016 admissions cycle and are holding a deferred entry place for 2017 will pay the fee published on the LSE website for the actual year of entry.
PAYING YOUR FEES

When to pay your fees

Offer holders can pay their fees as soon as they have their offer, and up to 21 September 2017. After this date, you will be placed on a termly Payment Plan. More details can be found on the Fees Office website at lse.ac.uk/feesoffice

How to pay your fees

LSE accepts payment of fees by cheque, credit/debit card or bank transfer, or via LSE’s online payment facility. More information will be provided in the Undergraduate Admissions newsletter, or see the Fees Office website for more details.

If you have taken out a Tuition Fee Loan via Student Finance England

LSE will receive information about your fee loan directly from Student Finance England in October 2017. The Fees Office will then contact you to check that the information we have received is correct. If your application to Student Finance England is late or delayed, you should contact the Fees Office for advice and support. You will not be asked to pay your fees until the Fees Office has discussed the situation with you.

English students can apply for their loan online at gov.uk/student-finance

If you or your family are paying your fees

If you are paying your own fees please see the Fees Office website for more details.

If you have received an award from LSE

Scholarships and awards made by LSE are put towards your fees for the year, in the first instance, unless you have arranged payment of all or part of your fees to LSE. If you do arrange for the full or part payment of your fees, eg via a tuition fee loan from Student Finance England, then that portion of your LSE scholarship or award will be released to you to help with maintenance costs. LSE Bursaries (UK students) are always released directly to students. All payments are made in termly instalments at the start of term.

If the award made by the School or fee loan covers only part of your fees, you are responsible for paying the remainder. You must pay the remainder either in full or in instalments.

If your fees are to be paid fully or partially by an organisation

If your fees, or part of them, are to be paid directly to the School by a company, government department or government body, educational institution, research body or charitable organisation, then it will have to accept liability for the fees. You can submit proof from the outside organisation in the form of a letter confirming the value and duration of the financial award it is making.

The organisation should state in its letter how much of your fees it will pay; you will then be responsible for the rest, and will be liable for the full fees until we have this confirmation. Please note, this does not include any maintenance grant, which is paid to the student and not to the School. The organisation must pay its share upon receipt of the School’s invoice and you must pay your share according to the schedule on the Fees Office website.

Important notes:

- If the organisation does not confirm acceptance of your fee liability, withdraws sponsorship or fails to pay, you will be required to pay the fees yourself.
- You are responsible for ensuring that the organisation confirms that it will pay your fees by submitting proof online via the Financial Undertaking Form, or by submitting a letter of confirmation directly to the Fees Office.

Early payment reward*

LSE offers an early payment reward, which is added to a student’s LSE sQuid Card (an e-money payment system attached to your LSE ID card) and can be used for payment in the many LSE catering areas and bars on campus. Please note this is not a reduction in your fees. You do not need to claim this reward, it will be automatically applied to your sQuid card in late October. See page 48 for more information.

At the time of going to print, the amount of the payment reward has not yet been set. Further information regarding the payment awards for 2017 will be published on the Fees website.

You should be aware that:

- there are no cash alternatives
- there are no cash refunds offered on credits
- all rewards must be spent by 31 July 2018.

*Early Payment Award: Please note that this scheme is still pending approval for the 2017/18 session. A decision about the scheme will be made by February/March 2017. Please check the fees website for further information.

Receipts and visa updates

If you are an overseas student requiring a visa, information on your fee payments is automatically sent to the Home Office and your CAS is updated once your payment has cleared, to reflect the amount paid.

Important note: It can take up to two weeks for some payments to clear. Please wait until you are issued with an updated CAS, before booking any visa appointments.

Penalties for late payment

There are penalties for late payment. These may include loss of library rights, de-registration and referral to Credit Control. You will be warned by email if your payments are late and/or if sanctions are going to be imposed on you. At this time you should contact the Fees Office directly.

Failure to pay your fees

If any portion of your fees remain unpaid, whether by yourself or other external organisation, then your exam results will not be published and will not be made available to you.

Problems

If you encounter any problems with the payment of your fees you should contact the Fees Office immediately.

FEE STATUS CLASSIFICATION

The Student Fees (Qualifying Courses and Persons) (England) Regulations 2007 govern the definition of “home” (UK/EU) and “overseas” students for the purpose of fees. These regulations enable individual institutions to classify the fee status of students. The onus is on individual students to satisfy the institution that they meet the criteria to be classified as home students for the purpose of fees.

LSE makes the final decision on whether you are a home UK, home EU, or overseas student, based on the evidence that you provide. It is important to give us all the information that is required to make the correct fee assessment.

Only certain categories of students will be charged the “home” fee. These are given below in general terms. For more detailed information, and to see whether you fall into any of these, or any other category, please refer to the UKCISA website at ukcisa.org.uk

Home UK students

In order to qualify as a home UK student, you must meet all of the following criteria:

• You must also have been “ordinarily resident” in the UK for the full three year period before the “first day of the first academic year of the course” AND
• The main purpose for your residence in the UK and Islands must not have been to receive full-time education during any part of this three year period.

Important note: For LSE the “first day of the first academic year of the course” is 1 September.

The following categories of students may also qualify for the “home” fee:

• Refugees (recognised by the UK government) and their spouses/civil partners and children
• Persons who applied for asylum and as a result have been granted Humanitarian Protection and their families
• Persons with long residence in the UK.

The following factors are not in themselves sufficient to warrant a “home” fee classification:

• Possession of British nationality
• Ownership of property in the UK or EEA
• Employment within the area
• Payment of taxes.

Home EU students

In order to qualify as a home EU student, you must meet all of the following criteria:

• On the first day of the academic year of your course you must be a national of an EU country, OR the “relevant family member” of a UK national or non-UK EU national AND that relevant family member must be in the UK as a self-sufficient person or as a student AND
• You must have been ordinarily resident in the European Economic Area and/or Switzerland for the three year period before the first day of the first academic year of the course AND
• The main purpose for your residence in the EEA must not have been to receive full-time education during any part of that three year period.

The following may also qualify for the “home” EU fee:

• EEA and Swiss workers, their spouses, civil partners and children in the UK who have been resident in the EEA or Switzerland for three years
• Child of Swiss national
• Child of a Turkish worker.

The following factors are not in themselves sufficient to warrant a “home” fee classification:

• Possession of EU nationality
• Ownership of property in the EEA
• Employment within the area
• Payment of taxes.

Re-consideration of fee status

If you are an applicant, and believe that the School should reconsider your fee status, you should contact us immediately as we generally do not amend fee statuses after an offer is made.

If you are an offer holder and are disputing your fee status, you should be aware that we will need enough time to consider your query before 1 September. In order for us to do this, you should contact us immediately and no later than Tuesday 1 August 2017.

We reserve the right to review your offer of admission and the award of any financial aid if your fee status changes. Once you are a registered student, you should be aware that your fee status will only be reclassified in exceptional circumstances (either a change in the law or a change to the status of the student). Any change in fee status will usually not commence until the following academic year.

If you think you have been classified incorrectly, please contact the Undergraduate Admissions office immediately on ug.offerholder@lse.ac.uk or +44 (0)20 7955 6500.

See the UKCISA website for independent advice about fee status ukcisa.org.uk
LSE, the UK government and overseas governments offer a range of financial support packages for undergraduate students.

Financial support for UK students

The information given below is for students who reside in England. Students residing in Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales should check the following websites for more information, as none of the devolved administrations have published full details of 2017 support at the time of going to press.

Scotland: saas.gov.uk
Northern Ireland: delni.gov.uk
Wales: studentfinancewales.co.uk

LSE Bursaries: lse.ac.uk/financialSupport

Student loan for maintenance

The student loan for maintenance will continue to be available to students entering higher education in 2017.

The maximum maintenance loans are:

• £11,002 for students living at home.
• £7,097 for students living away from home.

Assessments are made by Student Finance England (for students from England, and by the relevant body for students from Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland). Applications can be made online at: gov.uk/Student-Finance. Information on interest rates is also on this site.

Tuition fee and maintenance loans are combined for repayment. Repayments of all loans start the April after leaving higher education, and only once the graduate is earning in excess of £21,000. Repayments are based on 9 per cent of earnings over £21,000. For instance, if your income was £25,000 you would repay £30 per month.

Repayments are based on 9 per cent of earnings once the graduate is earning in excess of £21,000. For instance, if your income was £25,001-30,000, you would repay £3,000 per month.

Tuition fee and maintenance loans are combined for repayment. Repayments of all loans start the April after leaving higher education, and only once the graduate is earning in excess of £21,000.

The LSE Bursary

The LSE Bursary is for UK students who have a means tested element to their maintenance loan. It is worth up to £12,000 over a three year programme or £16,000 for the four-year PPE programme. The value of the LSE Bursary is linked to students’ (or their families’) income levels, which are assessed following your online application to Student Finance England when calculating the Maintenance Loan. The maximum LSE Bursary of £4,000 per year is awarded to those students with the lowest residual income. The value of the bursary then tapers on a sliding scale. Students with a residual income in excess of £42,611 will not receive an LSE Bursary. These bursaries do not have to be repaid.

There is no limit to the number of LSE Bursaries which will be made available each year, so students do not compete for the awards. You do not have to apply separately to LSE for the bursary. If you have been assessed for a means tested element to your maintenance loan, your details will be passed to LSE automatically and the value of the bursary is calculated accordingly. If you are eligible you will receive the award once you have registered at the School.

Important note: If you want to be considered quickly and easily for the LSE Bursary, you should ensure that when both you and your parents complete the online form for funding you do not tick the box opting out of sharing information. Student Finance will then share your financial data with universities, and we can proceed to award any bursary promptly.

LSE Discretionary Bursary

A number of Discretionary Bursaries are available for new LSE students who face exceptional financial needs, including, for example, caring responsibilities, financial need related to disability or an unavoidable requirement to live at home. The value of the award may vary according to need. These bursaries do not have to be repaid. Any home UK or EU student who receives an offer of a place at LSE will be eligible to apply for the Discretionary Bursary.

Students should apply directly to the Financial Support Office, using the relevant application form available on the LSE Financial Support Office website from November 2016. In the case of students from England and Wales, if the School has awarded an LSE Bursary with a value of under £4,000, you are also entitled to apply for a Discretionary Bursary.

Please note: You must have applied for all statutory support available before you can be considered. Students who are made an offer of a Discretionary Bursary will receive the award once they have enrolled at the School.

LSE Scholarships

Each year LSE awards a number of scholarships – funded by private or corporate donation – to UK applicants to the School. The number, value, eligibility criteria and type of awards vary from year to year. Awards are made on the basis of financial need and academic merit. For more details about these scholarships and information on how to apply please see the Financial Support Office website.

New scholarships become available during the course of the admissions cycle. We recommend that you check the Financial Support Office website, lse.ac.uk/financialSupport on a regular basis.

Pass the Torch Scholarships

Two Pass the Torch Scholarships, each worth £20,000 per year for three years, are available for students from the EU or UK for 2017 entry. For information on how to apply please see the Financial Support Office website.

The deadline for home UK applications is 1 June 2017.

Financial support for asylum seekers

LSE Awards for asylum seekers

LSE undergraduate offer-holders who are in the process of seeking asylum or who have been granted limited leave to remain by the UK Government following an unsuccessful application for asylum would normally be assessed as having “Overseas” status for fee purposes at LSE.

LSE offers three awards made up of a partial fee waiver and financial support for:

• Asylum seekers holding an offer of a place on an LSE undergraduate programme; and
• Offer holders who have been granted limited leave as a result of an asylum application.

This package is administered solely at the discretion of LSE. It is not transferable to another university. To apply please see the Financial Support Office website but note that the deadline is 26 April 2017.
Financial support for EU students

UK Government support

EU nationals generally can apply for a tuition fee loan when studying in the UK. However EU nationals are not usually eligible for UK Government financial support for maintenance unless they have lived in the UK or Islands for five years before the start of their programme. Residence in the UK for the purpose of receiving full-time education will no longer be excluded from this period and you will not need to be “settled” in the UK within the meaning of the Immigration Act 1971.

Important note: EU students applying for a place at an English university or further education institution in the 2017 to 2018 academic year will continue to be eligible for student loans and grants - and will be for the duration of their course. This means that students applying to study from 2017 to 2018 will not only be eligible for the same funding and support as they are now, but that their eligibility will continue throughout their course, even if the UK exits the European Union during that period.

For more information visit gov.uk/student-finance

The LSE Bursary

EU students from low-income backgrounds may be eligible for an LSE Bursary. If you are an EU student we will not receive any information about you from Student Finance England. You should apply for the bursary using the Undergraduate Scholarship Form at the Financial Support website: lse.ac.uk/FinancialSupport

LSE Scholarships

LSE offers a limited number of undergraduate scholarships of varying amounts each year to EU students.

Pass the Torch Scholarships

Two Pass the Torch Scholarships, each worth £20,000 per year for three years, are available for students from the EU or UK for 2017 entry. For information on how to apply please see the Financial Support Office website.

The deadline for home EU applications is 1 June 2017.

Financial support for overseas students

Before contacting the LSE Financial Support Office, you should contact your home government, ministry of education or nearest British Council Office for information and advice about financial aid and scholarships for overseas study. You should bear in mind that securing financial aid can be a long and time consuming process, so we advise you to start your research early. The British Council website at britishcouncil.org may also provide helpful information.

LSE Undergraduate Support Scheme

The LSE Undergraduate Support Scheme is designed to help overseas students who do not have the necessary funds to meet all their costs. This financial aid is available only for study at LSE, and the awards are renewable for each year of your programme.

Application forms can be downloaded from the Financial Support website. We will ask you to submit information about your financial situation so that we can make an assessment of your financial need. However, please be aware that funding is limited and that, unfortunately, we are unable to assist everyone who applies. If you are eligible to be entered for any LSE scholarships then we will use the same information to put you forward for those – you will not need to complete a second form.

For further details of the Undergraduate Support Scheme, and information on how to apply, please see the Financial Support Office website.

You are advised to apply early. The final deadline for completed application forms to be received by LSE by 26 April 2017.

LSE Scholarships

The School offers a limited number of undergraduate scholarships of varying amounts each year.

For 2017, the overseas scholarships include one LSE Mauritius Scholarship, which has a value of the School’s fee (£18,408 in 2017-18) per annum. This award is renewable for each year of a three year undergraduate programme. This scholarship is for an undergraduate Mauritian national who is domiciled in Mauritius and is joining the School in September 2017.

New scholarships become available during the course of the admissions cycle. We recommend that you check the Financial Support Office website, lse.ac.uk/financialSupport on a regular basis.

The deadline for all scholarships available to overseas applicants is 26 April 2017.

Important note: The School has limited funds and is unfortunately unable to help every applicant for financial assistance. The School is not able to offer any assistance to students who are under-funded when they start their course.

External sources of funding

In special circumstances, applications for undergraduate study may be considered under the following schemes. You should also refer to the School’s website for further information lse.ac.uk/financialSupport

Commonwealth Scholarships and Fellowship Plan (CSFP)

The CSFP is usually for postgraduate students only, but in special circumstances awards may be made to undergraduates. Awards are generally only made to undergraduates if there are no undergraduate courses in a particular subject in your own country or regional university.

To be eligible you must be a citizen of either a Commonwealth country (not the Commonwealth of Independent States) or a British dependent territory. You should contact the Commonwealth Scholarship Agency in your own country.

Agency addresses are listed in Appendix II of the Commonwealth Universities Yearbook. If you are already in the UK, the Association of Commonwealth Universities (ACU) can help you with general information concerning the scheme, but it cannot issue application forms to international students. For further information see cscuk.dfid.gov.uk

Rotary Foundation Ambassadorial Scholarships

Scholarships are open to citizens of countries where there are Rotary Clubs, and tenable at an assigned institution in a country where Rotary Clubs are located, but not in the country of the sponsoring club. Details are available from your local branch. Applications should be made 18-24 months in advance of the proposed start date.

For further information see: rotary.org

US and Canadian student loans

US student loans are available to US students studying at LSE. For more information, visit lse.ac.uk/intranet/lseservices/financedivision/feesandstudentfinance/feesandLoans/LoansUSA.aspx or the official US Federal website at: fafsa.ed.gov

Canadian students should seek information from their own province.

Additional financial support while you are studying

LSE provides additional aid to students who experience unexpected financial difficulties once they have registered on their programme of study. Please note, LSE will not provide financial support to students who register without sufficient funds to cover their fees or living expenses.
Student Support Fund

The Student Support Fund is an emergency hardship fund for students who are experiencing financial difficulties which could not have been foreseen at the time of first registration at the School. It cannot be used to assist students who register without sufficient funds for their fees and living expenses. Students must be fully registered to apply.

LSE Access

LSE Access funds are available to provide help for low income UK students who may need extra financial support for their course and to stay in higher education. More specifically, the funds:

- can meet particular costs which are not already being met from other grants
- can help if students are in financial hardship
- can provide emergency payments for unexpected financial crises and
- can help students who may be considering giving up their course because of financial problems.

Disabled Students’ Allowance (DSA)

Disabled students from the UK can access DSAs which are grants to help with extra costs you might face as a result of a disability, long-term health condition, mental-health condition or specific learning difficulty like dyslexia. DSAs don’t need to be paid back and can help pay for specialist equipment, non-medical helpers, additional travel costs and other costs like photocopying.

Childcare Grant (CCG)

You can apply for a Childcare Grant if you’re a full-time undergraduate student living and studying in England and you:

- have at least one dependent child who is under 15 and in registered or approved childcare; or
- have at least one dependent child who is under 17, is registered as having special educational needs, and in registered or approved childcare.

Parents’ Learning Allowance (PLA)

You can apply for a Parents’ Learning Allowance if you’re a full-time undergraduate student with dependent children. This helps with the extra costs associated with being a parent and a student. You don’t need to be paying for childcare to be eligible.

The LSE Careers Service

The LSE Careers Service can help you find employment while you are a registered student at LSE, and will help you think ahead to future employment with opportunities for internships, voluntary work and work placements. As well as providing careers guidance, the LSE Careers Service also runs an online jobs site for LSE students looking for casual work in the London area. The site advertises part-time, temporary and holiday work and aims to be the first port of call when you need extra funds. Further information about the services offered by the LSE Careers Service can be found at lse.ac.uk/careers

You should be aware that the School advises students not to work for more than 15 hours per week during term-time. Also, you should not rely on finding employment to allow you to fund your tuition fees and/or living expenses. Please see the “Employment whilst studying” section on the next page for further information.

Employment whilst studying

In general, you should not assume that you can fund your studies by working during the academic year. There are occasionally opportunities for work at LSE but they are very limited. If you do find paid work LSE advises that students work no more than 15 hours per week, as they are expected to dedicate 40 hours per week to classes and private study. This is subject to:

• any restrictions on work placed on you by your funding body
• any restrictions on work placed on you by immigration regulations (if you are an overseas student)
• your paid work not interfering with your studies at the School (your classes must be your priority)
• you not changing classes or seminars to fit your paid work schedule.

Students with EU citizenship have the same right to paid employment as UK citizens. If you are from outside the EU, your student visa may state “able to work” or “able to work as authorised by the Secretary of State” or “able to work under Tier 4 rules”. This means you have permission to work, subject to the guidelines above. However, students are still restricted in some areas and must not engage in business, self-employment or the provision of services as a professional sports person or entertainer nor pursue a career by filling a permanent full-time vacancy. For further information please see the UKCISA web site at: ukcisa.org.uk

If you do not have permission to work and you think that this is a mistake, contact the International Student Visa Advice Team (ISVAT) for advice.

SHAHAN SHAHID
EKARACHI, PAKISTAN
BSC BUSINESS MATHEMATICS AND STATISTICS

My passion for mathematics and statistics was the primary reason for applying to this particular programme. I like that it also covers business and economic concepts. The opportunity to study quantitative subjects such as mathematics and statistics in the context of their applications in the corporate world is particularly useful for employment in the banking and finance sectors, a field I am particularly interested in.

The best thing about LSE is that there is a multitude of resources available to students. It is very easy to approach our lecturers and teachers and there are events or seminars every day that help us gain knowledge about the practical applications of our coursework. The library and online resources for LSE students enable us to research, in depth, virtually any topic related to our coursework.

We are also taught by some of the best and brightest academics and professionals. Listening to such people has really motivated me to work hard for my future endeavours and their invaluable advice always serves to clarify any uncertainty I might have about my future goals.
COST OF LIVING

The perceived cost of living and studying in a city is a concern for many students. However, London can be as expensive or economical as your personal tastes dictate – some students are able to live on less, some on more. It’s important to remember that thousands of students are able to successfully live in London on a student’s budget. In fact, the best time to take advantage of all that London has to offer may be as a student.

You should consider the following outgoings and potential sources of funding when determining your budget. Please note that this list below is a guideline to assist you, and is not meant to be exhaustive.

Outgoings:
- Tuition fees (see above and page 14)
- Accommodation (see above and page 22)
- Utilities (see page 48)
- Travel to/from London (see page 43)
- Travel within London (see page 46)
- Food/drink
- Books
- Entertainment
- Mobile phone
- Household expenses
- One-off arrival costs (housing deposit, clothing, bedding, household products).

Potential income:
- Financial support, bursary, scholarship
- Savings
- Family
- Loans
- Employment.

Living costs for international students

If you are an overseas student coming to London for the first time, you may also find it necessary to budget for some one-off arrival costs. These will vary in nature but may include the purchase of warm clothes (if you are coming from a warmer climate than the UK), kitchen utensils (if you live in self-catering accommodation), a one month deposit for accommodation (in addition to monthly rent) and other more general costs. It is vital that you ensure that you have sufficient funds to cover all aspects of your programme at LSE and that you are clear on the costs involved.

Dependants

It is particularly important for students bringing dependants with them to London to ensure that you have made adequate financial arrangements. The School cannot assist with the living costs of students’ dependants.

Fees and Financial Support

You should make sure that you factor fees, loans and financial support into your calculations of living costs.

More information on financial support can be found on LSE’s website at lse.ac.uk/financialSupport. You should also have a look at the Financial Support section of this guide, which begins on page 17.

Accommodation

For most students, accommodation is one of the largest expenses involved in studying in London. However, there is a wide range of accommodation available to students – from LSE and intercollegiate halls to private housing.

LSE accommodation is not always the cheapest accommodation available, but it is guaranteed for all first year students who apply on time (by 30 June 2017), and it does offer a prime central location. Some halls also include an evening meal.

Students also have the option to live in private accommodation in outer London. This can be cheaper, but you will need to ensure that you budget for any travel costs you may incur getting to and from campus.

Finding accommodation does not need to be a daunting process; LSE is here to help you. Visit our Accommodation website at lse.ac.uk/accommodation for comprehensive advice on LSE, intercollegiate or private housing options.

Saving money in London

There are lots of free things to see and do in London. A walk through its historic streets, through its many parks or along the Thames is free. Many of London’s museums have free entry, and free outdoor festivals occur year-round in the capital.

LSE also has a bar and a club night on campus, all of which offer cheaper prices than an average night out in the West End.

See page 47 for more information about entertainment in London.

Discounts on travel

Travelling in the city doesn’t have to be expensive. Many areas of London are walkable, and the bus offers a cheaper transport option to the tubes and trains. Transport for London also offers a special Student Oyster Card, which provides discounted fares on transport. At the time of going to print, this is 30 per cent off a full adult fare.

See page 46 for more information about London Transport and its associated costs and discounts.

Discounts on shopping

The National Union of Students (NUS) is an excellent source of information for students looking to save money. Applying for a NUS card will give you access to numerous discounts available, from books to clothes to eating out.

See page 48 for more details about NUS and other student discounts, and page 48 for tips on great places to shop.
ACCOMMODATION

LSE guarantees an offer of accommodation, in either one of the LSE Halls of Residence or one of the Intercollegiate Halls (which are open to all University of London students), to all first year undergraduates who apply by the deadline.

Undergraduate students in residences are usually offered housing contract lengths to match the academic year. Contract lengths available for undergraduate students are 31 weeks (the academic year excluding the Easter and Christmas vacations), 38 weeks (the academic year including the Easter and Christmas vacations) or 50 weeks (the academic year including the Easter, Christmas and Summer vacations).

LSE and University of London Accommodation

LSE offers a variety of styles of accommodation. There are undergraduate only halls, and halls which accommodate both undergraduate and graduate students.

In all of them, there will be a varied mix of students, home and overseas, men and women. Residences offer a supportive environment for those living away from home for the first time, providing a pathway to independence and establishing networks of friends that last a life time.

In all residences there are student committees to organise regular events, such as nights out, theatre trips or film shows.

All of the LSE halls are in Central London within a four mile radius of the LSE campus and within London Transport zones 1 or 2, though most are in zone 1 (see map on page 52).

The prices quoted below for LSE and University of London Residences are the weekly rate, per person, for 2016/17 and are for guidance only. Accommodation rates for 2017/18 will be available on the Accommodation website at lse.ac.uk/accommodation once accommodation applications open in February 2017. Room rates differ from hall to hall, according to varying factors. This may include:

- relative room size in the building; location within the building; access to shared facilities, such as bathrooms, kitchens, etc
- bed size
- whether or not meals are included in the weekly charge.

Laura Wright
Durham, UK
BSc International Relations

LSE is renowned for its academic prestige and the teaching staff live up to this reputation. For an international relations student, being based in the centre of London allows you to feel closer to global affairs. Most diplomatic visits and conferences are held in the capital, and having Parliament and the House of Commons just along the river fosters a real political atmosphere on campus.

Studying in the city also prepares you for the real world of work. This was something that I really valued over the artificiality of campus life. LSE is also relatively small in comparison to other universities, and it has a real community feel.

Since starting at LSE I have definitely become more independent in all aspects. I play first team tennis, and last year I also took part in the ski trip and hosted a weekly house music session with Pulse Radio which helped me to realise that I want to go down the route of broadcasting.

Last year as part of my French course I visited Science Po Menton in the South of France for an NMUN crisis conference on the situation in Libya. This helped me to build upon my language and debating skills.

Intercollegiate Halls of Residence
There are six Intercollegiate Halls, accommodating undergraduate and postgraduate students from LSE, as well as from the other colleges of the University of London. These halls provide the opportunity to meet and socialise with a diverse mix of students. For 2016/17, there were up to 360 places in University of London halls for LSE students. All offer 40 week contracts covering term-time, Christmas and Easter vacations, and include two meals per day in the fees.

The latest information about the availability of these halls will be available on the LSE website at the time applications open in early 2017.
College Hall
Malet Street, WC1E 7HZ
Transferred in 1932 to its present building in the University of London precinct, College Hall has 59 single rooms with wash hand basin, 243 en-suite single rooms, 16 en-suite single rooms for those with special access requirements and 21 double en-suite rooms.
- Single room, shared facilities – £210.39
- Single en-suite – £242.98
- Double en-suite – £281.23

Connaught Hall
36-45 Tavistock Square, WC1H 9EX
Founded by the Duke of Connaught in 1919 as a memorial to the Duchess of Connaught, the original premises in Torrington Square were given by the Duke to the University in 1928. The hall forms part of a terrace of converted Georgian houses, situated in an attractive square in central London. Connaught Hall has 204 single rooms, and five shared rooms. All rooms have internet access, telephones and wash hand basins.
- Single room, shared facilities – £201.89
- Small single room, shared facilities – £168.95
- Twin room, shared facilities – from £139.91 to £149.10

International Hall
Lansdowne Terrace, WC1N 1AS
International Hall has 414 single study bedrooms, 30 self-catering single studios, 154 self-catering double studios and a range of one and two bedroom flats. Flats and studios are normally reserved for postgraduate students. International Hall also has some single rooms in single sex areas during the academic year. All types of accommodation are recently refurbished and have internet access and telephones; all single rooms have wash basins.
- Single study bedroom, with shared bathroom (including meals) – £198.35

The Garden Halls
1 Cartwright Gardens, London WC1H 9EB
Located in the heart of Bloomsbury, the Garden Halls are due to open again in September 2016 following a successful refurbishment project. This modern complex consists of 1183 study bedrooms and offers a vast range of facilities and communal spaces, including games room, cinema room, music room, landscaped gardens and 4 tennis courts. Room types include single rooms, single ensuite rooms, townhouse rooms and studio rooms.
- Single room, shared facilities – £189.39
- Single ensuite room – from £200.41
- Studio room – from £205.91
- Townhouse room – from £205.91

Private housing
Information and general advice on living in privately rented housing is available at lse.ac.uk/accommodation for those students who would prefer this option.

How to apply
You can apply for accommodation in LSE and Intercollegiate residential accommodation using our online application procedure once you have received your offer of a place at the School, however offers of accommodation will not be made until you have accepted your offer to study at the School.

Starting in February 2017, visit the Accommodation website at lse.ac.uk/accommodation. Click on “Student Accommodation” and then “Apply”, where you’ll find a link to Hallpad, our online application portal.

Using your unique LSE student ID number, you’ll be able to log in, submit your accommodation application, check the progress of your application, accept your Licence Agreement

* LSE Halls that provide meals offer vegetarian, Halal and Kosher options.
 Intercollegiate Halls room rates include breakfast and dinner each day for all halls (brunch and dinner at weekends).
All provide vegetarian options.

‡ Journey time by underground.
when it is ready, pay your deposit and inform us of any changes to your plans such as arriving earlier or later than scheduled.

For those beginning their programme in 2017, applications should be made before 30 June 2017 to benefit from our guarantee of an offer of accommodation for all new first year undergraduates. Our service standard times and decision dates will be published online once the application process is underway. Applications from new undergraduate students will be taken after 30 June but are not subject to a guaranteed offer.

Payment of halls’ fees
If you have an unconditional offer to study, the deposit is requested at the point the original offer of accommodation is made. For students with conditional offers to study, offers of accommodation will be still be made within 28 days of your application being received, however, the deposit is only requested at the time you meet the conditions of your offer to study at the School. The deposit is held against future rent charges and the balance of this deposit is ultimately returnable as a credit to final term fees.

University of London Intercollegiate Halls require a registration fee on the acceptance of an offer. Additionally, some require a deposit.

When planning your finances for the year, please note that fees for LSE halls are due by the end of the second week of each term. Different payments schedules apply in University of London Intercollegiate halls.

A full schedule of payment dates for 2017/18 will be provided to each applicant as part of their Licence Agreement, Terms and Conditions and Residence Regulations.

Insurance offer holders
Students who are holding the School as an insurance place should make their accommodation application along with all other applicants by 30 June 2017. Offers of accommodation are not made unless or until an insurance place becomes firm.

Disabled students
The School offers a range of accommodation for disabled students, including rooms with adapted bathrooms and kitchens, sensory equipment for fire alarms and much more. Almost all residences (except Carr-Saunders Hall) have lifts and/or ramp access to the front entrance. High Holborn and Grosvenor House have a limited number of rooms with access to an adapted kitchen with adjustable counters which can be lowered or raised as required.

LSE actively encourages applicants and students to disclose their disability. This helps us to ensure that supportive measures are in place. Applicants who make a disclosure will be asked to submit additional information alongside their accommodation application in order to advise the School of their particular requirements.

For advice and further information in choosing accommodation which best suits your requirements, please contact Accommodation@lse.ac.uk.

Applicants with medical requirements are also encouraged to make contact with the Disability and Well-being Office at: Disability-Dyslexia@lse.ac.uk

Couples
LSE residences Rosebery Avenue, Northumberland House and Bankside House, can accommodate a small number of couples in double or twin rooms.

Students with children
Accommodation for LSE students with children is available only through the University of London International Hall or through Zebra Housing Association. Applicants with children are advised to seek early guidance and information from the Residential Services Office on options for suitable housing in London.

We advise international (non-EU/EEA nationals) offer holders to leave plenty of time to apply for and obtain their student visa. We recommend that you do not plan any travel during the summer until you have obtained your Tier 4 visa for LSE.

You can apply for your visa up to three months before your programme begins. You will need a CAS (Confirmation of Acceptance for Studies) number from us to complete your Tier 4 Student Visa application.

Please note the information below was updated in August 2016. Immigration rules change frequently and it is essential that you check on the LSE’s International Student Visa Advice Team (ISVAT) website at lse.ac.uk/ISVAT, and the Home Office website at gov.uk/browse/visas-immigration for up-to-date detailed information.

Confirmation of Acceptance for Studies (CAS)

The CAS is a unique reference number issued to LSE by the Home Office after we supply them with your programme, admissions and personal details. It can only be issued to you by LSE once you have:

- firmly accepted your unconditional offer
- completed your Financial Undertaking Form (FUF)
- confirmed to us your passport details, including the correct spelling and order of your name as it appears in your passport.

Once your CAS number has been assigned by the Home Office, the Undergraduate Admissions Office will email your CAS statement and CAS number to you. This CAS statement has no legal function; it is simply a note of the information we have supplied to Home Office so that they can issue us with a CAS number.

Most importantly, the CAS statement lists the evidence that we assessed when making the decision to offer you a place. You will need to submit evidence of these qualifications (in the form of your original certificate or transcript) along with your visa application.

Once you receive your CAS statement email, you should re-check the information it contains is correct, in particular your name, nationality, passport details and qualifications listed. If you notice an error, you should immediately contact Undergraduate Admissions by email on ug.admissions@lse.ac.uk

Important notes: It is important that you keep us up-to-date with any amendments to the information contained in the CAS Statement, such as a new passport number, so that we can update the Home Office and avoid your visa application being refused.

We cannot issue CAS numbers to offer holders who choose LSE as an insurance choice.

When do I need to apply?

Your CAS number is valid for six months and you can only use it once. You can apply for a visa up to three months before the sponsorship start date listed on your CAS. We strongly recommend that you apply as early as possible in the three month window.

Do not apply earlier than three months before your programme start date as your application will be refused, you may not receive a refund of the application fee and you will have to apply again.

You will need to submit your passport as part of your application and attend a biometrics appointment. We recommend that you do not plan any travel until your visa is granted because you will need to be available throughout the visa application process. If you use the LSE CAS your visa will entitle you to study at LSE and LSE only. If you use a CAS from a different university you will not be able to use the visa issued against that CAS to study at LSE.

If you are already studying in the UK at a different institution, you will have to apply for a Tier 4 visa for LSE before you can register and start attending your programme. You cannot begin your studies at LSE if you hold a Tier 4 visa for a different institution.

Maintenance costs and financial requirements

If you are a new student to the UK, you will have to prove that you have:

- tuition fees for the first year of your programme, plus
- maintenance for up to 9 months of your programme. The maintenance level is set at £1,265 per month. 9 x £1,265 = £11,385 max.
Important notes: You are required to have held the funds in your bank account continuously for at least 28 days from the closing balance of your bank statement before you apply for a visa. This must be a personal cash account (not stocks, shares, pensions, investments, credit cards or overdrafts). The Home Office will only accept specific documentation and it is essential that you read our guidance and the policy guidance from the Home Office to ensure that you obtain the appropriate documentation. In recent years mistakes in this area were the most common reason LSE students’ Tier 4 (General) student applications were refused. If you are correctly refused you will have to apply again and you will not get a refund for the first application.

Money paid towards tuition costs

LSE will update the Home Office CAS database with details of any tuition fee payments you make. This enables the Home Office to take such payments into account when calculating your ability to finance your studies and living costs. We will make updates to the Home Office approximately 48 hours after the money has cleared with our bank. You must wait for an updated CAS statement from us before applying if you need to show that you have paid money to LSE.

Important note: It is important to note that it can take up to two weeks for monies to clear. You should not make a payment for accommodation or fees if you have a visa appointment within the next fortnight as it is likely that we will be unable to issue you with an updated CAS statement before your appointment.

English language requirements

The Home Office currently requires sponsoring institutions to verify that students have achieved the necessary level of English proficiency. LSE will assess your English language qualification(s) and inform the Home Office as appropriate. If you are taking the IELTS or Pearson test we would encourage you to sit the exam as early as possible, as test dates can be fully booked by mid to late summer.

The Home Office will not accept IELTS results that are more than two years old. If your results are dated prior to 1 September 2015, you will need to re-sit the test.

Important note: These policies are currently under review. LSE will inform applicants of any changes if relevant.

Frequently Asked Questions

Do I need a visa (entry clearance) before I travel to the UK?

If you are a non-European Union (EU)/European Economic Area (EEA) national and you want to come to the UK as a student, you must obtain a Tier 4 (General) student visa (officially referred to as “entry clearance”) before you leave the country where you live to travel to the UK. It is not possible to request entry as a Tier 4 (General) student at the airport.

Can I come to the UK as a visitor and apply there for a student visa?

No. You cannot switch from a visitor visa to a Tier 4 (General) visa inside the UK.

Your application would be refused and you would be unable to register for your programme at LSE.

Can I apply for my student visa if I am already studying in the UK?

If you are already studying in the UK you may be able to apply for a new Tier 4 (General) student visa from within the UK. There are restrictions on who can apply inside the UK so do check the guidance on the LSE ISVAT and Home Office websites listed on the previous page.

Where do I apply for my visa?

You can apply at a Visa Application Centre or the British Embassy nearest you. To find out where and how to apply from your country, go to the “country finder” section of the Home Office website:.gov.uk/find-a-visa-application-centre.

What type of visa do I need?

You should apply for entry clearance or further leave to remain as a Tier 4 (General) student under the Points Based System. If you are aged between 16 and 18 you should still apply as a General student but you will need to provide additional documentation.

What are the requirements for obtaining a Tier 4 (General) student visa?

To qualify for a Tier 4 (General) student visa you need a total of 40 points.

• 30 points for a valid CAS number and the documents listed on your CAS;
• 10 points for meeting the financial requirements.

There are many details that you need to check based on your own circumstances. We advise you to read the detailed guidance on the ISVAT webpages and contact them if you have any questions.

Important note: To study at LSE you must obtain a student visa using the CAS number issued by LSE. Each year a number of students are unable to start their studies with us because they did not prepare their Tier 4 application in time to register at LSE. Please prepare early.
OPENING A UK BANK ACCOUNT

Opening a bank account can take several weeks, and some banks will only open an account for you after you are a registered student. It is important that you bring enough funds to cover your expenses, especially if you plan to move to London before your designated Registration date. LSE is unfortunately unable to register you early.

Steps to opening an account:

• Research the best bank account for you
  It is highly recommended that you select a bank before you arrive in London to save time after you arrive. Although LSE is unable to recommend a bank, we have compiled a list of local bank branches to help you get started which can be found at: lse.ac.uk/bankAccounts

• Know what documents you need to open an account
  This is the most important step! Different branches of the same bank often have different documentation to open accounts, and can be very specific about the format of the documentation they will accept. Bank requirements change very frequently, so always confirm what you will need directly with the bank branch where you plan to open your account. See lse.ac.uk/bankAccounts

Check in advance to see if your bank at home has a branch near LSE, or if they have a special relationship with a bank in London. If you plan to transfer money into your new account, remember that transferring funds will depend on your home bank’s procedures. This can take more time than you expect. Discuss this with your home bank before you leave and remember to bring sufficient funds, such as cash, travellers’ cheques or credit cards to cover any delays. Always avoid travelling with large amounts of cash.

• Make an appointment
  Many banks require that you book an appointment to set up an account. Many students will also be setting up banks accounts at the same time and appointments near LSE fill up quickly. Some banks may allow you to book an appointment before you arrive in London, which can save you a great deal of time. If you book in advance, you may want to schedule your appointment at least a day or two after your registration date, or you may not have access to all the necessary documents to open an account. Some banks insist that you must know your room number if you will live in a hall of residence before opening an account, so you may need to schedule your appointment for a date after your moving in day. Be sure that your bank appointment does not clash with mandatory Orientation events, lectures or seminars/classes. Always give yourself enough time to obtain the documentation you will need. You may find that it is easier to book an appointment at a bank branch further away from LSE or halls of residence. Once your account is set up, you can usually do business with any branch of your bank. However, branches further away from LSE may not always accept the same documentation that branches close to LSE will accept, so check before your appointment to ensure that you have everything you need.

• Get a letter from LSE to confirm your address and student status
  Some banks require a letter of introduction from LSE which specifies that you are a student and which includes your permanent and home addresses. This letter is available only to unconditional offer holders who have submitted all required documents to the Admissions office. You can request this letter from mid-September by following these steps:

1) Update your addresses in LSE for You as soon as you have an address in London. Be careful to list the address you live at during term-time (usually in London) as your Term-time Address and your address at home (or international address) as the Permanent Address. Banks also require that your room number be included if you are living in halls of residence. We are unable to update your address for you in the Student Services Centre.

2) Wait at least one hour before visiting the Student Services Centre to give your address change time to update in our database.

3) Visit the Student Services Centre during your opening hours with your passport or student ID card. Let the member of staff know that you would like a bank letter and specify the name of the bank, as most banks require that their name be printed on the letter. A letter will be printed immediately for you. Bank letters can only be collected in person.

• Additional tips for international students
  • Read UKCISA’s tips for opening a bank account in the UK (ukcisa.org.uk/Information--Advice/Living-in-the-UK/Opening-a-bank-account)
  • Ask your bank to send you printed monthly bank statements as these can be helpful if you need to make an application to extend your student visa. The UKVI will not accept electronic bank statements.
  • Some banks may charge international students an initial or monthly fee. The additional services provided will vary between each bank. Some banks will also offer a free, but more basic account.
  • If you are expecting to receive money from overseas, you should ask what charges may apply and how long it will take to make the money available in your account.
  • If you plan on using a credit or bank card from your home country while you are in the UK, check before you leave home that your card is compatible with UK bank machines, and whether there will be any additional charges.
  • If you will be cashing cheques issued in other countries into your UK account (for example, US Loan Cheques), then be sure to check that this will not trigger your bank’s anti-fraud procedures, which can result in your account being frozen for extended periods during an investigation. Some banks will refuse to cash cheques in a foreign currency for all new account holders.
  • Many banks require that you must typically be on a programme of study which runs a minimum of six months duration in order to qualify for an account.

Please note that this list is not exhaustive and does not constitute a recommendation as the School is not permitted to advise on which account you should open.

CAMPUS DEVELOPMENTS

Two new buildings – 32 Lincoln’s Inn Fields and the RIBA Stirling Prize-shortlisted Saw Swee Hock Student Centre – have opened on campus in the past three years, providing our community with fantastic new teaching, learning and social spaces. However, the work does not stop there. From 2015-18 LSE will continue to improve and develop its campus with the redevelopment of the Centre Buildings on Houghton Street. A new building will replace four existing central campus buildings: the East Building, Clare Market, the Anchorage and the eastern part of St Clements. While this will be an exciting time to be an LSE student the project may also cause some disruption in and around Houghton Street, as departments move home and then as the building phase progresses from 2015 onwards. Of course, we will aim to keep disruption to an absolute minimum for everyone, with a view to unveiling an impressive new centre for the study of the social sciences in the heart of campus in 2018. More information about campus developments can be found at lse.ac.uk/estates.

THE LIBRARY

LSE Library, founded in 1896 as the British Library of Political and Economic Science, is the major international library of the social sciences. We are recognised by the Higher Education Funding Council as one of only five National Research Libraries in England, and our collections have been given Designated status by the Arts Council England for being of outstanding national and international importance.

We have over 100,000 ejournals as part of our electronic information provision and we hold over four million separate printed items.

The collections cover the social sciences in the widest sense, with particular strength in economics, sociology, political science and social, economic and international history. There are rich international collections of government publications and a wealth of statistical materials, as well as important collections of manuscripts, archives and rare books. Primary materials supporting original research are one of our greatest strengths.

Support

The Enquiries team are based by the entrance of the Library and will either answer your question, find the answer for you, or make an appointment with your Academic Support Librarian. They also provide roaming support and tour the building to support users, for example to help you find a missing book.

Each department has a librarian, a subject expert offering both one to one and group training to help you locate and access information resources on any topic. This support ranges from basic help in identifying key resources to high level systematic literature searching for researchers. They also provide expert help in managing references.

We also have a Data Library, with a specialist Data Librarian, providing one to one support to students and researchers in the use of the wide range of datasets that we hold.

Study resources

You can explore the collections via Library Search, our online search system, with the Course Collection containing multiple copies of reading list books.

But the Library is much more than its extensive collection of books and journals; it is a great place to study, with over 2000 study spaces and 510 PCs, laptop points, i-Roam laptop loan service, wireless internet access via eduroam, group study rooms and photocopying and printing facilities.

As an LSE student you will also have access to most libraries of other colleges of the University of London, as well as many other academic libraries in the Greater London area and nationwide, and can use an inter library loan service to obtain material not held at LSE.

Study environment

The Library is a focal point of the School and is used extensively by both students and academics. We are open seven days a week during term time and vacation and 24 hours daily from the beginning of the Lent term until the end of the examination period, excluding Easter week. The newly refurbished Ground Floor is home to LSE’s flagship academic skills development centre, LIFE. This service provides academic and career support skills through one to one help and workshops.

The “Escape” area in the Library entrance lets you take a break from your studies, talk with friends and have something to eat. There are also different zones in the Library for group and silent study. Our Exhibition Space near the main entrance is a state of the art facility which showcases the best and most interesting items from the Library’s collections. It includes a video wall which projects images alongside two display cases to show collection items, and features regular exhibitions which are open to all.

There is also a separate collection of general literature housed in a more informal setting in the Shaw Library in the Old Building, a relaxing space where concerts are often held.

Further information about the Library, including staffed hours and Library Search, can be found on our website: lse.ac.uk/Library

INFORMATION MANAGEMENT AND TECHNOLOGY

This information is correct at the time of going to print but is subject to change before October 2017. For the latest information, please visit the Information Management and Technology (IMT) website at lse.ac.uk/IMT

IT facilities on campus

There are over 1,000 PCs available for students to use in open access areas and computer classrooms around the School, including over 450 in the Library.

Log on to any networked PC for access to common desktop applications and specialist software, including:

- Microsoft Office (Word, PowerPoint, Excel, Access)
- Microsoft Outlook
- Internet Explorer, Mozilla Firefox and Google Chrome
- Skype
- Quantitative analysis software (e.g. SPSS, SAS and Stata)
- Qualitative analysis software (e.g. ATLAS.ti, NVivo)
- Geographical and Mapping Software (e.g. ArcGIS)
- Computer based Training (VTC video tutorials).

There are printing facilities in all open access areas and computer classrooms on campus (see lse.ac.uk/IMT/printing). Before you can print, you will need to credit your printing account. You can do this online via the LSE Wallet service, with coins using one of the “value loaders” located on campus, or in person at the Copy Shop on the lower ground floor of the Library. The cost of printing is 4p per side for black-and-white prints and 20p per side for colour.

There are also laptops available to students to borrow and use in the Library. The laptops will provide access to personal file space (H: space), office software and the internet.

More information can be found at lse.ac.uk/IMT/printing. For more information about IT facilities, please visit lse.ac.uk/IMT/facilities

IT facilities for disabled students

Specialist facilities are available for disabled students, including dedicated computer workstations and printing facilities, and screen reading and voice recognition software for blind and visually impaired students. You can also book a one-to-one appointment to discuss disability-related requirements. Further details can be found at: lse.ac.uk/IMT/accessibility

IT facilities in residences

All residences are wired for direct connection to the School network and students may use their own computer in their study bedroom or in the wireless zones, located in the social and recreational areas in residences. There are also a small number of open access PCs as well as printing facilities in each residence’s computer room.

Using your own computer

If you bring your own computer to the UK from overseas, it must be able to handle the UK power supply (220-240 volts), or you will need to purchase a voltage converter. You will also need an adaptor for the 3-pin UK power sockets.

There is an extensive wireless network across campus – connect to the eduroam network and also benefit from seamless wireless access wherever eduroam is available, including at other universities across the UK. You can also connect and print to LSE public printers on the main campus and in halls of residence from your laptop. IMT provides information and help with connecting your computer to the LSE IT environment and accessing services and resources both on-campus and off-site. For more details on the above, please visit lse.ac.uk/IMT/antivirus

Laptop surgery

The Laptop Surgery, located in the IMT Walk In Centre, on the first floor of the Library offers advice and hands-on assistance to students with problems connecting to LSE resources from laptops and mobile devices. The surgery operates on a drop-in basis and waiting times may be lengthy, especially in the Michaelmas Term.

IT support

IT Help Desk

The IT Help Desk, located in the IMT Walk In Centre is the first point of contact for taught students with IT related queries who need information and help with IT facilities, common desktop applications and specialist software, and with student IT accounts. The IT Help Desk also provides one-to-one support for students with disabilities.

IT training

IT training at LSE is delivered in a number of ways, allowing students to enhance and improve their IT skills. Training is delivered free or, in the case of Microsoft Office Specialist Certification, on a cost-reduced basis. Visit lse.ac.uk/IMT/training.

Your responsibilities

As a member of LSE, you are bound by the School’s Policy Statement on the Use of Information Technology and the Conditions of use of IT facilities at LSE. In particular, you must not distribute or access offensive material, illegally copy software, breach copyright or send mass unsolicited email messages. Misuse may result in the withdrawal of your access rights. For more information, see: lse.ac.uk/IMT/conditions-of-use

DISABILITY AND WELLBEING SERVICE

The Disability and Wellbeing Service (DWS) provides information, advice, guidance and support to students with physical and sensory impairments, long-term medical conditions, mental health difficulties and Specific Learning Difficulties, such as dyslexia and dyspraxia.

LSE is committed to enabling all students to achieve their full potential in an environment characterised by dignity and mutual respect and aims to ensure that all individuals are treated equitably. To this end, the School’s Disability and Wellbeing Service, part of the wider Student Wellbeing Service, provides a free, confidential service to all LSE students and is a first point of contact for all disabled students, prospective and current. A team of specialist advisers are available to see students on a one off or ongoing basis and cover the following:

- physical/sensory impairments, long-term medical conditions
- Specific Learning Difficulties, such as dyslexia and dyspraxia
- mental health difficulties

Prospective students are encouraged to make early contact with the Service and, where possible, to make a preliminary visit to the School. The DWS can be contacted by telephone on +44 (0)20 7955 7767 or by emailing disability-dyslexia@lse.ac.uk and there is more information at lse.ac.uk/disability

Facilities and services at LSE include:

- assistance in the Library including specialist software, lockers, a book fetch service and photocopying assistance
- IT support and assistive technology
- a number of accessible and adapted rooms in most halls of residence
- infra-red hearing support systems in all lecture theatres and some classrooms
- readers, note takers and support assistants
- a community service volunteer (CSV) who can provide practical assistance
- a rest room, with a bed and easy chairs
- a Disability Equality Research Network for researchers who are disabled and/or researching disability
- an Individual Student Support Agreement (ISSA) that records recommended “reasonable adjustments” for individual students and is circulated with the student’s consent on a need to know basis
- information about Individual Exam Adjustments (IEAs)
- help (for UK students) with accessing Disabled Students’ Allowances (see below)

UK students may be eligible for Disabled Students’ Allowances (DSA) to fund disability related costs of study. Further details are available at direct.gov.uk/studentfinance. It is advisable to start the process as early as possible. Please inform the DWS if you are already in receipt of the DSA.

LSE’s Equality and Diversity Action Plan, which sets out how the School will enhance its equality practices to reflect the requirements of the Equality Act 2010, can be viewed at lse.ac.uk/equalityanddiversity

HEALTH AND WELLBEING

National Health Service (NHS)

All students who live in the UK for at least six months are eligible for free NHS primary care by a general practitioner (GP). However, the provisions of the Immigration Act 2014 mean that students and their dependents on a Tier 4 visa are likely to be charged £150 per year of stay for NHS treatment, payable at the point the visa application is made.

However, if you have a long-term medical condition and/or receive regular prescribed medication, there is no guarantee that you will be able to get the same medication as prescribed to you in your home country. In order to get medication in the UK, you need to be assessed by a doctor who will decide what medication you need. Information about the NHS and how to register/make use of its services is available on the medical centre web pages: lse.ac.uk/medicalCentre

European Health Insurance Card (EHIC)

All non-UK European Economic Area (EEA) nationals and their family should obtain a European Health Insurance Card (EHIC) before coming to the UK. This is a free card that gives access to medically necessary, state-provided healthcare during a temporary stay in any of the 28 EU countries, Iceland, Lichtenstein, Norway and Switzerland, under the same conditions and at the same cost (free in some countries) as people insured in that country.

If you are covered by a state social security system in one of the countries listed, you are eligible to apply for a card. You must apply for the card in your own country before arriving in the UK. Please see ec.europa.eu/social/main.jsp?catId=559&langId=enandeuropa.eu/youreurope/citizens/education/university/health/index_en.htm for full details of eligibility and exclusions and information on how to apply.

Please be aware that EHIC is not an alternative to travel insurance, and does not cover any private healthcare or costs such as a return flight to your home country or lost/stolen property.

Medical Centre

We recommend students to register with an NHS general practice. GPs operate under a catchment system, and to find a local GP, please look at the NHS GP website. All students are strongly encouraged to register with a doctor at the earliest opportunity.

Vaccinations

Students who study at UK universities are strongly advised to have certain vaccinations before (or as soon as possible after) arriving at university. It is especially important to confirm that you have been vaccinated against: Tetanus/Diphtheria/Polio/Meningitis C. Most students will have received these vaccinations from their own doctors during the course of their childhood or schooling. The exception to this is Meningitis C. Many countries do not routinely offer this vaccination to their population. It is recommended that all students be vaccinated against Meningitis C before they come to LSE. The vaccine is safe and will effectively protect an individual against the C-type meningitis bacteria. Remember that all these vaccines will reduce the chances of contracting an infectious disease in the UK (and elsewhere).

The above vaccines are available free of charge from the Medical Centre. Please contact the Medical Centre as soon as possible after arrival in the UK if you require any further advice or help with vaccinations.

Sexual health and safety

The medical centre offers a number of services, including emergency contraception, and cervical screening. There are also a number of local walk-in clinics which can offer advice on all areas of sexual health, including preventing, testing for and treating sexually transmitted infections and HIV – cnwl.nhs.uk/services/sexual-health-hiv/sti-std-hiv-testing-screening and brook.org.uk for more information.

Dental service

The Sardinia House Dental Practice is an independent dental practice that has been providing dental treatment at discounted rates for staff and students of LSE for the past twenty years.

The practice also offers the following:

- Hygienist therapist cleaning
- “Zoom” tooth whitening and home whitening
- Cosmetic treatment
- Emergency (one off) appointments
- Routine dental treatment.

Counselling

The Student Counselling Service is a free and confidential service for all LSE students, which aims to help them cope more effectively with any personal or study related difficulties. The service offers around 100 one to one sessions each week, delivered by a team of qualified and experienced counsellors, as well as group sessions and workshops on themes such as writing psychology, overcoming perfectionism, mindfulness and stress management. Further detailed information and links to self-help resources for students can be found on the website: lse.ac.uk/counselling.

STUDYING AT LSE

Studying at LSE is a stimulating and rewarding experience. You’ll meet other students from all over the world, have the opportunity to attend excellent debates and hear great speakers, and be able to experience one of the most vibrant cities in the world.

Some students may find the structure of their programme and the methods of assessment to be different from what they have experienced in other educational systems. Students often find that the style of argument and ways of structuring essays are somewhat different from that which they have previously experienced. Many find the long reading lists a challenge, and some need to adapt to the particular pressures that a strongly examination-based assessment system creates.

The purpose of this section is to get you thinking about how to prepare for your studies, so that you can hit the ground running. It will give you a flavour of what to expect, suggest strategies for study that other students have found helpful and point you in the direction of people who can give you support and guidance should you need it.

You may want to do some preparatory work before you start your course, and do some thinking about how you will structure your time. You may well find that the “timetabled” sessions you are expected to attend are pretty limited compared with what you’ve experienced before, and doing some planning in anticipation could well be useful.

You might also want to look at guidance on pre-reading from your department. Think about the courses you will be studying and do something around them. If you are preparing for quantitative courses, it may be worth brushing up on your mathematics and statistics and ensuring you can remember what you’ve studied previously.

The basics – what your academic year looks like

Most LSE undergraduate programmes involve you in the equivalent of four courses per year. You’ll be able to select these courses, according to the regulations for your degree programme, via LSE for You from early September to around mid-October. You should choose carefully (very few, if any, will be gentle extensions of A level courses) and get advice from as many sources as you can, including your academic adviser (see below), before you make final selections.

Most of the teaching at LSE takes place over two terms, Michaelmas (autumn) and Lent (spring). In the Summer Term you will be working primarily on your own, preparing for and taking exams. It is worth noting right from the start that the majority of LSE undergraduate courses are assessed by unseen examinations. There are other forms of assessment used by a few departments, and full details of how each course is assessed are outlined in the LSE course guides. Each of the three years is likely to follow this basic pattern.

Independent study

The majority of your study time is yours to manage. For each course, anticipate setting aside at least seven hours of independent study each week – so at least 28 hours for your full set of courses. Obviously this will vary. You may find that there are courses you love, where you barely notice the time you are putting into them and spend long happy hours reading, writing and discussing ideas with friends. Other courses may prove more challenging and harder to motivate yourself for.

Many LSE students are working in English as a second, third or fourth language and some of you will find you need rather more time to read and understand material than some of your class mates. Around 6 per cent of LSE students have a condition such as dyslexia or are disabled and many also need to spend more time on independent studies. LSE has a range of support services to help, including English for Academic Purposes provision in the Language Centre and support for disabled students and students with neurodiverse conditions in the Disability and Wellbeing Service.

During your independent study time you will be involved in a variety of activities. For many courses you will be doing a considerable amount of reading, note taking, thinking and writing. For the more quantitative courses, you are likely to be set weekly “problem sets” where you can practise and experiment with techniques introduced in lectures and handouts. If you’ve chosen courses that excite you, this time should be very enjoyable! In planning it out, work out where and when you can concentrate best. A lot of study materials these days are available online through Moodle (see below) so many students will study from their “hone” base. But plenty come on to campus and make good use of the excellent library facilities available. If you like to study with friends, then think about organising your own study groups. There are various places around the LSE campus where you will be able to work with others. You may also want to set up study groups where you are living.

This independent study time is not left entirely to you to organise. As noted above, most quantitative courses will expect you to do weekly problem sets and bring your work along to class or hand it in beforehand. It is very important to keep on top of this problem-set work – many of the quantitative subjects build rapidly through the term, and if you do not keep up with the set work you can get very lost. In the more qualitative disciplines, you will again be guided on how to get down to reading and thinking.

Many of these courses will expect you to write one or two essays per term and to make presentations in class from time to time. You may be given questions to consider and help with focussing your reading. For most courses (except those that are being offered for the first time) you can look at past examination papers and see what is expected of you. It is important that you get into good study habits early on, as you cannot expect others to chase you.

Moodle

Moodle provides web-based support for your courses by bringing together a range of resources and tools in one place, available at any time, via the internet. These usually include reading lists, electronic readings and lecture notes, but many courses make wider use of Moodle. So, for example, you may be able to ask questions online and get them answered – though don’t expect instant responses, as lecturers have other things they are working on and tend not to be online all the time! There may also be quizzes for you to complete. Many courses use Moodle to collect work, such as essays, or to encourage you to put your work up for others to read. For some courses you might get the impression that accessing the materials on Moodle is all you need to do. But if you want to make the most of your courses, do explore further afield by extending your own reading to materials “off the reading list”. This will give you a much richer insight into your subject and enable you to bring new ideas into your essays and exam answers.

Lectures

In addition to independent study you can expect to have one to two hours a week of lectures for each of your courses. Particularly in the first year, some lecture groups can be large – perhaps between 100 and 800 students. Later in the programme, when you tend to move into a wider selection of courses, more of them will be in groups of fewer than 50, possibly even under ten. Much of the time in lectures you’ll be listening, but even in very large lectures, some lecturers may ask questions, and a few courses are starting to use “voting buttons” – inviting you to answer questions much like the “ask the audience” in Who Wants to be a Millionaire. The purpose of these devices is to help you focus your attention as well as to give feedback to the lecturer on how well you are following. Your answers are not “graded” – but you’ll find lectures much more interesting if you are actively involved.

It’s worth noting that the lecturers have overall responsibility for the course and will guide the work you do in classes and during independent study time. They will also write the final examination or set any other assessment that lecturers have different styles. Some will want you to listen carefully and hope to inspire you. Others may guide you through the literature and provide detailed handouts. Others may put forward problems and ways of working on them. There is no one “set” style. Also, different lecturers provide different levels of support. Materials to accompany their lectures. Many will use PowerPoint or other electronic presentation devices in the lecture room. They may provide a hard copy of these for you, or expect you to print them off yourselves. Many now use the School “lecture capture” system to record their lectures and may make these videos or podcasts available to you through Moodle. However, not all opting to do this, and many people have expressed concerns about students becoming too reliant on these electronic resources. The best advice is to make good use of “live” teaching, and use any other resources as back-up or for emergencies.

All lecturers have “office hours” – times when they are available in their offices for you to call in and ask questions. No one will make you attend office hours, so make use of them as you need them. Don’t feel embarrassed to go and ask a question. A good strategy is to sit down soon after each lecture and review your lecture notes. If there is something that you don’t understand, ask a friend first, but if you are still confused, then it’s worth making use of the office hour. Also, don’t just see office hours as “catch up”.

If you are really interested in a subject and want to stretch yourself further, you may want to talk to the lecturer about possible ideas for your own research.

Classes

In addition to lectures, you will have classes – again, usually one 50-minute session each week for each course. Classes usually have a maximum of 15 students in them – often fewer. Most undergraduate classes are run by doctoral researchers, all of whom will be skilled in their discipline and will have undergone training in teaching.

The purpose of classes is to give you the opportunity to discuss and work together with fellow students, so helping your learning. They are opportunities to clarify anything that you didn’t understand in lectures and to work with others to discuss the readings or work that you have been doing. It is really important that you come to class prepared. If you don’t you won’t get much from the process and you will also be letting fellow students down. The more everyone contributes and shares ideas, the more interesting a class is likely to be.

In quantitative courses – most Mathematics and Statistics courses, and many of those in Economics and Accounting and Finance – classes are typically used to go over the weekly problem set. The teacher is there to encourage students to participate, confirm answers and correct errors, and explain difficult points – the purpose being not to provide ready-made answers, but to equip students with an understanding of the ideas and techniques they’ll need to address similar tasks in future. Occasionally, classes in quantitative courses may also be used to discuss questions that don’t have any “right” answers.

Classes in qualitative subjects have no set format, and you will experience plenty of variety. You may well have a teacher who will ask you direct questions, invite you to give a presentation or ask you to be the reporter for a small group task. You may spend time in class working on set questions or reviewing work that you’ve done through the week. Sometimes you may have whole class discussions and debates, other times you may be set to work on tasks on your own or in pairs. Hopefully you will experience some interesting variety and it will help you focus on important and interesting aspects of your course.

In your classes, you’ll meet students from many different countries – and will get used to hearing English spoken in a very wide variety of ways. This is great experience for working in international organisations in the future. If you have worries about your own ability to speak in class and to speak in English, be aware that many others have those same worries. The more you do it, the easier it will become. But also be aware that there is support available from fellow students, your class teachers and from central services such as the Language Centre and LSE LIFE.

Like your lecturers, your class teachers have office hours. Again, it is up to you to make good use of this time. Use these times to explore ideas, ask for more clarification, get guidance on writing or working on problems, and for ideas on how to extend your studies.

Course work and feedback

Through the year, you will be set a number of assignments. Normally, this will be two pieces of work for each course per term – but again, this varies. For many of the quantitative subjects, you may be expected to do weekly problem sets. Some teachers will ask you to hand these in, others use online exercises, and others just expect you to bring the work you’ve done along to class and review it there. In some departments, they may expect only certain assignments to be handed in for marking and feedback. In subjects such as Government, Sociology, History or Law you will be more likely to be asked to write essays, or work

BEN LANGE

ESSEN, GERMANY

BSC PHILOSOPHY, LOGIC AND SCIENTIFIC METHOD

The programme is very interdisciplinary, drawing on other sciences and looking at topical issues, such as public policy issues, from a philosophical perspective. I also like that LSE focuses on applied ethics. The philosophy department is quite small, which means you can approach everyone and generally know most of the lecturers. LSE has a great mix of people, and my lecturers are top-notch.

London is such a vibrant city, and now I really feel like a Londoner. During my time at LSE, I’ve had plenty of opportunities to grow as a person. In my first year, I was actively involved in the LSE SU German Society as the Head of Marketing which was a lot of fun. Some peer students and I also founded a small Jazz Combo called Houghton Grooves. We play at receptions and parties. This year, I also joined the LSE Philosophy departmental band Critique of Pure Rhythm as the drummer, which is also a lot of fun since you get to play music with your professors.

As well as philosophy, I’m interested in management and have taken some management courses during my degree. I already have an offer from the Boston Consulting Group, a management consulting firm, to start working after I have finished my studies. I’m also currently applying for graduate study in philosophy, and ultimately, I would like to do my PhD in Philosophy.
on cases and problems, or review the literature related to a given area of the course. Many courses will expect you to prepare short presentations to discuss in class. All these assignments should help you learn and achieve the course objectives. They will also provide useful preparation for the end of year examinations.

Where you are asked to hand work in for marking, you should then receive feedback on it. This may take different forms. Many departments use “feedback forms” which set out the kinds of things markers are looking for in your work. Others will write comments in the margins, or possibly offer online marking on your text. Some people are experimenting with audio feedback. Others use online automated feedback. Whatever feedback you receive, you are also strongly advised to go and talk to your teachers in office hours to discuss their comments and get more feedback from them. Often talking and discussing your work will give you much better insight into how well you are understanding and learning than simply relying on written comments.

Your class teacher will keep a record of your attendance at class on LSE for You – you have access to this and can check that the data is accurate. If it isn’t, talk to your class teacher to get it changed. Your class teacher will also keep a record of any assignments you submit – showing whether or not you have done the work, and what grade you achieved. Whilst your grades here for the most part do not contribute to your final year grades (these in most cases are based on your examination performance), it is important that you keep up with the work set. If you miss class often, and/or fail to hand in assignments, then you may be barred from the final examination. Your progress through the year may also have an effect on the options open to you should you fail an exam. So the basic advice here is to keep up with the work set, and, if you find yourself in difficulty, speak to someone early on, rather than waiting to raise problems.

Academic support at LSE

There is a wide range of academic support available at LSE, both within your department and outside it.

As an undergraduate student you’ll have an academic adviser who is a permanent member of the academic staff based in your department. Your adviser is your first point of contact for academic guidance and can also point you to the various pastoral support services across the School, if necessary.

All departments also have a departmental tutor who liaises with academic advisers, sets up departmental orientation programmes and arranges the termly Staff-Student Liaison Committee meetings.

Office hours, are available throughout the academic year – times and locations will be advertised in your department - and are great opportunities for you to ask questions and get advice from your lecturers and class teachers. Contact details for your department can be found on page 50.

LSE LIFE

LSE LIFE is the academic, personal and professional development centre for undergraduate and master’s students at LSE. House in specially designed space on the ground floor of the Library, it hosts an extensive programme of one to one, small group and workshop-style events designed to help you acquire and develop skills that will complement your academic studies and equip you for whatever you choose to do after LSE. Find out more at page 37.
LSE Off Campus Support Scheme

The LSE Off Campus Support Scheme provides new students who are not living in LSE halls of residence with targeted support and guidance on settling in. All incoming first year students who are living off-campus will be allocated a mentor, usually a second or third year student, from the same department whenever possible. They will be part of a small mentoring group of approximately eight other off-campus students.

Once you have a confirmed place at LSE you will be allocated a student mentor, who will make contact with you through your personal and LSE email account just before Welcome Week.

More information can be found online at lse.ac.uk/offCampusSupportScheme

Personal development at LSE

There are many opportunities at LSE to gain skills and experience that will contribute to your development as a person.

LSE LIFE – see page 37 – runs a wide range of personal development events and there are plenty of opportunities at LSE to do volunteering, mentoring and work experience. In addition, your courses will help you develop skills in, among others, presenting, negotiating and research.

To keep track of all your personal development activity you can use LSE’s Personal Development Aide Memoir (PDAM); an individual record built in LSE for You.

Advisers to women and male students

The School has advisers to women and male students who generally deal with personal and often private matters. They are:

Dr Wendy Sigle (Adviser to women students): w.sigle@lse.ac.uk, extension 7358
Dr Jonathan Hopkin (Adviser to male students): j.r.hopkin@lse.ac.uk, extension 6535
Your time at LSE will be busy. So it’s important to make the most of it – whether that means discovering your own “best” ways to study, focusing on how you can apply what you are learning, making new friends and meeting future colleagues, or thinking about where your studies might lead you in the future. Here at LSE LIFE, we can offer you support with all of these and more.

What is LSE LIFE?

LSE LIFE is the School’s new centre for academic, personal, and professional development. It is the place to come for all undergraduate and postgraduate students for support, guidance, and ideas about how to succeed in your studies and extend your learning and discovery outside the classroom.

What’s going on in LSE LIFE?

We have a huge range of activities built around two main curricula: core and specialist. We recommend all students attend core talks and workshops to support your studies at LSE. This curriculum includes key topics such as how to plan and organise your study at LSE, how to read for academic work, how to write essays, how to think more critically, how to improve and refine your writing style, how to communicate effectively, how to use others’ ideas in your own work, and how to approach research and your dissertation.

Our specialist curriculum consists of one-off talks or workshops that are of a more specialised nature (hence the name!) and may be of interest to particular individuals or particular cohorts of students - of course anyone is welcome to attend! But it’s not all about study skills! LSE LIFE can help you reflect on your future and build a rewarding career; learn about how to find and make sense of the seemingly endless information available to students and researchers; and how to look after yourself so that you can balance your study, work, creative activities, and leisure time in the way that best suits you.

Who is at LSE LIFE?

LSE LIFE has an in-house team of specialist study advisers. You’ll also find research specialists from the Library, English-language experts from the Language Centre, and career advisers from LSE Careers. Of course, each of these key services will continue to offer their own complete range of support outside of LSE LIFE; but here you’ll be able to meet them in person without an appointment, ask your questions, and find out more about what they can do for you in one, central place on campus.

You will also find your own classmates and peers at LSE LIFE. Your professors, lecturers, and teachers are here to guide you through the discipline you’ve chosen to study; but the heart of the LSE community is our students. We believe that a crucial part of what you learn and experience here revolves around the exchanges and debates you have with your peers. LSE draws students of all backgrounds from around the world; and LSE LIFE offers you a place to come together to explore, debate, and learn as peers.

How can I use LSE LIFE?

LSE LIFE is a bustling student hub. We are open from 10am to 7pm from Monday to Friday, and 10am to 6pm on Saturdays; you can come anytime during those hours to speak with one of the LSE LIFE team. In addition to getting quick information and advice on a walk-in basis, you can:

- book a place on one of our many talks and workshops,
- make a one-to-one appointment to see a study adviser or one of our Royal Literary Fund fellows,
- come along with your study group for guided, independent work,
- or use our online resources.

We also offer specialised drop-in sessions for help with maths and stats homework, advice on academic language and writing, career and CV-writing support, and help with finding and referencing the books, articles, and data that you need.
LSE100

LSE100: The LSE Course is LSE’s flagship interdisciplinary course for all undergraduates. It is designed to broaden and deepen your engagement with social scientific analysis by using important current issues as case studies through which we consider the ways in which knowledge is produced and used. No multifaceted issue can be fully understood through the perspective of a single discipline, and LSE100 aims to equip you with the analytical and methodological tools that will enable you to think more critically and creatively about how to address complex problems.

LSE100 brings you into the heart of the LSE tradition of engaging with pressing social issues with lectures by leading researchers and small, interactive classes that challenge you to confront different kinds of evidence, assess competing explanations for social phenomena, and develop your skills in critical analysis. Whatever your degree course, LSE100 will enhance your education by complementing your disciplinary training with: an understanding of different ways of thinking; learning from debating and collaborating with students from other disciplines and backgrounds; and developing your methodological, analytical and communication skills.

All undergraduates take LSE100 in the second term of their first year and the first term of their second year. In each of these terms you will participate in two five-week modules, each of which explores a case study from a variety of disciplinary perspectives. Each week you will attend a two-hour lecture delivered by one or more leading LSE academics, and you will further explore these ideas in collaboration with a small group of students in a one-hour class. Two of the four current LSE modules are:

“Why is collective security so difficult to achieve?”
In this module we will explore issues of peace and conflict, focusing on the kinds of power that both states and non-state actors, such as corporations, can wield as they pursue and protect their interests. Drawing on theories and methods from political science, economics, and geography, among other disciplines, we will analyse power in the context of cases ranging from US foreign intervention in Latin America to the challenges of successfully concluding negotiations to curb the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

“Should markets be constrained or unleashed?”
In this module we will consider the economic case for free markets, as well as the challenges of market failures. Drawing on economics, history, and anthropology, among other disciplines, we will consider issues such the unintended consequences of regulation, as well as the potential moral limits of markets. Should we, for example, have markets for human organs? Should surrogacy be legal? Who gains in these situations, who loses, and how should we decide when the government should intervene?

LSE100 is assessed using a series of pieces of coursework that are designed to develop your methodological, information and communication skills. Building on a variety of formative work you will complete both in and outside of class, summative assessments will include written essays, group projects, and weekly questions related to the reading that are designed to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of your reading, and to facilitate more sophisticated and challenging in-class discussions. Your final mark and grade for LSE100 will appear on your transcript, but your result in LSE100 will not affect your degree classification. You will be given more information about LSE100 during Welcome Week, and you will see it listed on your timetable on LSE for You.

You can read more about LSE100 on the website lse.ac.uk/LSE100, follow us on Twitter (@TheLSECourse). If you have any questions before you arrive at LSE, please email the Course Office: LSE100@lse.ac.uk. We look forward to meeting you.

STUDENT SERVICES CENTRE

The Student Services Centre (SSC) is located on the ground floor of the Old Building (see map on page 50). The SSC offers advice on course selection, examinations, support services available at the School and all aspects of studying at LSE. In addition to this the SSC offers a drop-in advice service for applicants and students, giving general information regarding admissions, registration, financial support, payment of tuition fees, student immigration rules and student visa extension. Visit the SSC website for updated drop-in times.
LSE LANGUAGE CENTRE

LSE’s Language Centre is unique – no other centre specialises in creating courses targeted to the needs of students and practitioners in the field of social sciences and related areas of study.

All LSE Language Centre courses utilise the specialist talents of lecturers who relate their own expertise to the teaching of languages for specific purposes.

English language programmes

If your first language is not English you could consider enrolling in one of our English courses in the Language Centre, which are geared to the specific needs of social science students.

Important note: These courses are not accepted as a replacement for an English language qualification which may be an offer condition.

English for Academic Purposes: pre-sessional programme

As you already have an offer from LSE, if you want to make sure your English is ready for "Academic Purposes" you could consider these preparatory courses before you start your main studies. The LSE Language Centre runs pre-sessional intensive courses in English during August and September each year.

Each course can be booked individually and a range of entry level points are on offer. The programme is geared to the specific needs of social science students.

Each programme has 20 hours weekly contact time and additional learning support. Applications for the courses open in April 2017. You should apply early as these courses fill up quickly.

Important note: A test is not included in this course. You can arrange to take an IELTS test at four centres in London. See ielts.org for locations.

Course overview for pre-sessional programmes:

- Academic reading and writing skills
- Essay and thesis writing
- Presentation skills
- Seminar practice
- Lecture note-taking
- Study skills
- Key speaking and listening practice
- IELTS preparation
- Special modules on law (pre-sessional programme)
- Cultural and social events

Full details on these programmes can be found at: lse.ac.uk/language

English for Academic Purposes: in-sessional support programme

Once you begin your degree programme, the Language Centre will still be on hand to give you advice and support throughout your time at LSE. The support is free and starts as soon as your main programme begins. For more information, visit lse.ac.uk/language

Modern Foreign Languages and degree options

The Language Centre offers a range of degree options in Literature, Linguistics and Foreign Languages that you can take as a fully assessed part of your degree. This is subject to programme regulations; you should check departmental requirements for further details.

Modern Foreign Language Certificate Course programme

If you wish to learn a new language, or improve your existing language skills during your time at LSE you should consider our Certificate Course programme.

These extra curricular courses are available to current members of LSE. Currently on offer are ten different languages with most of them available at five different levels: Arabic, Catalan, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Mandarin, Portuguese, Russian and Spanish. The programme runs during the academic year from October until May. Details on the Modern Foreign Language Certificate Course programme can be found on the website.

There is also information on current prices and how to register for classes.

Translation of documents

You may need to provide officially translated documents to prove you have met the conditions of your offer, or for other purposes.

If your documents are not in English, the LSE Language Centre can provide a translation service. Full details are available at lse.ac.uk/language

Translation is offered in all the languages taught at the Language Centre: Arabic, Catalan, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Mandarin, Portuguese, Russian and Spanish and the charge for this service will be at the rate for LSE members.

CITIZENSHIP AND COMMUNITY RELATIONS

LSE is a diverse community. Our students come from around 160 countries and over 45 per cent of our staff are from countries outside the UK. We have a global view. We also are committed to developing students who are ambitious and determined and who will contribute in local, national and global societies.

The School operates in an atmosphere of tolerance that permits freedom of thought and expression. We expect staff and visitors to conduct themselves with respect for the diversity of cultures, opinions and backgrounds of all those who study and work here.

We encourage students to form connections with each other and in doing so to recognise and respect individual and group diversity, and the rights and dignity of others. The School will seek to uphold an environment free from discrimination on the basis of race, disability, gender, age, religion, belief, sexual orientation, gender reassignment, marital/partnership status, pregnancy and maternity and goes beyond this to foster good campus relations between those of different religious, political and moral beliefs.

We encourage active citizenship by providing opportunities for students to make a personal contribution to the School and wider community during their studies. This includes volunteering to work for non-profit making causes, where students take on responsibilities which provide much-needed help to charitable organisations whilst also developing skills for employment. For further information about these opportunities, please contact the Volunteer Centre.

LSE CAREERS

Whether you come to university with ideas about your future career, or are still undecided, LSE Careers can help you develop a plan of action and be successful. Our experienced team is committed to the personal and professional development of every LSE student, and will help you through the careers maze with a comprehensive range of careers and employment services. As well as online information, LSE Careers offers one-to-one careers appointments and events to support you in securing part-time work, internships, voluntary positions, graduate employment, further study, experienced hire positions and advancing entrepreneurial endeavours.

LSE CareerHub

Once you have officially enrolled and been given your LSE IT username and password, you will be able to access LSE CareerHub to book one-to-one appointments and events, and search for jobs and opportunities advertised exclusively to LSE students. You can also update your profile with your career preferences to receive relevant information and job vacancies direct to your inbox.

Services

LSE Careers services have been developed to help students find and successfully gain employment during and after university. These include:

- Careers seminars, covering a wide range of topics to help you in your job search and applications.
- A variety of careers fairs, networking events and employer presentations where you can meet employers and alumni and find out about industries that interest you.
- One-to-one advice appointments with our careers consultants to help you decide which career path to take or for advice on CVs, cover letters, application forms, further study and other careers topics. We also provide specialist appointments and events for students with disabilities.
- One-to-one practice interview sessions and interview feedback from a careers consultant.
- Free access to extensive online careers libraries and resources on our website.
- A dedicated Resource Centre including careers books and computers where you can access our online resources. Our Student Enquiries Coordinator is also on hand to answer any service or resource queries.
- The LSE Volunteer Centre is based within LSE Careers and you can book one-to-one discussions for advice on finding a suitable volunteering opportunity for you. There are also a range of volunteer opportunities advertised on CareerHub.
- Our Generate programme is committed to inspiring entrepreneurial potential, whether you want to start a business or social enterprise or want to join an organisation that promotes entrepreneurship as a core value. We offer seminars, events, mentoring, competitions and a dedicated workspace to help you along the way.
- Information on graduate destinations is available on our website and current students also have access to our ‘Meet an Alum’ programme which provides networking and mentoring opportunities with former LSE students.

Making Contacts and Keeping in Touch

Now that you are holding an offer for a place at LSE there are a number of ways in which you can keep in touch with the School and find out more about life on campus.

Newsletters for offer holders

The Undergraduate Admissions office sends out regular newsletters via email to offer holders, from January through to registration. These newsletters will provide you with helpful tips and reminders about the admissions process, and also give an insight into School news and events.

Copies of our newsletters can also be found on the offer holders section of our website at lse.ac.uk/ugofferholder

Meet LSE

LSE staff visit higher education fairs, schools and colleges in both the UK and overseas, and meet with offer holders visiting the School.

To find out more, please see our website at lse.ac.uk/meetlse

You can also meet staff and students at the Offer Holders’ Day In April.

Destination LSE events

LSE’s international alumni groups organise Destination LSE events to say “bon voyage” to offer holders before they leave home. They are designed to give overseas offer holders who are about to start studying at the School an opportunity to meet each other and to meet with alumni prior to arriving at LSE. These informal events allow alumni to share with new students their experiences of both LSE and life in London, and they form a great introduction to the LSE community.

Destination LSE events usually take place in August each year. To find out if there is a Destination LSE event in your country, please check the Destination LSE events calendar from May 2017 at: lse.ac.uk/predepartureevents

Student blogs

The Students@LSE blogs feature current students writing about their own experiences of life at LSE. For a first-hand account of the work load, lectures and classes or the social scene at LSE and in London, visit lse.ac.uk/studentblogs

Email an Alum

The Email an Alum service allows you to make contact with recent LSE graduates and ask them questions about their experiences of studying at the School and the impact on their careers since their graduation. Visit lse.ac.uk/emailAnAlum for more details.

Alumni groups

LSE has around 133,000 contactable alumni drawn from almost 200 countries, so wherever you are in the world you can connect with the LSE alumni community. There are over 90 regional and special interest groups in Africa, Asia-Pacific, Europe, Latin America and the Caribbean, the Middle East and North America. Our regional alumni groups are LSE’s international ambassadors and a useful source of information about the School. They can provide you with useful hints and tips about studying at LSE, living in London, and the careers that their studies have helped them to pursue.

To find out about your local alumni group and to learn more about the alumni relations programme please visit the LSE Alumni website at alumni.lse.ac.uk or get in touch via the contact details below.

LSE Students’ Union

LSE Students’ Union is a charity run by students, for students, that exists to make your time at LSE the best it can be. LSESU’s elected student team are your representatives. They campaign for your rights and seek to improve all aspects of university life by supporting over 200 societies and 50 sports clubs, offering an active Media Group and charitable fundraising activities, providing a professional Advice Service, and running a range of student-friendly bars, shops and cafés.

The Students’ Union also runs its own Welcome Week events, which are held at the start of the academic year. For information on these events and activities – including the Freshers’ Fair, wellbeing drop-ins, club nights, tours, live music and Give it a Go sessions – visit lsesu.com/welcome-week/

As an LSE student you are automatically a member of LSE Students’ Union, and as a member you can participate at any level, from running for election, or submitting policy to be debated at the weekly Union General Meetings, to campaigning on the issues affecting you or enjoying an activity run by fellow students.

Famous campaigning history

In the 1960’s the Students’ Union became renowned for political protests, and its strong campaigning ethic continues today. Recent campaigns have focused on nursery provision and rent levels in Halls of Residence. We successfully lobbied for greater student mental health support. Upcoming initiatives will focus on making the LSE culture inclusive for all.

A student-led organisation

Our Executive Team is made up of Student Representatives who are elected annually by their peers to represent and run the Union. Four of these students are full-time Sabbatical Officers – the General Secretary, Education Officer, Community and Welfare Officer and Activities and Development Officer. Part-time and Liberation Officers are also elected alongside the Sabbatical Officers. Any student can run for office, whatever their course or study level.

Societies, sports clubs, Media Group and RAG

LSESU supports more than 200 student-led societies and 50 sports clubs, as well as the Media Group comprising a weekly newspaper, television network, radio station and journal. Raising and Giving (RAG) is the fundraising arm of the Students’ Union and run our incredible Welcome Week clubnights, with all money raised going to a good cause. Our student Clubs and Societies welcome all new members; sign up in person at the Welcome Fair.

Entertainment

LSESU offers an array of entertainment, from live music and dance to student-run conferences, student talks with high-profile speakers and more. Most of these are hosted in the LSESU Venue, the 1000-capacity social space in the Saw Swee Hock Student Centre. Every Friday during term time, the LSESU Venue transforms into Saucy – London’s biggest student night featuring incredible live acts and some of the biggest DJs.

Services

The Students’ Union runs a range of services for students, including the LSESU shop, the Three Tuns student bar, the LSESU Denning Learning Café and LSESU Weston Café, the LSESU Gym. We’re a non-profit so every penny you spend with us goes into funding student activities. We also run a free and independent Advice Service which offers financial hardship funding and confidential advice on both academic and housing issues.

TRAVELLING INTO LONDON

If you are new to London, the information below will provide you with the various travel options available to you. The prices quoted were correct at time of print, but please check the websites listed below for up-to-date prices and timetables.

Flights to London

If you are flying to the UK from overseas you are likely to arrive at either Heathrow or Gatwick, two of the world’s busiest international airports. Each is approximately 25-30 miles (30-40 kilometres) from the city centre, but each is convenient, with good public transport links to central London.

If you are flying to the UK from Europe, you may also arrive at London Stansted, London Luton or London City Airport. Travel times from these airports vary; see below for more information.

Travelling to London from Heathrow Airport

By tube (London Underground)

You can take the Piccadilly Line from Heathrow Airport into central London. Journeys take approximately 50-60 minutes depending on time of day but this is also the cheapest form of transport into central London. A single ticket costs £6.00 cash or slightly less on an Oyster Card, Transport for London’s cashless ticketing system (see tfl.gov.uk/oyster for more information).

Travel Information Centres are located in the Terminal Arrival Halls and in Underground stations and you are advised to speak to an assistant there to confirm your travel details and help you purchase tickets before you board. Tube services are regular and do not require pre-booking. Visit the Transport for London (TFL) website at tfl.gov.uk for more information.

By train

The Heathrow Express to Paddington Station takes 15 minutes and departs four times an hour. Single fares are £22.00. For more information or to pre-book your tickets visit heathrowexpress.com

At Paddington station you’ll find taxis, buses and access to the Circle, Hammersmith and City, District and Bakerloo lines on the London Underground.

By coach

Frequent coach services with National Express or easyBus are available from Heathrow Airport to central London throughout the day. Visit nationalexpress.com/coach or easybus.co.uk for more information.

Travelling to London from Gatwick Airport

By train

The Gatwick Express runs every 15 minutes to Victoria Station in central London, and costs £17.70 for an online single ticket or £19.90 from the station. Trains operated by Southern and Thameslink also run to Victoria, London Bridge or London Blackfriars Stations. The journey takes longer but it costs less than a ticket on the Gatwick Express.

At Victoria Station you’ll find access to the Circle, District and Victoria lines on the London Underground. At London Bridge Station you’ll find access to the Jubilee and Northern Lines. At London Blackfriars you’ll find access to the Circle and District lines. All three stations have access to bus services, but only Victoria and London Bridge have taxi ranks.

By coach

Frequent coach services with National Express or easyBus are available from Gatwick Airport to central London throughout the day. Visit nationalexpress.com/coach or easybus.co.uk for more information.

Travelling to London from Stansted Airport

By train

The Stansted Express to Liverpool Street Station takes approximately 45 minutes and departs four times an hour. Single fares cost £19.00.

At Liverpool Street station you’ll find taxis and access to the Circle, Metropolitan, Central, and Hammersmith and City lines on the London Underground.

By coach

Frequent coach services with National Express or easyBus are available from Gatwick Airport to central London throughout the day. Visit nationalexpress.com/coach or easybus.co.uk for more information.

RICHARD SERUNJOBGI

CROYDON, UK

BSC SOCIAL POLICY

Social Policy as a discipline was born at the LSE. Indeed, many of the UK’s most important institutions such as the welfare state and the NHS were conceived here. Studying social policy at LSE means you debate real world issues with students from across the globe who each have insights into cultural nuances in the delivery of social policy. The variety of experiences people bring to discussions is quite amazing.

I really appreciate having professors who are not only academic leaders but are also practitioners who have worked on the frontline and the reality of implementing social policy.

Having London as your “strip” is also quite a bonus. There is an epic variety of opportunities to get involved in, whether its music, nights out or even start ups, which means that your three years at LSE aren’t only about studying.

I was keen to make an impact at LSE and successfully won the election to LSE Court of Governors in my first year. The exposure to leaders of the school allowed me to help push through the university becoming Living Wage Accredited. The LSE annual fund was also very generous and supportive towards the London 2030 Summit I founded and hosted.

I’ve been offered a role launching products at Google after I graduate. I’m also keen to do some community work in my hometown Croydon and a bit of travel before I start full time work.
By coach
Frequent coach services with National Express or easyBus are available from Stansted Airport to central London throughout the day. Visit nationalexpress.com/coach or easybus.co.uk for more information.

Travelling to London from Luton Airport
By train
Train companies Thameslink and East Midlands Trains both offer services from Luton Airport Parkway station to London St Pancras International Station, where you’ll find taxis, buses and access to a number of lines on the London Underground. A ticket purchased for your journey is valid with either train company.

To get from the terminal building to Luton Airport Parkway station you’ll need to take a shuttle bus which departs from the front of the airport. This is free if you have a train ticket to your destination from “Luton Airport”, but there is a £1.60 fare if your train ticket is from “Luton Airport Parkway” or if you have not purchased your onward rail ticket prior to arrival.

See nationalrail.co.uk for travel times and to book rail tickets in advance.

By coach
Frequent coach services with National Express or easyBus are available from Luton Airport to central London throughout the day. Visit nationalexpress.com/coach or easybus.co.uk for more information.

Travel to London from London City Airport
By DLR
You can take the Docklands Light Railway (DLR) from City Airport into central London. Journeys take approximately 45 minutes depending on time of day. A single ticket costs £4.80 cash or slightly less on an Oyster Card, Transport for London’s cashless ticketing system (see tfl.gov.uk/oyster for more information).

Travel to London on Eurostar
If you are travelling to London via Eurostar, you will arrive at London St Pancras International Station, where you’ll find taxis, buses and access to a number of lines on the London Underground. Details on Eurostar journeys can be found at eurostar.com

Travel in Central London
Travel on the Underground, Overground, Buses or DLR
Information on travel services in inner and outer London can be found on the Transport for London website at tfl.gov.uk

Full-time students are entitled to cheaper fares on London’s public transport. See page 46 for more details.

Travelling by Taxi
Iconic black cabs operate throughout the Greater London area and to Heathrow airport in particular. However, taking a cab – especially from the airport – could prove very expensive; you pay by distance and time (there are no fixed fares from the airport in a black cab) and if the traffic is congested you could face a very large fare. You do not need to book a black cab in advance and if you share a cab journey with friends then it can be much more affordable. Ask the driver for the estimated cost before you get in and make sure you have sufficient cash, or ask if you can pay by credit card.

Minicabs can be booked in advance and will offer set fares to London, so if you are going to travel by cab this may be the better option. Download the free Cabwise app on your smartphone to book your nearest minicab or taxi (black cab) in three easy steps. If you have an iPhone or Android then search Cabwise in the app stores (iTunes or Google Play) or alternatively visit tfl.gov.uk/campaign/safer-travel on your Smartphone and bookmark the page.

Staying safe when using a cab:
• Only use licensed minicabs or black cabs, do not travel with an unlicensed minicab driver
• Agree a minicab fare in advance
• Ask a minicab driver to confirm your name and destination before you get in the car, and check the driver’s photo ID
• Always sit in the back seat.
Academic matters

Academic Advisers
Your Department will allocate you an Academic Adviser who will provide you with academic guidance, feedback on your progress and performance and discuss any academic problems you may experience. They will also provide pastoral support on non-academic issues.

Further details will be given at your departmental Welcome sessions.

Lectures and classes
See page 33.

Library
See page 29.

Moodle
Moodle is LSE’s virtual learning environment, and will be used in your classes and throughout your studies at LSE. For more information on Moodle see page 33.

Food and Drink
London has too many restaurants to list in this guide. However, we can provide you with suggestions and a list of popular choices amongst LSE students. For general guidance and restaurant reviews see London Eating at london-eating.co.uk, Time Out London at timeout.com/london/restaurants, or Harden’s at hardens.com

On campus
LSE restaurants There are a large number of restaurants and cafés on campus, selling a variety of hot and cold food. See lse.ac.uk/restaurantsandcafes for more details.

LSE SU Shops and Café The LSE Students’ Union shop is located in Lincoln Chambers, 2-4 Portsmouth street.

Wrights Bar Located right next to the main entrance on Houghton Street, this is the most popular café on campus. Queues often stretch out of the door during peak times. Food is basic but good value for money and the service is friendly.

Surrounding areas
Fleet Street A number of pubs, bars and restaurants can be found all the way along Fleet Street, which is the main street south of the campus leading up to St Paul’s Cathedral.

Kingsway A number of cafés and restaurants to suit every budget and taste line Kingsway, which is the street west of the main campus. These include Costa Coffee, Eat, Leon, Prêt a Manger, Subway and more.

Santander Cycles
A relatively new addition to the London transport network is the Santander Cycles self-service, bike sharing scheme (formerly the Barclays Cycle Hire Scheme). Londoners call these “Boris bikes”, after the former Mayor. Users can access bikes either on a daily basis or with an annual pass. Access fees range from £2 for 24 hours to £90 for an annual pass. The first 30 minutes is free, after which you will then need to pay a usage charge dependent on length of use. There are four docking stations in close proximity to the School, including a station on campus at Houghton Street. More information is available on the Transport for London (TfL) website tfl.gov.uk

Using your own bicycle
LSE has a Cycling Society and holds a Bike Week visited by “Dr Bike” experts who will look over your bike free of charge and fix any minor problems on the spot. The police also come along every few months, and you can get your bike tagged and registered with the national BikeRegister. There are a number of bike racks on campus. Showers are available in the NAB, East Building, Old Building and elsewhere on campus.

London Transport
You can pay for public transport in London (including Tube, bus, London Overground, tram, Docklands Light Railway (DLR), TfL Rail and most National Rail services) using a cashless Oyster card (obtained at most major Tube stations for a £5 deposit) or a contactless payment card, and fares for these payment methods are often cheaper than they are for paper tickets, which are also still in use. In addition, all buses in London are now cashless, so paper tickets cannot be purchased on board.

TfL also offer a special Student Oyster Card with discounted fares (at the time of going to print, the discount is 30 per cent off adult-rate travel cards, bus passes and tram passes). Once you have registered in October, you can apply for your 18+ Student Oyster photocard on the TfL website at tfl.gov.uk. You will need your student ID card, a passport photograph and a debit or credit card to register. You should be aware that it may take a few weeks for your Student Oyster card to be processed, so it’s worth applying as soon as you know your UK address.

You can get a variety of tickets; the best one for you will depend on the number of journeys you make, and which zones you use.

On foot
London is a very walkable city, and many areas are more closely linked than you would think – especially if you are using a tube map for guidance. Not only is walking cheaper than using public transport, it is also a healthier and greener way to travel.

Transport for London has recently introduced a new campaign to get the capital walking.

For more information about the programme and walking in London, visit https://tfl.gov.uk/corporate/about-tfl/what-we-do/walking

Green spaces
London has a surprising number of green spaces for the public to enjoy – whether you prefer an energetic game of football or a leisurely amble among the well-tended flower beds. See the Royal Parks website for information on activities, events and seasonal highlights at royalparks.org.uk

Health and Wellbeing

Disability and Wellbeing service
See page 31.

Gym / fitness
Within the LSE campus you will find squash courts, badminton courts and the LSE Gym. The LSE Gym moved into the new Saw Swee Hock Student Centre in January 2014, with state of the art equipment and facilities. The gym is well equipped with cardiovascular and resistance machines and fully qualified staff. Membership for LSE students is very reasonable. For more information see lse.ac.uk/intranet/LSEServices/LSEFacilitiesGuide/sportsFacilities.aspx

A short distance away are the facilities of the University of London Union (ULU) which also include a swimming pool. Both the LSE Students’ Union (LSESU) and the ULU have a variety of sporting clubs and teams who welcome members at all levels up to and including high level inter-university competition. For more information, see lsesu.com/activities/sports

LSE medical services
See page 32 for information on the St Philips Medical Centre and other medical services provided on campus (dental, vaccinations, sexual health, and counselling).
Life in London

Climate
The climate of London is generally temperate. During the winter months rainfall can be fairly regular, but more often than not you should expect drizzle or showers rather than heavy or long downpours. It sometimes snows but snow generally does not settle more than a few millimetres deep in the city. Evening temperatures in the winter can often fall below freezing, but daytime freezing is rare. During the summer months you should expect temperatures in the low to mid 20s Celsius (apart from the occasional heated wave). In the summer the Underground can be very warm, so it's advisable to carry a bottle of water. Weather conditions are changeable in the UK, so you should be equipped with suitable clothing to cover every eventuality, and wear layers when possible.

Historic buildings
If you turn left from Houghton Street you will walk past the Royal Courts of Justice. This was opened by Queen Victoria in 1882 and was the original home of the Supreme Court. Opposite the Royal Courts of Justice you will find Inner Temple – one of London's four medieval Inns of Court. Many Inns of Court still function as offices for barristers. Within the grounds of Inner Temple is the Temple Church, familiar to anyone who has seen the movie The Da Vinci Code. A short walk along Fleet Street will take you past the historic homes of some of the best known British newspapers and periodicals (now mostly moved to the east of the city) and up towards St Paul's Cathedral. Built after the first cathedral was destroyed during the Great Fire of London, the Christopher Wren dome provides one of London's most distinctive landmarks, as well as being a truly spectacular building.

Museums
The Tate Modern, the National Gallery, the National Portrait Gallery, the British Museum, the Courtauld Institute of Art and the Museum of London are all within a short distance of the LSE campus. Slightly further away in Knightsbridge you will find the Victoria and Albert Museum, the Science Museum and the Natural History Museum. Many of London's museums have free entry.

Postal Service
The nearest Post Office to the LSE campus is situated on Aldwych next door to Clement House, (see the campus map on the inside back cover). General information about services provided by the Post Office can be found at postoffice.co.uk

Pubs, bars and clubs
There are a number of pubs and bars on campus, including the George IV, the White Horse and the Three Tuns, as well as LSESU's weekly club night, Saucy. LSE's central London location means that it is only a short walk to the bright lights of the West End, Soho and any number of places to see and be seen. There are many student deals which will help to make your money go further; see timeout.com/london and lsesu.com for more information.

Safety
London is generally a safe place to live. As with any city, it is sensible to be aware of your personal safety and to take simple precautions. Lock your door/window(s) when leaving your room, even for a short time, and keep valuable personal items out of sight. Keep your personal information, credit cards, mobile phone, etc safe, and be aware of your valuables when out and about. Take care at cashpoints (ATMs) – protect your PIN and put both cash and card away as soon as possible.

If you own a bicycle, wear appropriate protective/high visibility clothing, use lights when cycling at night and invest in a quality “D-Lock” and double loop cable. Double locking is suggested for extra security.

On a night out, never leave your drink unattended or accept a drink from a stranger. Don’t take risks getting home – never use an unlicensed minicab.

Transport for London’s Cabwise service (see page 44) will help you find licensed minicabs/taxis in your area. When walking at night, stick to well-lit and populated areas as much as possible and plan your route in advance.

If you need to report a crime, you can dial 999 in an emergency (ie if a crime/incident is happening now, or if someone is in immediate danger) to contact the police. Non-emergency calls should be made to 101.

NHS
All students who live in the UK for at least six months are eligible for free NHS primary care by a general practitioner (GP). However, students and their dependents on a Tier 4 visa will be charged £150 per year of stay for NHS treatment in hospitals, payable at the point of the visa application. Information about the NHS and how to register or make use of its services is available on the LSE St Philips Medical Centre web pages: ls.ac.uk/medicalCentre

Museums
The Tate Modern, the National Gallery, the National Portrait Gallery, the British Museum, the Courtauld Institute of Art and the Museum of London are all within a short distance of the LSE campus. Insurance

Insurance cover is a good idea if you intend to bring expensive belongings with you. There are many types of cover available dependent on the length and amount of cover required. Generally, you should look to purchase a policy covering your personal possessions, money and documents, as well as medical expenses and personal liability. If you are an overseas student you will also need to arrange travel and health insurance. Many companies offer policies tailored to students; an internet search will yield you many options.

Mobile phones

If you choose to buy a new mobile phone when you get to the UK we recommend you shop around to get the best deal on a contract phone. “Pay as you go” (prepaid) phones can be purchased for as little as £10 but individual call and text charges may be comparatively higher. Contract tariffs may provide you with a better deal. Note that prepaid phones do not require a UK bank account or address, so may be easier to purchase if you are still waiting to open a bank account.

Paying your LSE tuition fees

See page 15.

sQuid

The sQuid service on your LSE ID card allows you to conveniently and safely pay for food, drink and other items across campus using an eMoney payment system. You can view a statement of your transactions and top up your funds through your online account at squidcard.com/LSE. For more information about the Early Payment Reward see page 15.

Student discounts / NUS

Living in London does not have to be overly expensive; there are many activities which are free, and many suppliers offer considerable discounts to students. A quick internet search will reveal a number of websites, including studentbeans.com, wealthystudent.co.uk and nus.org.uk which have lots of information about special offers for students.

Details of free activities can also be found on londonforfree.net, including London’s Cheapest Bus Tour where you can see many of London’s famous sights and landmarks using standard Transport for London buses. The route includes the Number 15 bus which passes LSE and is one of only two routes where the famous Routemaster buses are used, where you board via an open platform at the rear of the bus.

Applying for an NUS card will give you access to further discounts on books, clothes, sports equipment, CDs, travel, computer equipment, gigs, eating out and more. The Students’ Union will provide further details about applying for a card.

Alternatively, visit the NUS website and apply online at nus.org.uk

The area around LSE is also rich in student discounts – our proximity to other London universities means that many places are competing for student business. Look out for window stickers in shops and cafés, and make the most of facilities offered by LSE, the LSESU, and the University of London.

Tax

Students in the UK are liable to pay Income Tax and National Insurance contributions on their earnings, just like everyone else. If you’re a student and you’re working, you can be taxed on casual, part-time and temporary work. Almost everyone who works legally in the UK is entitled to receive the National Minimum Wage, currently £5.55 per hour for workers aged 18 to 20 (from 1 October 2016). If you intend to work during your studies, you should consult gov.uk/student-jobs-paying-tax for advice on all aspects of the UK tax system as it applies to students.

Utilities

If you are renting private accommodation, you should make sure it is clear in your lease which utilities you will be responsible for. You should get a gas/electricity meter reading on the date you move in and out, and should make sure you know which company currently supplies the property. If you wish to change your supplier, there are a number of comparison websites which allow you to choose the right provider/tariff for you. The LSESU Advice Centre can help with all housing related issues, and it is worth visiting them if you are unfamiliar with renting accommodation in the UK. You can find more details on their website at lsesu.com/advice

Shopping
London is a shopper’s paradise. Covent Garden, with its famous Piazza and market stalls is only a few minutes walk from LSE. London’s other famous shopping destinations – Knightsbridge or the area around Oxford Circus – are only a few stops further on the Underground. At weekends you can enjoy London’s many markets in different parts of the city selling a wide variety of goods from fresh fruit and vegetables and hand crafted pastries to vintage clothing, crafts and antiques.

Opening hours
Opening hours are usually 9am – 6pm depending on the type of shop. Many shops are open seven days a week usually opening at around midday on Sundays. Some stay open late on Thursdays.

Buying books
Shops Most core text books will be available at the branch of Waterstones situated on Clare Market on campus. Other major bookshops in London include Foyles, Stanfords and Blackwells. Search online to find your nearest branch. There is also a second-hand bookshop, Alpha Books, at 1 Portsmouth Street.

Online If you buy books online via Amazon you may be able to get a student discount with your NUS card, see the NUS website at nus.org.uk/en/nus-extra for further information.

Cigarettes and alcohol
Although alcohol can be legally bought from the age of 18, shops and bars can be very strict; be prepared to produce identification confirming your age if asked. Cigarettes are legally sold to anyone above the age of 18.

Clothes
Where you buy your clothes depends largely on personal taste and budget. Covent Garden and the area around Oxford Circus are two major shopping destinations and are located within a short walk or bus ride from the LSE campus. Remember, student discounts are available at some shops, so check before buying.

Household items
There are lots of options for buying household items. You can purchase most things from any of the major department stores (many located near Oxford Circus), but this can be quite expensive. You will save money by shopping around, and can often find bargains in shops like Wilkinsons or Poundland. Three popular choices with students are:

Argos This general-goods retailer sells most items you would find in a department store, but by catalogue. You can arrange for delivery or collect your purchases from your local branch. Stores are located all over London, including Holborn and The Strand. You can find them online at argos.co.uk

Ikea This large Swedish superstore stocks items for the home, from basic household items to furniture. Branches are located on the outskirts of London in Tottenham, Croydon, Lakeside, and Wembley. Visit ikea.com for more details.

Robert Dyas Founded in London in 1872, Robert Dyas provides a range of household items and small electrical appliances. Branches are located throughout London, including on Fleet Street, The Strand, and High Holborn. They’re also online at robertdyas.co.uk

Shopping on campus
The LSESU shop in Lincoln Chambers on Portsmouth Street. and stocks a range of stationery, drinks and snacks, newspapers and magazines, greetings cards among other things. The SU shop also has a wide range of LSE-branded merchandise. There are also two bookshops on campus – a Waterstones (The Economists’ Bookshop) on the ground floor of the St Clement’s Building and Alpha Books, a second hand bookshop located at 1 Portsmouth Street.

Supermarkets
Many people do their weekly food shopping in supermarkets. Tesco, Sainsbury’s, Waitrose, Morrisons and Asda are the supermarkets most commonly found in and around London. You may also find branches of popular discount chains Iceland, Aldi, and Lidl.

Many supermarket chains offer a delivery service for a small charge. Some larger supermarkets will also stock a range of international food items.
DEPARTMENTAL CONTACTS

Each academic department also organises an induction for its new students. It is important that you attend this session so that you can receive more detailed information about the arrangements for your degree and teaching, and information about meeting times with your tutor. Information on the times and dates of these inductions are posted on the Orientation website.

MAP OF LSE AND INTERCOLLEGIATE RESIDENCES
The School regulations relating to your programme are set out in your LSEforYou account and the School Calendar (lse.ac.uk/resources/calendar/DraftFinal.html), together with the Ethics Code, Rules of the Library, Conditions of Use of IT Facilities, and all other School regulations.

Please note that the School may make minor changes to its regulations, rules, codes and conditions after you have accepted your offer of a place. We will notify you of these changes via email by the end of the second week of Michaelmas Term. Your acceptance of the terms and conditions on the Student Verification Form binds you to abide by all of these and to the following Conditions of Registration:

1. You agree to your relationship with the School being governed by English Law and to the English Courts having exclusive jurisdiction over any legal matter.

2. You agree to stay in London or within reasonable distance of the School during term time and also for any summative assessment periods, for courses on which you are registered, which may fall outside the term dates. This includes but is not limited to examinations in the week preceding Lent Term and for the duration of the dissertation period for Master's students. Term dates are published in the School Calendar. If you need to be absent from the School during term time, for reasons other than illness, you will first consult your academic advisor/supervisor. If you are to be away for more than a fortnight, you agree to inform your academic department in writing before you go. Email notification is acceptable.

3. You agree that if you are away from the School through illness, you will inform your academic advisor/supervisor. If you are away for more than a fortnight, you will send a medical certificate to the Student Services Centre.

4. If you are a non-EEA national studying in the UK with student immigration permission, you must abide by the terms of your visa, as defined by the UK Visas and Immigration service (UKVI).

5. You agree that if you change your permanent home address and/or your term-time address, you must inform the School via your LSEforYou account of your new address details at once.

6. Your status as a Home/EU or Overseas student for fee purposes is determined by the relevant Admissions Office on the basis of information that you have provided. This status cannot normally be changed after you have registered.

7. Undergraduate students are not allowed to register on a part-time basis unless you have been given permission to partially repeat a year of study.

8. You agree that you are liable for fees while you are in registration at the School, including any fees which a sponsor has agreed to pay on your behalf. You agree that if you decide to withdraw from, or interrupt your studies, no refund of fees can be made until you have notified the Student Services Centre of your decision in writing. If you withdraw from, or interrupt, your programme, you will be charged fees up to the Friday after the last day of attendance.

9. You agree that if you change your registration status (e.g. move from full-time to part-time study, interrupt your studies or withdraw from your programme), fees will be charged on a pro rata basis as appropriate according to the date on which official permission for the change was given.

10. You agree that if you register for a programme lasting more than one year, or you interrupt your studies and return to complete them later, the fees charged for subsequent years will be at the rate applicable for that current academic year in question and not at the rate for the academic year in which you first registered.

11. You agree to pay tuition fees in full or in instalments as arranged with the Fees Office (lse.ac.uk/intranet/LSEServices/financeDivision/feesAndStudentFinance/Home.aspx). You accept that if you fail to pay tuition fees by the due date, this will invalidate your registration. You accept also that if you are in debt to the School for tuition fees the School may end your registration and/or withhold official certification about your progress at the School, information about your results and any academic award made to you.

12. You accept that LSE collects and processes certain information on its students for essential administrative, academic and health and safety reasons. This information is treated in strict confidence, and is covered by the Data Protection Act. In particular, the School will use your personal information for its approved purposes only, and will not pass it to unauthorised third parties without your explicit consent. It will form the basis of records of registered students supplied to the Higher Education Statistical Agency (HESA), which is owned and managed by the universities to provide statistics for the Higher Education Funding Councils and the universities. Further details are set out at lse.ac.uk/intranet/LSEServices/Legal%20Team/dataProtection/Home.aspx

13. Your LSE email account will be used for a variety of essential communications, including information on payment of your tuition fees. The School will assume that you open, read and act upon these emails.

14. On all matters connected with School and University regulations, you should contact the Student Services Centre for guidance. If you are in any doubt about any information provided orally, you should ask for it to be confirmed in writing. In particular, you should always ask for written confirmation of any information relating to your tuition fees.

15. You should not expect academic advisors/supervisors to be familiar with all regulations. You should seek clarification from the Student Services Centre on any regulatory issue.

16. You should not expect academic advisors/supervisors or other service divisions to pass on to the Student Services Centre information about your plans or, where applicable, about exceptional circumstances relating to your exam performance. It is your own responsibility to do so within the published deadlines.

As a member of LSE's Students' Union, you are also a member of the University of London Union (ULU), which is the union that represents all students studying at a college within the University of London. You agree that the School can pass on your name and LSE email address to ULU for the purpose of registering you to vote in the ULU elections.

17. You agree to conduct yourself in an orderly, responsible, and sober manner and at all times to respect the rights and views of others. Failure to do so is a breach of the Conditions of Registration and an offence under the Disciplinary Procedure. You agree that you will:

17.1 engage in any act that will, or is likely to, disrupt teaching, study, research or administrative work of the School;

17.2 cause, or threaten to cause, injury to, or endanger the safety of, a member of staff or student of the School, or a visitor to it;

17.3 behave dishonestly, which includes submitting incorrect or misleading information to the School;

17.4 engage in any form of conduct or communication, including that on social media, that can reasonably be considered to be bullying or harassment of a member of staff or another student, as it is defined by the School's Harassment Policy;
18.5 engage in any act that will, or is likely to, damage or deface property of the School;

18.6 engage in any conduct or communication that will, or is likely to, bring the School into disrepute or unjustifiably harm the reputation of a member of it;

18.7 breach one or more of the School’s terms or conditions, policies or procedures, or rules and regulations, which includes but is not limited to, these Conditions of Registration, the School’s Ethics Code and any sanctions or measures that have been put in place under the School’s disciplinary or any other procedure;

18.8 commit a criminal act, which may or may not be punished in a court of law, on any of the premises that the School owns, leases or in any way administers;

18.9 use any of the School’s facilities improperly and / or breach the Conditions of Use of IT Facilities at LSE;

18.10 use the School’s name or address in a public statement, or business or other venture, without making clear your status as a student and the name of the group or society for which you may be acting;

18.11 use any of the School’s registered trademarks without seeking permission from a relevant person in the School’s central administration;

18.12 record a lecture, meeting or other LSE event, or use such a recording, without the permission of the lecturer or person or group who organised the event;

19. The School considers academic integrity to be of the utmost importance. You agree that all your assessed coursework (essays, projects, field reports, literature reviews, dissertations etc.) may be analysed by plagiarism detection software.

20. You accept that while any assessment offence allegation made against you remains outstanding, the School may withhold official certification about your progress at the School, information about your results and any academic award made to you.

21. The School will have the power to terminate your registration if any of the following conditions apply:

21.1 you complete your programme of study for which you were registered;

21.2 you voluntarily withdraw from your programme for which you were registered;

21.3 you fail to satisfy the academic requirements for your programme, including but not limited to failing to meet completion or progression criteria, lack of industry or failing to enter for an element of assessment after completing the normal course;

21.4 you fail to satisfy the requirements for registration or re-registration;

21.5 you are expelled under the Disciplinary Procedure for Students, the Regulations on Assessment Offences: Plagiarism or the Regulations on Assessment Offences: Offences Other Than Plagiarism.

21.6 any other good academic cause;

21.7 you fail to pay all fees and charges due to the School or to have provided guarantees of such payment satisfactory to the School.

22. Neither the School nor you will be liable for failure to perform any obligations to each other if it arises from force majeure, including acts of God, war, terrorism, industrial disputes (including disputes involving the School’s employees), pandemic, fire, flood, tempest and national emergencies. If either the School or you seek to rely on this clause, they shall ensure that disruptions are kept to a minimum.

Notes

Copies of all papers submitted to the software will be retained as source documents in the iParadigms reference database solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism. Use of the Turnitin UK service shall be subject to such Terms and Conditions of Use as may be agreed between iParadigms and LSE from time to time and posted on the Turnitin UK website.
CONSUMER RIGHTS FOR STUDENTS

The Competition and Markets Authority (CMA) has recently published updated guidance on your consumer rights as a student.

The guide covers three key consumer law issues for students:

- Information provision – universities need to provide up front, clear, intelligible, unambiguous and timely information.
- Terms and conditions – universities’ terms and conditions that apply to students need to be fair and balanced.
- Complaint handling processes and practices – universities need to ensure their complaint handling processes and practices are accessible, clear and fair to students.

The advice focuses on compliance with the following consumer legislation:

- Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations 2008 (CPRs)
- Consumer Contracts (Information, Cancellation and Additional Charges) Regulations 2013 (CCRs)
- Unfair terms legislation (at the date of publication, the relevant legislation is the Unfair Terms in Consumer Contracts Regulations 1999 (UTCCRs))

LSE is fully compliant with this guidance. Any changes made to date to the programme that you have been offered are shown at lse.ac.uk/cma, including, but not limited to:

(i) Programme title
(ii) Entry requirements/criteria
(iii) Core modules/optional modules
(iv) Information about the composition of the programme
(v) Methods of assessment of the programme
(vi) The award obtained upon successful completion of the programme
(vii) Location of study
(viii) Length of programme
(ix) Programme regulation
(x) Programme accreditation
(xi) Total course costs

You should ensure you check this page before accepting your offer. You will also find information detailing how to withdraw from any financial commitments that you may have undertaken.
All information is correct at the time of going to press, but please keep checking lse.ac.uk/registration as the new term approaches. Information regarding welcome week events, both School-wide and departmental, will be published in the same place, and will also be sent to you via email in your Welcome Pack in August. You should make sure you check the email account you have given us regularly and inform us immediately of any changes to your contact details. This will allow us to keep you up to date. Main registration usually takes place in the Hong Kong Theatre on the ground floor of Clement House. Please note that arrangements have yet to be finalised at the time of going to press, so these locations may change.

What to expect at Registration:
There will be a large number of students registering at the same time as you. You will need to queue for anything from 15 minutes to 45 minutes, and possibly more.
You can help us speed up the process for you and everyone else in the queue by doing the following things:

1. If you require a visa to study, collect your Biometric Residence Permit (BRP) before you arrive to register. We cannot register you with your temporary visa vignette (stamp).
2. Submit your Financial Undertaking Form (FUF) and Student Verification Form (SVF) before arriving for Registration. You can do it on the day, but it will take longer for you to register.
3. When you check-in for registration, speak to the LSE staff member at the back of the queue. They will make sure all your documents are in order for registration before you start queuing.

Finally, time passes quickly when you have company or you have something to do while queuing, so feel free to make friends, or bring along a book or something else to pass the time.
