LSE Admissions Policy

- The School is committed to admitting students:
 - with the merit, potential and motivation to succeed at LSE
 - who can benefit from and contribute to the LSE community
- UG Admissions seeks to achieve these aims by:
 - providing clear and concise information about entry requirements, application procedures and the admissions process
 - upholding the principles of fairness, transparency and consistency that underpin the admissions process

LSE Admissions Requirements

- Meeting or exceeding academic entry requirements does not guarantee an offer
- Personal statement is a very important aspect of admissions criteria – key element of selection process
- Reference is also important – particularly helpful when detailed and specific to applicant
- Educational and social context taken into consideration
- Extenuating circumstances also taken into account

LSE Admissions Process

- Equal consideration given to ALL applications received at UCAS by the 15th January deadline
- All applications are first read by Admissions Assessors, who can decline if the application does not meet minimum entry requirements – decisions are verified by Senior Admissions Assessors
- Remaining applications then passed to Admissions Selectors (Specialists and Tutors) for a decision
- Selector decisions are made holistically, usually based solely on the information provided in the application

LSE Admissions Process

- We do not currently interview any applicants
- Some applicants may be asked to sit LSE Undergraduate Admissions Assessment (UGAA)
- Applications may be considered as part of 'gathered field'
 - enables fair and equal consideration of all 'on time' applications
 - may mean earlier applications are held until later in the cycle to be reconsidered alongside later applications
- Applicants are kept informed about progress of application
- We aim to make all decisions by the 31 March UCAS deadline, although many decisions are made earlier

LSE Admissions Process

Confirmation

- Very few 'marginally missed' offers are confirmed
- Relevant additional information is welcomed, particularly regarding extenuating circumstances
(by 30th June for IB, 31st July for other qualifications)

Clearing

- LSE has not been in Clearing for several years

Adjustment period

- LSE has not participated in Adjustment since its commencement

LSE Admissions 'Myths'

- “LSE will reject me if I apply to Oxford or Cambridge”
- “I will improve my chances of gaining admission if I apply to more than one programme”
- “LSE will reject me because my predicted grades aren't AAA”
- “LSE will reject me if I don't have 10 A*s at GCSE”
- “LSE will reject me because of the school I attend”

Qualification Reform

Qualification Reform

How are qualifications changing?

- Linear A Levels
- New GCSEs with a different grading system
- Separate, standalone qualifications
- Reformed in 3 Phases from 2015 to 2017

A Level Reform

Phase 1

- September 2015: Art & Design, Biology, Business, Chemistry, Computer Science, Economics, English Language, English Language & Literature, English Literature, History, Psychology, Physics, Sociology.

Phase 2

- September 2016: Dance, Drama & Theatre, Ancient Languages, Modern Foreign Languages, Physical Education, Geography, Religious Studies.

Phase 3

- September 2017: Mathematics, Further Mathematics.

GCSE Reform

- New grading system (1 – 9)
- LSE - grade 5 and above is a 'good pass'
- Grade 5 = Grade B
- Grade 7 = Grade A
- Grade 8/9 = Grade A*

Qualification Reform

LSE's Position:

- Fierce competition for places
- AS levels are an effective indicator of performance
- LSE will continue to use AS levels in our admissions assessments where possible
- If possible, applicants are advised to sit the new AS levels
- Applicants from schools not offering AS levels will not be disadvantaged
