

Part-Time Teaching Opportunities

The Law School is one of the largest Departments in the LSE and offers legal studies with a distinctive, interdisciplinary character. Over the years, it has played a major role in policy debates and policy-making both in the UK and abroad. It has a cosmopolitan student body and has significantly influenced legal education in most common law countries.

We invite interested teachers to contribute to class teaching on our Criminal Law course and our Company Law course on our LLB programme during the Winter Term.

Criteria

Applicants must normally have a PhD in Law or Equivalent (or be in a second or third year of PhD study) or be a practitioner in the field

Level of commitment required

The Winter Term runs from 19th January to the 2nd April. We ask that teachers take at least two class groups. Each class group has approximately 15 students and meets for an hour each week across the term. There may also be a revision class in early May.

Timetabling

Classes can be scheduled between 8am and 8pm Monday to Friday.

Remuneration

Rates start at £24 per hour, but are commensurate with experience and qualifications. Part-time teachers are paid for teaching delivery (i.e. the hours in the classroom), as well as the associated duties such as preparation (4 hours a week), administration (1 hour a week), office hours (1 hour a week), marking, and meeting attendance. Part-time teachers are welcome to attend Law School events, including socials and research seminars.

Application procedure and timeline

Please send an up-to-date CV and a short email stating a) the course you'd be interested in teaching, and b) the days of the week you could teach to law.teaching@lse.ac.uk by 5th November 2025. We aim to get back to you within a couple of weeks of your application.
