

EXPLORING THE POLITICAL IN SOUTH ASIA

Series Editor: Mukulika Banerjee – London School of Economics and Political Science, UK

Exploring the Political in South Asia is devoted to the publication of research on the political cultures of the region. The books in this series present qualitative and quantitative analyses grounded in field research, and explore the cultures of democracies in their everyday local settings, specifically the workings of modern political institutions, practices of political mobilisation, manoeuvres of high politics, structures of popular beliefs, content of political ideologies and styles of political leadership, amongst others. Through fine-grained descriptions of particular settings in South Asia, the studies presented in this Series inform, and have implications for, general discussions of democracy and politics elsewhere in the world.

Criminal Capital

Violence, Corruption and Class in Industrial India

Andrew Sanchez – University of Kent, UK

Criminal Capital is an ethnographic analysis of the relationship between neoliberalism, criminality and the reshaping of class in modern industrial India. It examines the links between capitalism, corruption, trade unionism, violence; and labour politics in contemporary Indian society and public policy.

The Politics of Caste in West Bengal

Editors: Uday Chandra – Max Planck Institute for the Study of Religious and Ethnic Diversity, Göttingen, Germany; Geir Heierstad – Norwegian Institute for Urban and Regional Research, Oslo, Norway; and Kenneth Bo Nielsen – University of Bergen, Norway

This book presents a comprehensive analysis of the changing dynamics of politics of caste in colonial and postcolonial West Bengal. Drawing on cutting-edge scholarship and using an interdisciplinary approach, it examines why caste continues to be neglected in the politics of the state, as also how caste relations have permeated the politics of the region.

Politics, Landlords and Islam in Pakistan

Nicolas Martin – University College London, UK

Politics, Landlords and Islam in Pakistan explores the linkages between politics, religion, class, and caste in politics in rural Pakistan. It documents how landlords continue to wield arbitrary and despotic power over much of Pakistan's rural population in the 21st century, and how participatory democracy has been subverted and has largely benefitted rural elites.
