

GY415 Photos from L'Aquila Field Trip 2019

Fontecchio

These images of Fontecchio will never leave me:
Its beauty and its resilience.
May Fontecchio live on and on...

Dr Erica Pani

L'AQUILA I really like this photo because at first glance, we can only perceived a pretty typical Italian place with a lamp, a tree and the bright colors of the walls. However, when more attention is given to the photo, the darkness of the windows and the constructions can be seen. I like the superposition of the constructions in the original buildings because it keeps its original aesthetic.

Clarisse Marchesin

The girl standing on the book seems to explore the unknown and unpredictable world. The scene of this picture is similar to the situation of L'Aquila.

Even though everywhere is under construction, we still need to believe after rain the sky will turn into blue.

An-Ting Liao

We all squeezed into a cute school bus which made me feel like pupils again. Also, what impressed me the most is beauty of nature and culture while the bus passed many buildings in the community en route to the destination.

Possapon Charoenporn

L'Aquila. A city in transition

A work in progress

A city of industry

A city of research & development

G S
S I

A city of strength

I T ' S A W O N D E R F U L L I F E

A city with a past, present and future

A city to be loved