

On behalf of the Department of Sociology at LSE, as Head of Department I would like to congratulate you on your offer to study BSc Sociology with us.

Joining Our Community

Rather than wait until September, we want you to consider yourself a member of our community right now. If you haven't already, take some time to explore our department website to get a feel for the sort of work we engage in, the events we hold, and what we strive for collectively as a department. We are very active on social media, so be sure to follow us on X, Facebook, LinkedIn and Instagram.

As a department comprising approximately 30 full-time academics and teaching fellows, 15 Graduate Teaching Assistants, 12 Professional Support Staff members, and around 400 students, we work collectively to foster a diverse, close-knit and supportive environment where students and staff can engage in socially relevant, critical and creative learning and scholarship.

Our work as a department spans across many key issues shaping our world today, in empirically rich sociological analysis at the intersections between economy, politics and society. We examine social inequalities, economic and political change, human rights challenges, migration, urbanisation, technological transformation, climate issues, and much more.

As an active, socially conscious, and engaged community, we strive to offer our students rigorous training in theoretical and methodological sociological inquiry. Our ultimate goal is to provide you with some of the most valuable transferable skills needed for our modern society: critical, committed, independent thought.

Offer Holder Day 30 April 2025

The Offer Holder Day gives undergraduate applicants with an offer of admission the opportunity to visit the LSE campus, meet LSE students and staff, and find out more about studying at LSE and life in London.

Our next Undergraduate Offer Holder Day will be held on Wednesday 30 April 2025 for applicants with an offer for entry in September 2025. See the Offer Holder Day event page for further information to book a place. We'll also be hosting a meet and greet session that day, within our own department space, so you can come see our space and meet key members of staff.

What To Expect Next

In the months leading up to the start of your course, we will keep in regular contact with you, providing information on a range of exciting topics including Welcome, course selection, news about the Department, upcoming events, ways to get involved, and things to prepare in the lead up to the start of your degree. And don't forget about our offer holders' webpages:

<https://www.lse.ac.uk/sociology/offer-holders/offer-holders>

See You in September!

It is our sincere hope that you choose to make the Department of Sociology at LSE your academic home for the duration of your degree. During your time studying with us, we are committed to supporting your development of the skills that will enable you to engage with your environment in meaningful ways to help understand, shape and change the world.

We look forward to welcoming you to the Department at the start of the academic year in September.

Best wishes,

Professor Suzi Hall

Head of Department | Department of Sociology

The London School of Economics and Political Science
Houghton Street, London WC2A 2AE

lse.ac.uk

