April 2021

View previous editions

Dear {!Contact.FirstName},

Welcome to our April newsletter, which focuses on the LSE Library and the Language Centre.

If you have missed any of our previous issues, you can find them here. Over the next few months we will continue to send you updates via these newsletters to help you prepare for your arrival at LSE.

We hope that you enjoy this month's issue, and look forward to welcoming you later this year.

Kind regards,

Graduate Admissions Office

The LSE Library

More than any other building on campus, the Library will play a central role in your studies.

Not just a book collection or a place to study, the Library offers a wide range of services and training. The Library is open to staff and students 24 hours during the Lent and Summer terms.

Find out about the Library's resources, such as ebooks, databases, news and more.

When you get to campus, the LSE Library features colour-coded study zones, to help match your individual style of study:

- Group zone (green): suitable for group work and discussion at a moderate level. Quiet, non-disruptive phone usage is allowed.
- Silent zone (red); suitable for silent study only. Mobile phone conversation is not allowed.

You can also book study spaces for silent or group study.

LSE Events

LSE LIFE

One of the most exciting features of the Library is LSE LIFE. We will be featuring LSE LIFE fully in a special newsletter later in the cycle, but for now, do feel free to take a look around their website, to see what they have on offer. How about listening to some of their podcasts?

LSE LIFE is a place where you can come to learn more about yourself, your studies and your goals. We offer a plethora of workshops and other unique events where you can learn more about the skills and personal interests you choose to explore. We offer one-to-one sessions to help you discover your strengths, develop your skills and bring them together to reach your goals.

LSE LIFE can support you while you write essays and assignments, prepare for exams, and conduct your research.

Why not take 10 minutes to watch this video, and find out all that LSE LIFE has to offer

LSE Language Centre

The LSE Language Centre offers a range of courses in both English and foreign languages.

These courses are taught by expert teachers with a background in one of LSE's academic subjects, and are available in various lengths.

The Language Centre will be on hand to give you advice and support throughout your time at LSE. This in-sessional EAP support is free and starts

The Work of the Future: Where will it come from?

Wednesday 5 May 2021
6:00pm to 7:30pm

Hosted by the United States Centre as part of the Wenger Distinguished Lectures

How will technological innovation change the workplace? How can we harness technological advances for social benefit? Join leading economist David Autor in discussion with Judy Wajcman as we explore the relationships between emerging technologies and the future of work in America and beyond.

3 Money-Saving tips for Students

Living in London can be quite expensive, especially for students. As such, here are three useful 'hacks' which I have discovered and used to save some money.

Don't forget to follow our social media channels!

as soon as your main course does, continuing through the Michaelmas and Lent terms. The in-session courses cover speaking, reading and listening as well as writing skills, and are specific to your subject area. They are designed specifically to support your study at LSE.

The Centre also offers a range of courses in foreign languages, running throughout the year, as well as additional services including proofreading, translation and private tuition.

You can find the full range of courses as well as information on registration on the Language Centre website.
