

Offer Holder News September 2023

Dear ,

Welcome to our last admissions newsletter, with a focus on final reminders and updates before we fully hand you over to your departments and the Student Services Centre.

If you have missed any of our previous issues, you can find them on this page.

We hope that you enjoy this month's issue, and look forward to welcoming you very soon.

Kind regards,

Graduate Admissions Office

Already enrolled on campus?

Great! There is still information below you should read.

Offer Conditions

If you still have conditions to meet when you arrive to enrol, you are likely to need to return another day to complete the process.

Admissions staff at enrolment will view your documents, and mark your conditions as met if your evidence is satisfactory, however, you must then wait for the system to update (usually overnight). This will then trigger your Pre-enrolment email to be sent. You must then complete your pre-enrolment before you enrol in-person.

Get ready for Welcome!

We're looking forward to welcoming you to LSE next week, with a range of Welcome events and activities taking place, from 18–22 September. Find out what's happening across campus. See what's on

What other events are taking place in Autum Term Week 1?

Outside of classes and seminars, there are lots of activities and events taking place. Our Welcome programme extends throughout Autumn Term – find out about what's on next week and beyond. LSE's public lecture series will continue to run throughout term – you can view all upcoming events on the LSE website and on the LSE Events page on the Student Hub.

You may also wish to take the self-study module Prepare to Learn at LSE to help you feel as prepared as possible for your studies, and to complete your consent education, which includes an online course and an in-person workshop.

Look after your health during your studies

If you are unwell, do not come on to campus - wait until you no longer have symptoms before returning. You can let your class teachers know that you are unwell if you miss any lectures or other classes.

Your health is important to us and should be a priority during your time at LSE. If you're not registered with a General Practice (GP), you can register with St Philips Medical Centre, the GP on LSE's campus. Register with St Philips

Update on industrial action at LSE

Before Welcome and the start of the academic year begins, we wanted to let you know about strike action due to take place in Week 1 of Autumn Term, from 25-29 September.

More information about what this means can be found on our industrial action webpage, but we want to reassure you that throughout the week campus will be open as usual and there will be a range of opportunities for you to engage with your teaching and learning, alongside many events and activities happening across LSE. You should attend lectures, classes and seminars as planned, unless you are told otherwise.

While Welcome will not be impacted, we know that you will have questions as you settle into Autumn Term, and colleagues will still be available to support and advise you throughout this time.
